"The speaker then drifted upon the slavery question. He made the startling announcement that four million 'happy people' had been set adrift to starve, to please England; that five hundred thousand of those 'happy' slaves had already died, and that an equal number were diseased unto death."

George Francis Train uttered the truth when he said this, at a late Fenian meeting in Chicago.

Princess Muratt arrived in Boston on Wednesday last week, on her way from France to Florida, where, before the war, she possessed a large amount of property in negroes and lands. The Emperor Napoleon has given her a pension of 20,000 francs a year. She is the grand-daughter of Joseph Muratt, once King of Naples; her great-grandmother was a sister of Washington.

We see in one of our exchanges the proposition gravely made to run at the next Presidential election Benjamin F. Butler, of Massachusetts, for President, and Wm. G. Brownlow, of Tennessee, for Vice-President. The one to represent the courage, military skill and honesty of New England; the other, the piety, truth and decency of the Southern loyalists.

An exchange says a thunderbolt from a perfectly cloudless sky struck a church and three dwelling houses at Rising Sun, Indiana, a few days ago. It killed one girl and stripped all the clothing from a boy, whom, strange to say, it only stunned. A more remarkable electrical phenomenon has rarely occurred.

It is said that Gen. T. F. Meagher, acting Governor of Montana, has recanted his radical opinion, and come out for President Johnson.

To the eyes of a correspondent of the London Times, Brownlow's attitude in the carriage at Philadelphia was a most startling picture of vulgar ease. To the eyes of most gentlemen, his general attitude is that of a long-eared "vulgar" animal.

A Southern Debtor's Letter.

A Philadelphia creditor reminded his Southern brother, of "that little bill," and has received the following reply: "Sir: Yours of September 18th is to hand. It is very true that the amount stated is very small to you, but hard to raise by one who has been plundered and despoiled by a set of thieves and out-throats. It is no fault of mine that you have not been paid long since. I think any one who has the soul of a man in him would be willing to wait on a Southern debtor; but we begin to think there is not much soul in the North."

The Crescent states a curious fact in reference to the commerce of New Orleans. Instead of being exporters of sugar and molasses, it was formerly the case, both are now largely imported.

CONFEDERATE bonds were quoted in the Liverpool market on the 27th of October at five and a half to six pence on the dollar.—This price was maintained, says the European Times, on "the idea that the quarrel between the President and Congress may result in something favorable to the Southern States and their creditors."
