E. WHITMORE,

THE PLAINS-A PROPHECY.

Go ye and look upon that land,
That far vast land that few behold,
And one beholding understand—
That old, old land which men call new—
Go journey with the seasons through
Its wastes, and learn how limitless.
The solemn silence of that plain
Is, oh! so eloquent. The blue
And so eloquent. The blue
And so eloquent. The blue
And all else seems a yesterday,
An idle tale but illy told.
Its story is of God alone.
For man has lived and gone away
And left but little heaps of stone.
Lo! here you learn how more than fit
And dignified is silence, when
You hear the petty jeers of men.
Its awin! solitudes remain
Thenceforth for are a part of you,
And you have learned your littleness
Some silent med men great your track:

Some silent red men cross your track;
Some sun-tanned trappers come and go;
Some rolling seas of buffalo
Break thunder like and far away
Against the foot-hills, breaking back
Like breakers of some troubles bay;
Some white-tailed antelope blown by
So airy like; some foxes shy
And shadow-like move to and fro
Like weavers' shuttles as you pass;
And now and then from out the grass
You hear some lone bird cluck, and call
A sharp, keen call for her lost brood,
That only makes the solitude
Seem deeper still, and that is all.

That wide domain of mysteries
And signs that men misunderstand;
A land of space and dreams; a land
Of sea-salt lakes and dried-up seas;
A land of caves and caravas
And lonely wells and pools; a land
That hath its purposes and plans.
That seems so like dead Palestine,
Save that its wastes have no confine
Till pushed against the leveled skies;
A land from out whose depths shall rise
The new-time prophets; the domain
From out whose awful depths shall come
All clad in skins, with dusty feet,
A man fresh from his Maker's hand,
A singer singing oversweet,
A charmer charming very wise;
And then all men shall not be dismbNay, not be dumb, for he shall say, Nay, not be dumb, for he shall say,

"Take beed, for I prepare the way
For weary feet;" and from this land
The Christ shall come when next the race
Of men shall look upon his face.
