If subscribers pay in advance, they are bound to give notice to the publisher, at the end of their time, or if they do not wish to continue taking it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it on, and the subscribers will be responsible until an express notice with payment of all arrears, is sent to the publisher.

Republican Caucus.

The Republicans of Paw Paw Township are requested to meet at the Court House, in the village of Paw Paw, on Saturday, the 22d day of July, 1876, at three o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of electing thirteen delegates to attend the County Convention to be held at Lawrence on Tuesday, the 25th day of July, 1876.

Hon. Geo. W. Lawton has returned from his eastern visit.

Miss Bertha Langwell is enjoying a visit with friends in Detroit.

Mrs. Sarah West Kenney, of Bangor, died July 9th, aged 55 years.

The Methodist social was held at the residence of E. G. Butler last Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smolk of Jackson are on a visit to relatives and friends in this village.

Miss Clara Martin is enjoying her vacation visiting friends in Flint, Big Rapids and other places.

The old M. E. church is now being removed to make room for the new one soon to take its place.

Mrs. Mackellar and daughter, of New York city, are visiting at the residence of Mr. D. Mackellar.

We understand that the depot is to be moved over the river. If so, it will be rather inconvenient for passengers.

Mrs. C. V. Burdick and daughter, Miss Cynthia, have gone to Augusta for a visit with the former's father, Mr. Frost.

Miss Clara Martin is enjoying her vacation visiting friends in Flint, Big Rapids and other places.

Mr. W. J. Sellick will soon start for the east to purchase his fall stock of goods. He will "take in" the centennial on the way.

William H. Mansfield, for the last three years editor and proprietor of the Casopolis Vigilant, has sold a half interest to J. M. Shepard.

While working in a saw mill a young man of Columbia township lost several fingers of his left hand by coming in too close proximity with a saw.

Prof. S. G. Burked, who has been Principal in the Decatur school for the past three years, will not follow his vocation of teaching, but will spend most of the ensuing year at Oberlin college in Ohio.

G. Fred Sellick has sent us a copy of the Eagleville News, published at Eagleville, Harrison county, Missouri, containing a full page advertisement of Burr Robbins' show, which was to exhibit there July 11.

Roscoe Broughton has returned from a trip to the centennial. Among the familiar objects that greeted his sight while there, was the TRUE NORTHERNER which he found on file in Rowell's newspaper pavilion.

Elder Wm. M. Roe will start to-day for the west, where he will spend several weeks in rest and recreation. He will visit various places in Wisconsin and Iowa. During his absence services will be held as usual at the Christian church.

By invitation of Mrs. S. Conallus and Mrs. Albert Jackson, a number of the friends of Mrs. Elvira Hendrick met at her residence yesterday afternoon to greet her in honor of her birthday anniversary. The occasion was a very enjoyable one for all.

Died.—In this village, on Wednesday, the 19th inst., of old age, Jeremiah Falter, an old resident. At the time of his death he was known to be ninety-five years of age, but many of his friends reckon his age from data outside of any record (for there is none) to be upwards of ninety-eight.

Mr. M. H. Myers sends us the following: While engaged in harvesting on one of those hot days last week for C. A. Thayer, in Bloomington, in company with J. A. Myers, C. A. Thayer, John Slover and Harvey Van Winkle, I helped to measure off a piece of standing wheat which contained one and one-half acres and twenty rods of ground. John Slover cradled it down in good shape in one hour and forty minutes, and kept right on cradling and setting up wheat till night, just as if nothing had happened.

We should call that the "boon" cradling of the season, and if any person can beat it we would like to hear from them.

The Lansing Republican says that Mrs. Sally Lane, a daughter of William Williams, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, lives at North Lansing.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, July 18.

Prof. Halsted gave a talk about fungi. Other talks and papers were given, all of which were interesting.—A large Hayes and Wheeler club has been organized in the city, and a good sum of money already raised to carry on the campaign.—The Hon. Mr. Trowbridge and Hon. S. D. Bingham are talked of for Congress from this district.

The following is the list of Petit Jurors drawn for the August term of the Van Buren county Circuit Court, commencing August 21st, 1876. John S. Hicks, Almena; William Westcott, Bangor; Downs D. GOBEVILLE LOCALS.

From Our Own Correspondent. Thinking that a few items from this vicinity would be of interest to your readers, I will jot them down. Our pleasant little village is situated in the midst of one of the best farming communities of Van Buren county, and is so nicely located that it bids fair to become the most important point on the South Haven division between Kalamazoo and the lake.

Considering the hard times, quite a number of improvements are going on at present.—Mr. David Loveland has almost completed a fine residence. Mr. Warren Goble and Mr. William Rhoades have their well under way, and expect to complete them early in the fall. Dr. A. E. Bulson has thoroughly retilled his, giving it a new coat of paint inside and out, and adding to his premises a well-curb which will be "a thing of beauty and a joy forever."

