

"Your Nose Knows"

All smoking tobaccos use some flavoring. The Encyclopaedia Britannica says about the manufacture of smoking tobacco, "... on the Continent and in America certain 'sauces' are employed... the use of the 'sauces' is to improve the flavour and burning qualities of the leaves."

Tuxedo uses chocolate—the purest, most wholesome and delicious of all flavorings! Everybody likes chocolate—we all know that chocolate added to anything as a flavoring always makes that thing still more enjoyable. That is why a dash of chocolate, added to the most carefully selected and properly aged burley tobacco, makes Tuxedo more enjoyable—

"Your Nose Knows"

Try This Test: Rub a little Tuxedo briskly in the palm of your hand to bring out its full aroma. Then smell it deep—its delicious, pure fragrance will convince you. Try this test with any other tobacco and we will let Tuxedo stand or fall on your judgment—

The Schiars of The Paw Paw High School have recently discussed as a part of their history work, that great question which is now agitating the minds of two continents, to-wit: "The League of Nations". Through the courtesy of Supt. Kaye The True Northerner is permitted to publish herewith two of these splendid papers. One, by Miss Lena Maxham, presenting arguments in opposition to the proposed "League of Nations", the other by Tom Poole, with arguments favoring the same:—

The League of Nations

By Lena Maxham

A few days ago in an edition of a noon paper which was circulated, I read news—News which perhaps startled the world—that George Clemenceau, the great leader of France, in the heroic war which has terminated in her victory, was the object of an assassin's bullet. Fortunately for humanity's sake, Clemenceau lived. I mention this, because it seems to me that it is a symptom of a disease which is afflicting the world and social affairs. Assassination is a weapon of those who have taken up the cause of international revolution which is now beginning to be active in the United States as well as in the countries of Europe and which needs to be cured by the establishment of definite and permanent peace.

There are two divisions of men upon this question. One of these divisions advocates the proposition that before we established present peace, we should provide, by some as yet ill-defined means, for permanent and universal future peace. The other division of men who are interested in this great question believe in the contrary, that the first duty of the world is to establish present peace, to restore order in Europe, and that instead of satisfying ourselves with interest in the future welfare of mankind the leaders of the government should demonstrate their sincerity by relieving the present suffering which afflicts the world.

There is still another division of public opinion upon this question. They believe that permanent peace cannot be secured for the United States or for the rest of the world by the traditional policies of the American government. Those who take that view of the matter believe that in order to arrive at a satisfactory basis of peace, not only must we ignore and neglect the duty of bringing the present war to an end, but that we should cast aside, as the refuse of government, the great policies of the past and adapt new policies, and make, as they express it, "a new order in the world".

The other party believes that the great men who have formulated public opinion in America in the past, shaped its policies, and achieved its greatness, were as sincere and as intelligent advocates of peace—permanent peace—as those who are in charge of American affairs today.

So the question arises, was Washington a friend of peace? Did he desire the world to dwell in amity and good will, one nation with another? And so the question arises—what purpose did Washington warn us against foreign policies? was his purpose war, or was not his purpose the same which is now proclaimed throughout the world to secure peace, maintain good will among nations, and security and happiness among the people of the world? I think that was the object of Washington's advice against entangling alliances. Was it the purpose of Monroe, when he in an earlier generation than ours, proclaimed that famous policy which

This is the Stove Polish YOU Should Use

It's different from others because more care is taken in the making and the materials used are of higher grade.

Black Silk Stove Polish

Makes a brilliant, silky polish that does not rub off or dust off, and the shine lasts four times as long as ordinary stove polish. Used on sample stoves and sold by hardware and grocery dealers.

All we ask is a trial. Use it on your cook stove, your parlor stove or your gas range. If you don't find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Insist on Black Silk Stove Polish. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.
