

Holt County Sentinel.

Oregon, Missouri.

FRIDAY MORNING, DEC. 13, 1867.

NEWS SUMMARY.

The Missouri Legislature meets on the first Wednesday of January.

The subject of impeachment was brought to a final vote in the House on last Saturday, and was voted down by a large majority. The vote stood, for impeachment, 51; against, 108.

The State Convention of Alabama has passed an ordinance exempting from seizure for debt, $1,000 worth of personal property, and a homestead of 80 acres for the head of each family.

Mails from China and Japan were received at New York on the 5th inst., via San Francisco and the Union Pacific Railroad. Time, forty-one days from Japan, and fifteen days between New York and San Francisco.

The message of President Johnson was published in London before it had reached many of the remote sections of our own country. The London Times commenting on the message says: "The message shows that Mr. Johnson has learned nothing. He transcends himself in impudence. He regards his office as absolute as sovereigns do their prerogatives. He forfeits all respect." Other journals use similar language.

The Italian Government has granted universal amnesty to the adherents of Garibaldi.

MEXICAN advices of the 29d ult., state that several persons who have been elected to Congress are in prison, and a number of others are hiding from the authorities for fear of being arrested and thrown into jail the moment they show themselves. There is a probability that war will break out between Mexico and Guatemala in regard to the boundary question, and in case of such war, it is said the Imperialists will give aid and support to Guatemala. It has been promulgated that the same punishment meted out to Imperialists who remained in Mexico at the close of the war, will be meted out to those who are absent from their homes, when they return.

By an extra of the Gallatin Missourian, we learn that two of the Daviess county robbers have been arrested and are now in confinement at Gallatin. One of them, named Sparks, was arrested at Seymour, Ind.; the other, named John Reno, at Indianapolis, Ind. Reno is denominated the great chief of Indiana and Missouri burglars. No money has yet been recovered, but the prospects for its recovery are good. The Missourian says:

"The cry is—'Hang them without judge or jury. Such men deserve no mercy.' The excitement is great, and was it not for the indefatigable efforts of the officers this would be done, and may anyhow."

ROBERT J. WALKER, who was Secretary of the Treasury under Polk, and subsequently a member of Jeff. Davis' rebel Cabinet, is preparing a financial scheme which he proposes as the proper one for the Government to adopt.

There's coolness and impudence for you. Wonder what his scheme is. Perhaps to repudiate the whole debt and commence anew. His antecedents should recommend him to Andy as a successor to McCullough. A criminal before a court instructing his judge as to the proper sentence to pass, would be a parallel case of sublime impudence to that of Bob Walker.—[Lancaster (Mo.) Excelsior.]

Robert J. Walker was Secretary of the Treasury under Polk, but never was a member of Jeff. Davis' Cabinet. He was a friend of Secretary Chase's, an ardent and influential Unionist, and sent by Mr. Lincoln on a special financial mission to Europe. He was also co-editor of the Philadelphia Continental Monthly during the war, and we venture to say that no truer and fewer able Union men or Radicals were in the country.

TO THE IOWA LINE.—The Railroad is now completed from Council Bluffs to the Iowa line; the rails being laid and the track in running order to Hamburg on Friday. In a few days trains will run regularly from Council Bluffs to Hamburg, there connecting with the coaches of the Western Stage Line to Savannah, thence by the Missouri Valley Railroad to this city; by this arrangement the time between Council Bluffs will be reduced several hours.—[St. Joseph Herald.]

GRANT.
Since the late elections quite a stir has been created in different parts of the country in the interest of Gen. Grant for President. Whether it is but a momentary flash, and will vanish without any practical results, is still uncertain. There has been a strong effort put forth to make it appear that the Republicans are about to select Grant for their captain in the coming campaign. Still we have failed to observe sufficient evidence to conclude that the masses of the Republican party are ready to do this. What gives the prospect in this direction a doubtful cast, is the attempt of several minor assemblages of the conservative stripe to make the great military chieftain their leader also. It is urged by Republicans who clamor for Grant, that he should be taken up on account of availability—that it will be "policy," in view of the conservative shade of the late elections—which is nothing less than a tacit admission of the uncertain relation he occupies to the party. Amidst these party contentions Grant preserves the same mysterious immobility manifested by him during the military campaigns of the war. Then it was necessary; while now we think he should unveil his purposes to his friends. If he accepts the nomination of a Republican convention upon the platform of equal political and civil rights to all, every earnest Republican and loyalist in the nation can endorse him. But so far he has left Republicans in doubt as to his position. Indeed we doubt if he has any aspirations for the Presidency, seeing his reticence on politics, and that he now holds the exalted and lucrative position of General-in-Chief, which is for a life time if he wills it; neither can we think he will McClellanize himself by accepting a nomination at the hands of the conservatives. We doubt much if he will be the next Republican candidate for President. There are other prominent men before the people, among whom are mentioned CHASE, STANTON, and COLFAX, whose positions are well known, and about which not a doubt exists in the public mind. Republicans, we think, will not need such another example of betrayal as that of Johnson to teach them wisdom. They will call out men who give forth no uncertain sound. If GRANT proves finally to be the man, we say amen, but present indications do not point to it.

WORK ON THE COUNCIL BLUFFS RAILROAD.

This road is now graded from St. Joseph to beyond Forest City, a distance of thirty-four miles, and is ready for the track for that distance with the exception of some few intervals, in all not more than three miles. At the same time the road is progressing from the Iowa State line, and is already prepared for the ties to a point at least ten miles south of Hamburg. On Monday workmen will commence to lay the track.

