Melbourne, a City That Planned.

There is and always has been a great amount of public spirit in Melbourne, one in large part, to the Scotch element that has predominated from the beginning. "The first citizens, led by Scots, as a rule, set to work with magnificent faith in the future. A city was planned worthy of being the capital of 10,000,000 people, and the public buildings were designed on the same generous scale. The soil on the site was deep and rich. That suggested tree planting, and most of the streets are today relieved by handsome foliage, and the parks which ring the city round have trees worthy of the forests of Europe. The avenue of elms in Fitzroy gardens certainly represents that tree at its best.—Bishop E. E. Hoss in Dallas News.

The Blind Man's Lantern.

A blind man in Khootea (a Caucasian village) came back from the river one night bringing a pitcher of water and carrying in his hand a lighted lantern. Some one meeting him said: "You're blind. It's all the same to you whether it's day or night. Of what use to you is a lantern?" "I don't carry the lantern in order to see the road," replied the blind man, "but to keep some foot like you from running against me and breaking my pitcher."

Not a Gay One.

"Do you believe all men are gay deceivers?" asked Mrs. Twobble.

"No, indeed," answered Mrs. Dubwaite. "There's Mr. Dubwaite, for instance."

"Yes?"

"In his efforts to deceive me he even goes so far as to shed tears."—Birmingham Age-Herald.
