From the right the Printing Press should be, The tyrant's foe, the champion of the free; Faithful and constant to its sacred trust; Calm in its utterance, in its judgments just; Wise in its teaching; incorrupt and strong; To speed the right and to denounce the wrong.

PULASKI, TENN.

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 6th, 1896.

The right man in the right place—a husband at home in the evening.

All "Center" and no circumference—the Fenian affair.

Slight changes make great differences. "Dinner for nothing" is quite agreeable, but you can't say as much of "nothing for dinner."

An exchange comes to us with a notice of "Truth is crowded out of this issue." This is almost as bad as the up-country editor, who said, "For the evil effects of intoxicating drinks see our outside."

An exchange says that a lady in putting on her corset, is like a man who drinks to drown his grief, because in "so-lacing" herself she is "getting tight." Whereupon, some weak-minded wretch suggests that it is rather the corset, than the lady that is "getting on a 'bust'."

A TALE OF WOE.—"I clasped her tiny hand in mine, I clasped her beautiful form; I vowed to shield her from the wind, and from the world's cold storm. She set her beautiful eyes on me, the tears did wildly flow; and with her little lips she said—'Confound you, let me go!'"

A hog does not sweat like a horse or a man, but through his forelegs. There is a spot on each leg, just below the knee, in the form of a sieve. And it is necessary that this is kept open. If it gets closed, as it sometimes the case, the hog will get sick; he will appear stiff and cramped—and unless he gets relief it will go hard with him. To cure him, simply open the pores. This is done by rubbing the spot with a corn-cob and washing with warm water.

A lawyer and a doctor was disputing the other day about a bill a fellow owed each of them. He was only able to pay one of them, so he left the matter to themselves who ought to have the money. "I ought to have the money, as a matter of course," said the lawyer, "for I saved the fellow from going to the penitentiary." "Well," said the doctor, "I saved him from h—ll." "Well, unless for us to add which got the CURE A KICKING HORSE.—Fasten a band to the fore foot and pass it over the hind back to the other. With this band there will be no trouble to the driver in holding up the foot whenever the horse tries to kick, but discouraging trouble to the horse, and a trouble he will avoid any time he is being involved in many times.—String this in your own hand, and determine under all circumstances not to lose your patience with the any kicker can be cured.

At the time of the explosion of the nitro-glycerine in the yard of Wells, Fargo & Co., in San Francisco, a lad was sitting at his desk writing, while plastering and timber fell around, without so much as hurting a hair on his head. The same boy was sitting on the paddle-box of the steamer Yosemite when she was blown up, on a trip to Sacramento, and was blown entirely across the river, when he coolly swam back to the wreck to offer assistance to the less fortunate passengers.

A Good Hit. The following racy examination of a candidate for admission to the bar is taken from the Western Law Journal, and is decidedly a good hit. The examination commences with—

"Do you smoke, sir?"
"I do, sir."
"Have you a spare cigar?"
"Yes, sir." (Extending a short six.)
"Now, sir, what is the first duty of a lawyer?"
"To collect fees."
"Right. What is the second?"
"To increase the number of his clients."
"When does your position toward your client change?"
"When making a bill of costs."
"Explain."

"We then occupy the antagonistic position. I assume the character of plaintiff, and he becomes the defendant."
A suit decided, how do you stand with the lawyer conducting the other side?"
"I look by jowl."

"Enough, sir, you promise to become obedient to your profession, and I wish to see you. Now, are you aware of the law?"
"Perfectly."
"Describe it."
"It is to invite you to drink."
"But, suppose I decline?"
"The candidate scratches his head."

"There is no instance of the kind on record in the books. I cannot answer that question."
"You are right; the confidence with which you make the assertion shows you have read the law attentively. Let's take another, and I will

How does a hair-dresser end his days? He curls and dyes. And a sculptor? He makes faces and busts.

RATES OF POSTAGE.
In consequence of the general ignorance in the South of the rules of postage established by law, many letters of importance are daily lost to those interested by being improperly or insufficiently stamped. The regulations require that all such letters dropped into post offices shall be immediately forwarded to the Dead Letter office, where they are never heard from unless they contain money, or other enclosures of value. We give below the information which may prevent vexation to correspondents:

The rate of postage on letters within the United States is 3 cents for every letter or sealed package weighing one-half ounce or under. Those over one-half ounce, 6 cents and 8 cents for every additional half ounce. Payment with stamps in all cases is required. All letters without the necessary postage stamps, or which are stamped with revenue stamps, will be forwarded to the Dead Letter office immediately after being dropped into any post office. Postage stamps issued prior to 1890 are worthless, and will not answer for present purposes.

Opinions of Distinguished Business Men.
"Advertise your business. Do not hide your light under a bushel. Whatever your calling or occupation may be, if it needs support from the public, advertise it thoroughly and efficiently in some shape or other, that will arrest public attention. I freely confess that what success I have had in life may fairly be attributed more to the public press than to nearly all the other causes combined. There may possibly be occupations that do not require advertising, but I cannot well conceive what they are.—P. T. BARNUM.
"I have always considered advertising liberally and long to be the great medium of success in business, and the pride to wealth. And I have always made it an invariable rule, too, to advertise in the fullest time, a long experience having taught me that money thus spent is well laid out; as by keeping my business continually before the public, has secured me many sales that I otherwise would have lost.—S. J. COOK, RIVERSIDE.
"Whatever success I may have had in business I owe mainly to continuous advertising, and I deem it good policy to advertise long in the same papers. From a close observation I am fully convinced that it is impossible to make much headway in any kind of business, without the facilities which the press alone can give.—JACOB KINSEY.
"My motto through life has been, work and advertise. In business, advertising is the true philosopher's stone, that turns whatever it touches to gold. I have advertised much, both in the weekly as well as the daily papers; nor have I found that those of the largest circulation, of either class, benefited me the most.—JAMES JACOB ASTOR.
"Advertise! advertise! advertise! This is the life of trade; and standing advertisements, you will find, will prove the most remunerative, at least I have found so during my business career; this fact, for should you withdraw but a single week from the paper in which you are accustomed to advertise, ten to one that would be the time when some would be new customers will look into the paper for your business address, and not finding it, you will lose several profitable sales.—WILLIAM GRAY.