W. & J. W. Phelps have contracted for the construction of the road from this city to the Iowa line: they are men of ample energy and means and will undoubtedly complete the work by the 1st day of July next—the time specified in the contract. They have under them ten sub-contractors with over two thousand laborers and five hundred teams. As an idea of the magnitude of the work, we state that the contract price for the same is $1,200,000. Mr. J. W. Phelps has general control of the work; S. W. Clapp of this city is Chief Engineer; Col. Bostwick, a distinguished officer in the Union army during the late rebellion, is chief clerk and Paymaster.—[St. Joseph Herald.]

THE ORGAN OF GEN. LYON.—The organ of the Democracy of Northwest Missouri publishes the following editorial notice of General Lyon:

"Let those who revere the memory of this dead and damned puritanical fanatic, purchase a copy of his life by all means, as for us we are no reverent and will have none of it."

We wish to call the attention of Generals Hall and Bradshaw to this choice extract. At a meeting of Democrats, engineered by these two Generals, it was voted that the newspaper, publishing the foregoing outrage on truth and decency, be regarded as the true and faithful exponent of "our party principles." After that endorsement, its editor, who claims to have once been a regular army officer, denounced Gen. Grant as "the drunken tanner of Galena." He now calls General Lyon a "dead and damned puritanical fanatic." We shall in a few days give a history of this editor's connection with the regular army, and throw a little light upon the question why he bears such malice and hatred towards every soldier who did not fight for the rebellion.—[Herald]

ORIGIN AND HISTORY OF THE BOOK OF THE BIBLE.

Both the canonical and apocryphal, showing what the Bible is not, what it is, and how to use it. (With Illustrations.) By Prof. Calvin E. Stowe, D. D., for more than thirty years Biblical Professor of Andover, Cincinnati, and other Theological Seminaries. Zeigler, McCurdy & Co., Publishers, Philadelphia, Pa., Cincinnati, Ohio, and St. Louis, Mo.

Sold only on subscription. See advertisement in another column.

This is a book greatly needed at this time, as no work on the subject has ever been accessible to readers in this country, not even to ministers of the church, except in a very few cases. Prof. Stowe is, without doubt, the most learned Biblical Scholar in the United States. With all that pertains to that book, both in ancient and modern literature, he is thoroughly familiar, and from the text of ancient manuscripts hid away for ages, to the latest controversies of German and French critics, he has gone over the whole range of evidence for and against the Scriptures, tracing their history up to their origin with the inspired authors. The vast learning he has brought to bear upon the present work, and has so skillfully employed it in his use of clear and simple language, and forcible and familiar illustrations as to make it intelligible, attractive and popular to the greatest degree.

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY, for December, contains the conclusion of Dr. Holmes' "Guardian Angel;" Minor Elizabethan Dramatists, by E. P. Whipple; Among the Workers in Silver, by James Parton; Literature as an Art, by T. W. Higginson; A Young Desperado, by T. B. Aldrich; Our Pacific Railroads, by J. K. Medbery; A Visit to the Blearish Islands, by Bayard Taylor; A Mysterious Personage, by John Neal—and six other stories, essays, and poems.

The Publishers offer a brilliant prospectus for 1868.

If Universalism be true, somebody says that Math. 7:13, ought to read: "Wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth unto salvation, and everybody goes in thereat; because straight is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto destruction, and you could not find it if you were to try."

THE HONOLULU ADVERTISER publishes an account of the discovery of land in the Arctic Ocean, by Capt. Long, of the whale-ship Nile. It is thought it will prove to be the polar continent. The past season having been the mildest ever experienced by the oldest whaler, he was enabled to reach a cape in latitude 73° and 30'. He examined the land attentively along the entire Southern coast, and sketched its appearance. It is quite elevated, and contains, near its centre, about longitude 180°, what resembled an extinct volcano, estimated at three thousand feet high. They named the country Wranglesland, after the Russian explorer who discovered the West point, latitude 70°, 46' North; longitude 78°, 30' East, and named it Cape Thomas, after the seaman who discovered the Southeast point, and named it Cape Haven. The Nile sailed several days along the coast, and approached within fifteen miles of the lower part. The land is free of snow, and appeared to be covered with vegetation. It is impossible to tell how far the land extends northward—could see ranges of mountains a long distance.

DIED.

After a long illness, Dec. 8th, CHARLES W. son of JOHN D. and CAROLINA AUST, aged 26 years, 7 months, and 8 days.

A lingering consumption, of which this young man died, was contracted while in the United States service in Colorado. Over three years he was confined to his room, and indeed to his couch. He bore his afflictions with commendable patience and resignation. We called to see him in his sickness time and again, and as often as we did so, presented to him in the plainest manner we could the subject of personal religion.

We thought when we first called to see him, that the world presented to him, as it does to the young generally, a flattering prospect; but as time wore away, so did his system under the slow ravages of disease, till at length he became convinced that death had marked him as his. In the meantime he began to look about him to see what equipment he had for the encounter with the last enemy, or what preparation he had for the judgment after death.

Though always a moral young man, as we have been informed that he was, yet he was convinced that a mere morality would not stand his stead now; and accordingly he became a close reader of the word of God, which is able to make the sinner wise unto salvation. Hence the Bible became his constant companion. The questions he would ask on points essential to the sinner's salvation, and his anxiety to know the nature of that change which the sinner must undergo in order to be saved, indicate that his mind was exercised on the saving truths of God's word.

The above, together with the repeated declaration that he gave himself up a sinful, guilty, and helpless creature, to be redeemed by Christ, constitute the foundation of our hope that he was a sinner saved by sovereign grace at the eleventh hour.
