A letter received last Monday by Decatur Downing contained the not unexpected information that Frank Millington's death was caused by his own act, the result of a dose of morphine. The drug was taken on Saturday evening, April 16, and the victim lingered until Sunday morning. Will Downing, brother of Mrs. Millington, left for San Antonio, Texas, immediately upon receipt of the telegram, and the letter referred to stated that they would start for Mich. on the 24 instant. The deceased was a young man of much natural talent and many good traits of character, but learned all too early that "the way of the transgressor is hard," and his life might well prove a useful lesson to every wild and wayward youth.

A. C. Glidden last Thursday had a rather expensive reminder that neither the laws of gravity, nor frisky tendencies of sober family steeds are to be ignored with impunity. Mr. G. was enduring the trials and tribulations incident to the moving of household goods. With great equanimity and little forethought he had piled a very top-heavy load of furniture into his narrow platform wagon and was all ready to drive out of the yard when he remembered some wished-for article in an upper chamber. Leaving his reliable horse standing untied, he calmly went in quest of said article when, presto! the furniture was on the ground in a heap, and the steed in the road vigorously kicking himself free from some clinging fragments of the wrecked wagon. Now A. C. always ties his horse whenever he leaves him, and does not advocate the packing of too many tall articles into one load.

Important Announcement.

On Saturday, April 23, the Ladies Lecture Association held its annual meeting for the election of officers and general summing up of the year's work. The large proportion of members in attendance denoted an unflagging interest in the good cause, and a surplus of $79 in the treasury was a substantial testimony to the good patronage extended to the Course during the year. All this was very encouraging, but a review of the situation developed the fact that a good deal of canvassing had to be done last fall, before the ladies felt it safe to go on with the extended Course laid out. In view of the universal satisfaction which the lectures have given during these two years, and the general desire expressed by the public that the Association should continue its work, the ladies one and all expressed their unwillingness to do any more canvassing; and it was unanimously voted to let the people at large decide whether or not there should be a Lecture Course for next year. Therefore, it was decided to adjourn for one month, within which time all persons desirous of a Course would have ample opportunity to give their names to some one of the officers and indicate the number of tickets they would take. At the expiration of the month the Association will meet and, if enough names are pledged, will make further arrangements. If not, the Association will disband.

In considering the matter, do not forget how little trouble it will be for the head of each family to hand in his name personally, or to drop a postal in the office, and do not fail to remember the injustice of requiring the ladies to add the unnecessary labor of canvassing to the many necessary duties connected with the work.

In order to make advantageous bargains with the lecture bureaus, the contracts must be made in the summer. Perhaps some may think that it would be safe enough to make such contracts and trust to the interest awakened during the past two years for the necessary funds; but the ladies think, if the public is not interested enough to send in names, it is not to be relied upon; and besides, the excellence of the Course is always largely determined by the number of season tickets, since bad weather and other causes unite to make the single ticket fund a very indeterminate quantity and one not to be taken too largely into account.

If a Course of lectures is given, it will consist of seven entertainments for $1.50, and the management will endeavor to profit by any failures of the past, especially in the concert line. The newly elected officers are as follows:—

President, Mrs. Cora D. Martin.
1st Vice-Pres't, Mrs. Arlette Bangs.
2d Vice-Pres't, Mrs. Lottie Warner.
Secretary, Miss Clara Anderson.
Treasurer, Mrs. Rose Miller.
Any of the above mentioned will be glad to put your name on the list. If you are interested, attend to the matter at once and see that your easy-going neighbor does like-wise, for a month soon slips away, and the ladies mean what they say.

Concert Program.

The following program will be given in the Presbyterian church this evening, beginning promptly at 8 o'clock:

- Miss May A. Phelps, Soprano.
- Miss Jessie Livingstone, Elocutionist.
- Miss Gertrude M. Snow, Pianiste.
- Prof. S. B. Morse, Pianist.
- Rhapsodie No. 2.....List

- S. S. Buckley.....Dudley Buck
- Value Caprice.....Miss Phelps
- Our Railroads.....Rubenstein
- William Tell.....Miss Snow
- Mr. Morse, Miss Snow.....Anon.
- Gottschalk.....Anon.

Prof. Morse and Miss Snow are too well known to need any recommendation regarding their musical ability, while those who heard Miss Phelps at the opening of the Presbyterian parlors can attest to the sweetness of her singing. Of Miss Livingstone's share in an entertainment given in Kalamazoo last February, the Telegraph says: "The recitation, 'Ruggles' Dinner Party,' by Miss Jessie Livingstone, was one of the best features of the program." The admission fee is 25 cents for adults; children under twelve years, 15 cents.

Fashion's Fads.

The chilly atmosphere and wintry aspect of last Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday were not calculated to make the ladies feel any very pressing need of a new Spring hat; but Mrs. Hamilton's announcement that she would give a grand millinery opening on those days was sufficient to call them out in force, and they were well rewarded by the fine array of trimmed hats that awaited their inspection, all attesting the good taste and skill of Miss Dexter. Hats of every hue and material,—of French crepe, of lace, of crepe de Chine, of flowers, of ribbon, of tulle, and especially of fancy straw in all varieties. Airy, fanciful creations Dame Fashion has decreed for this season's wear, with a tendency toward startling effects and brilliant colors, though it is said that many hats will be made to match suits. The new ribbons and flowers are unusually beautiful, and she who could not find something to suit her taste and purse in the large assortment exhibited at this opening, must indeed be hard to suit.

The May Century, in addition to the serials now running, will contain complete stories by Thomas Nelson Page and Wolcott Balestier, and a humorous skit by Harry Stillwell Edwards, author of "Two Runaways."