During harvest our usually busy merchants have had leisure from the press of business to print their books and devise plans for the fall trade, which is expected will be a large one.

Our worthy townsman, Mr. G. B. Boughton, has added to his business of druggist a department for the manufacture and sale of musical instruments. Those who are interested in this line of trade, should call on him and be shown through his manufacturing department. Some nice machinery may be seen in operation.

Our farmers have secured their harvest in good shape, though not as large a crop as some years. The wheat is of excellent quality, and will bring as large a price as any in market.

The citizens of our village and vicinity will be glad to learn that Mr. Wilcox, of Geneva, has located here for the purpose of carrying on a larger shop. His place of business will be in the Comstock block, second door north.

Died, June 30th, 1876, at his residence in Waverly, Joseph Brotherton, aged 66.

July 8th, 1876, at his residence in Waverly, Ogden M. Alger, aged 66.

In these deaths, two of the pioneers of Waverly have been taken from the scene of their former labors. Settling at an early date on or near the farms they occupied at the time of death they had by hard and incessant toil made for themselves and their families comfortable homes in what was a wilderness.

These men began life on the same day and but a short time intervened between their resting from their labors.

Died.—At Paw Paw, June 30th, Mrs. Sally Munn, in her 92d year. She was able to read until two weeks before her death; retained her memory and reason in a remarkable degree until her last sickness. She had been a member of the regular Baptist church for fifty years, but could not attend public worship on account of deafness. Her funeral sermon was preached by Rev. H. West, from John 11, 25: "I am the resurrection and the life."

The following lines were composed by my great-grandma Munn when in her 91st year, for a leaf in my album:

There is one leaf reserved for me,
From all thy dear memorial fee,
Oh, may I thus within your mind
One little vacant corner find,
Where no memorial yet is seen—
Where no impression yet has been.
Oh, it shall be my sweetest care
To write my name forever there.
Sally Munn.
CLARA E. LEE.

The South Bend Ind., Register says: A fragment of the fiery body which passed over the city on Saturday evening, fell in the yard of one of our German citizens residing on Scott street, in the First ward, who is so modest that he refuses to allow his cognomen to go into print. It was seen to fall by the lady of the house, and appeared, she says, like a ball of fire. She was greatly alarmed, and locked herself up in the house, where she remained until her husband came home, when she informed him of what had occurred. He immediately proceeded to the spot designated by his wife, and there found the fragment before mentioned. It is about the size of a hen's egg, and in shape greatly resembles a common rough stone, with veins of iron running through it, and in several places covered with copper-colored spots. It is a valuable specimen, and has been sent to Notre Dame university for analysis.

Items From Ohio.

Correspondence of the True Northerner. Now, in our modern time, we cast a furtive glance over the past and behold the great stride progression has made in the improvements of travel, with the ease and convenience by which we move along, seemingly, almost with the velocity of a planet; yet, at the same time, affording all the opportunities for observation of scenes and events that are transpiring along our route. Many of the readers of the TRUE NORTHERNER, in passing over the different railroads of our country, have had the opportunity of riding through a tunnel, when sudden darkness would almost obscure the light, and at first frighten them into forebodings that seemed ominous of coming evil; and then again to emerge from the gloomy recess into expanding light beyond would afford a relief gratifying indeed that better and brighter times were to come.

In my peregrinations through Ohio, Youngstown has been the dark tunnel of my experience. For with its darkened prospects at the present time and the condition of its people, as they appear from their present surroundings with their hundreds of saloons, certainly the future to many poor families is pitiable in the extreme.

Far brighter aspects presented themselves in a journey of thirteen miles westward to the beautiful village of Warren, with its seven thousand people, all in circumstances of prosperity and thrift. Their beautiful dwellings, fine hotels, and court yard, forming a splendid park, not second to any I have yet seen in any State. The farmers, as they appear on the streets with their fine horses and carriages, seem prosperous and happy. From Warren to Ravenna the country is undulating and fine.—The numerous herd of cows, feeding in the rich pastures, are abundant proof that untold wealth lies in store for the dairyman as his harvest appears. Ravenna is a beautiful town of about five thousand inhabitants. It lies within the limits of the western reserve, and has everything to boast of in richness of soil and the prosperity of its people. Many inquirers were made after our good neighbors, the Messers. Crane, now residing near Paw Paw Court Square, who formerly lived near this village. In brief, let me say, they, as citizens, are held in grateful remembrance by many of the intelligent people of Ravenna; and many kind regards were spoken in their behalf with lasting recollections.

