More Salmon Than Water.

Alaska Letter in San Francisco Bulletin.
As for the salmon, as seen this morning, it is a thing of beauty, and morning current—tens of thousands of them, side by side, with their backs out of the water in shallow places—nothing that could write may possibly give anything like a fair conception of the extravagance of their numbers. There is more salmon apparently, bulk for bulk, than water. In feeding the stream the whirling unlitides, crowding against one another could not get out of one's way. One of our men waded out in the midst of them and amused himself by seizing them above the tail and swinging them over his head. Thousands of them could thus be taken by hand while they are making their way over the shallows among the stones.
Whatever may be said of other resources of the territory, it is hardly possible to exaggerate the importance of her fisheries. Not to mention cod, herring, halibut, etc., there are probably not less than a thousand salmon streams in Southeastern Alaska as large or larger than this one (about four feet wide) crowded with fine salmon every year. The sun commenced this year more than a month ago, and the king salmon, one of the five species recognized by the Indians, was running in the Chitchee river about the middle of last month.

DECEYED FROM HOME.

A country girl betrayed and brought to Memphis, where she is found by the police in a low den.

A young man called at the station-house last night, and notified the police that his sister had suddenly disappeared from their home, near McKenzie, Tenn., and asked that she be searched for. The description was very accurate, and this morning the girl was found by Police Officer Toler in a low den in Center alley. She was taken to the station-house where she gave her name as Susie Campbell, aged fifteen. She is a tall, slender girl, unsophisticated as country girls generally are, and seemingly ignorant of the consequences of the step she had taken. Her story was that a man named Tom Smith, whom she had known about four months, seduced her and painting the beauties and fascination of city life persuaded her to accompany him to this city and look her to the place where she was found. Her father and mother were entirely ignorant of her relations with Smith and knew nothing of her departure. Smith, she said, had stolen her. When asked if she wished to return home, she said "yes, of course, she did."
She was accordingly accommodated with a room at the stationhouse until her brother could be notified.

Couldn't Think of It.

Portland Oregonian.
He was from the north fork of the Santiam. He came into the telegraph office yesterday afternoon, with streaks of tobacco juice running from each corner of his mouth, making rich amber colored divisions through his grizzled, dirty beard. It was evident from his dress and demeanor that he was unused to city life and that he was a stranger. Approaching the counter, he asked:
"Is this the express office?"
"Yes, Sir. You'll find the express office right next door."
The old man left, but returned in a minute or two, and said:
"Them fellows in yonder are mistaken or else you're. I want to express a few words to you."
"Thatcher replied, "You want to telegraph, don't you?"
"Bringing his fist to the counter with a force that shook it, he joyfully exclaimed, "Yes, that's it. Telegraph!
Darn my fool soul, I couldn't think of the word."

Let Wright be Dropped.

Waverly Journal, October 6.
There is nothing in submission to the people, the tide is turning rapidly to the regular democracy. Wilson has but few followers, and the bolt will "pete" out, his principal following are sore-headed, disappointed office-seekers, and like statements are the utterances of the partisan leaders, small-by politicians and penny-lining press of the high tax snation. Then gentlemen, why make such an ill-fated fuss about it? Why say so much against submission, why abuse and malign and fritter away so much valuable time and paper and ink on this so very small following of demagogues and office seekers? Why, a earth ped and entreat that Wilson be called off?
Echo answers why?
Now, advice unasked is rarely taken, and this is too much a "rule of ruin" canvass for-nent the people, to expect our will—but a line or two any way. The Wilson men, throughout the state—and those here, posted are most sanguine—believe he will be elected anyway, and if you don't want Hawkins elected, drop Judge Wright and vote for the strong man, Frank Wilson. "Betty be sure than sorry, is in our true Scotch saying, like make the thing sure by voting for Wilson.

LONDON, October 12.—The Times tion of the sacraments. The model authorities in West Ireland are making extensive preparations in view of

SAN FRANCISCO.
Grand Reception to the Presidential Party.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—San Francisco rate in beauty and grandeur.
All of the party declared this parade of steamers the most novel and interesting attraction of their tour. Two unnamed snow mountains, rising far north of Zettle, in the Cascade range, and visible from the bay, were by unanimous consent christened respectively Hayes and Ramsey. As the steamers nearly the city the battery on shore boomed out a presidential salute, and was seconded by bells and steam whistles. The docks were crowded by thousands from the city and all part of the sound, who gave cheer after cheer. The president and others, immediately on landing, entered carriages, and, attended by an escort of the Grand Army of the Republic and mounted marshals, headed by a band, passed between files of citizens to the Occidental hotel. Crowds filled the square in front of the hotel. Responding to calls the party appeared on the balcony, and Chief Justice Groen, in behalf of the citizens, addressed the president, assuring him of a hearty welcome. The president, on being introduced to the crowd, which numbered fully four thousand, was greeted by three cheers and a tiger. After a few remarks the president introduced Secretary Ramsey, who made a short speech and brought General Sherman forward. At mention of Sherman's name their enthusiasm reached the highest pitch, many in the crowd calling out that they had been soldiers.
The president took occasion to say that he was glad to see so many old soldiers, and especially to thank the members of the Grand Army of the Republic for their personal escort from the boat to the hotel. General Sherman then addressed the crowd.
