ANOTHER SUCCESS ADDED TO LOCAL CO. INVENTIONS.

The Moonlight Bait company have added a new invention to their large list of indispensable articles for sportsman. It is a detachable boat seat which folds in a small space and can be easily and quickly attached to and detached from the seat of any boat. The frame is of round steel and the seat and back is made of imitation leather. H. E. Ball of the local company is the inventor of the seat, which is protected by patents and it is manufactured in the company's plant at this place.

It was designed primarily for fishermen, and has found a ready sale among people who enjoy boating, but who never handle a fishing rod. The cut herewith will give some idea of the newest addition to the Moonlight Bait company long list of successes.

FOSTER WOULD MAKE NEGATIVE OF SOLDIER BOYS.

Paw Paw's patriotic photographer desires The True Northerner to state that he would like to make a negative of every soldier boy who goes to the front from Paw Paw. He will make this negative without cost and keep the same on file, so if anything should happen, a late picture could be obtained at any time. This is a very patriotic and thoughtful thing for Mr. Foster to do, and it is to be hoped that every young man who responds to the Call to the Colors from this community will take advantage of his offer. In connection with this timely and generous suggestion, and also at the request of Mr. Foster we publish herewith that patriotic poem, "Somebody's Darling."

SOMEBODY'S DARLING.

In to a ward of the whitewashed halls
Where the dead and the dying lay,
Wounded by bayonets, shells and balls
Somebody's darling was borne one day
Somebody's darling, so young and brave;
Wearing yet on his sweet pale face—
Soon to be hid in the dust of the grave
The lingering light of his boyhood's grace.

Matted and damp are the curls of gold
Kissing the snow of that fair young brow,
Pale are the lips of delicate mould—
Somebody's darling is dying now.
Back from his beautiful blue-veined brow
Brush his wandering waves of gold;
Cross his hands on his bosom now—
Somebody's darling is still and cold.

Kiss him once for somebody's sake,
Murmur a prayer soft and low;
One bright curl from its fair mate take—
They were somebody's pride, you know.
Somebody's hand hath rested here—
Was it a mother's, soft and white?
Or have the lips of a sister fair
Been baptized in their waves of light?

God knows best. He has somebody's love,
Somebody's heart enshrined him there,
Somebody wafts his name above,
Night and morn, on the wings of prayer.
Somebody wept when he marched away
Looking so handsome, brave and grand;
Somebody's kiss on his forehead lay,
Somebody clung to his parting hand.

Somebody's watching and waiting for him,
Yearning to hold him again to her heart;
And there he lies with his blue eyes dim,
And the smiling childlike lips apart.
Tenderly bury the fair young dead—
Pausing to drop on his grave a tear.
Carve on the wooden slab o'er his head:
"Somebody's darling slumbers here."