From Ravenna we go to Cleveland to celebrate the centennial 4th. The country is delightful on this route. The celebration splendid! Indeed, Cleveland outdone herself in grand demonstrations. The Amphitheatre, with its five thousand little children, the girls all dressed in white, and as they arose and sang that soul inspiring song, "America," the very air above, around, everywhere, seemed to swell with patriotism. Like an inflated balloon, until finally it burst with shouts and huzzas from the mouths of 170,000 people, making Monumental Park tremble with its reverberations enough to convince any reasonable mind that Rutherford B. Hayes would be our next President. The mimic battle on Lake Erie representing the capture of the British ship by Commodore Perry in 1813 was indescribably grand. As the fleet of thirty two steamboats and vessels sailed out of the harbor and took their positions with warlike attitude, and when our man-of-war, "Michigan," with her armament and equipage of bristling guns, opened her broadsides upon the ill-fated combatants, it seemed to possess all that reality could require for effect on this momentous occasion. In short, 'twas fine! It took the people of Cleveland to celebrate the 4th.—"Would like to give a more general description, but I even now apprehend that the sensors are already in your hand, and I forbear."

From Cleveland we return to Ravenna. Mine host at the Etna greets us with his blindest smile and inquires at once in regard to his former neighbor Crane, of Paw Paw. I have only to reply that I have been to Cleveland to celebrate. From there we pass over to Akron. Like Jerusalem of old, this very pleasant town is situated on, and surrounded by hills. In population it numbers 16,000. The Cuyahoga and Tuscarawas rivers run through this place, affording facilities unequalled for manufactories of all kinds; and the enterprising inhabitants have not been slow in their efforts to build up a prosperous community. The numerous machine shops, resper and trower establishments, glass factory, match factory, and many other institutions that give it enterprise and vim.—We go up to the college; it is a large building standing upon a fine eminence, which gives it an imposing look, but for beauty of style it does not compare with that one so superbly fine situated in our pleasant village of Paw Paw.

Along the route from Akron to Ashland the farmers are very busy in their harvest, trying to secure their grain. The excessive rains render it very discouraging in Ohio at the present time. A great deal of hay has been spoiled and many farmers have already turned their stock into their meadows to recover, if possible, the waste and to receive its benefit in a different direction. A journey of sixteen miles brings us to Mansfield, situated on a fine rise of ground, giving the inhabitants a beautiful view of the surrounding country, with its network of railroad lines coming into its prosperous village.

MANSFIELD, July 18th. G.

Somewhat has written to a Boston newspaper complaining that Santa Barbara, Cal., is not a good place for consumptives. And therefore the Santa Barbara Press is highly exercised.—One thing is too often overlooked in this matter, and that is, that in a certain stage of this disease the only place good for a consumptive is his own freize, where he should take as much comfort as the skeleton of death, which is his vis-a-vis, will let him. People in the last stages of consumption should not bother about sanitariums. Nothing will do them any good. Too many of these unfortunates cannot be made to realize this; and when it is too late, they rush off post haste to California, Florida, Nice, Mentone, and a hundred other boasted sanitariums. There is too much credible evidence and intelligent opinion in support of all Southern California as a remedy for consumption in its incipient stages to admit of questioning the claims of our section. We can rescue a man from the grasp of death when he has only one foot in the grave. But when he is landed there, body, boots and breeches, all the climates of the world cannot take him out of the sepulcher. We cannot, like Christ, restore the dead Lazarus to life, but we can do a good and beneficent office with our climate, viz: make robust persons out of invalids who would soon be confirmed consumptives in the rigors of the Eastern seasons.

Longfellow: "Men of genius are often dull in society; as the blazing meteor when it descends to the earth is only a stone."

Eleanor Kirk, the author, has just received a handsome horse from a man out in Iowa, who knows her only through her books.

William Cullen Bryant says that he wrote Thanatopsis beneath a group of majestic forest trees at his home in Cummington, Mass., being then in his 18th year.

While visiting Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, Dom Pedro renewed his acquaintance with a young lady—a Miss Gertrude Thomas—whom he once exchanged cards at the top of the Pyramids.

Mrs. Livermore thinks the country would be shocked to hear that the Vassar girls had held a champagne supper and gotten drunk at it, while the country hears such things of college boys with solid unconcern.

Moncure Conway says Father Hyacinthine has shown, during his present English visit, "surpassing powers of eloquence and enthusiasm," and suggests that it might be a good idea to employ him to teach the secret of preaching.

Miss Kate Bennett is giving swimming lessons at Rockaway beach. Her pupils are women, and she is an advocate of the sensible theory that everybody should know how to swim.—Among her pupils is a woman more than sixty years old.

Miss G. E. Watson, formerly of Vassar college, has adopted the profession of "lecturer for schools and lyceums." Her subjects are English Literature, and Modern History, also Elizabeth Barrett Browning, and Free Thought vs. Sacerdotalism.

Mrs. Swisshelm invites folks to go to Saxony, where she is traveling, and see feeble, gray-haired women loaded with panniers enough for a donkey, bending and tottering under their burdens, or pulling loads which tax their strength to the utmost, while nice young men walk beside them, smoking and chatting condescendingly.

Miss Burdett Conitts and Baroness Lionel Rothschild are household names in England, where these ladies have not only expended large sums for the public, but have personally inspected their good work, visited the poor in their homes and hovels, and cheered, by their presence almost as much as by their money, the heart that distress has made its own.
