

FOR DISTRICT JUDGE, J. T. WATKINS. FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY, A. J. MURFF. FOR REPRESENTATIVE, W. B. BOGGS. FOR SHERIFF, A. R. THOMPSON. FOR CLERK, B. A. KELLY. FOR POLICE JURORS, WARD 2, W. M. ABNEY, J. A. SEWALL. FOR JUSTICE PEACE, WARD 2, R. C. STINSON.

One of the critical battles of the war of 1812 was begun eighty-one years ago to-day. It was the heroic struggle of the American naval flotilla on Lake Borgne against the armed boats of the British fleet which composed the advance guard of the English expedition against New Orleans in 1814-15. The American naval force on this lake was commanded by Lieut. Thomas ap Catesby Jones, who had under his orders only five gunboats, the sloop Seahorse, mounting one gun and manned by fourteen men, and the sloop Alligator, carrying one gun and eight men. The flotilla carried in all only twenty-five guns and 194 men. On the night of Dec. 12, 1814, the British entered the lake in forty-two launches, carrying in all forty-two guns and 980 seamen and marines. As soon as their approach was discovered Lieut. Jones despatched the Seahorse to St. Louis Bay for the purpose of destroying some military stores. The British sent three barges against the Seahorse, but Sailing Master Robert Johnson, who commanded the sloop, made such excellent use of his single six-pounder that he compelled the barges to put back for re-enforcements. The British soon returned for a second attack with a much larger force, but after a destructive fire of half an hour they were repelled a second time. Realizing that his vessel must eventually fall a prey to overwhelming numbers, Mr. Johnson destroyed his sloop and stores and escaped to the land.

At 3 o'clock on the morning of Dec. 14 the entire British naval force advanced against the five American gunboats, which were anchored in the narrow passage of Malheureux. Just before the attack was begun two of the gunboats were carried by the swift current several hundred yards beyond the support of their consorts, and thus had to sustain the brunt of the English attack. Three of the British barges made a dash at one of these gunboats, but two of the barges were sunk and the third was compelled to retreat. All the gunboats finally were taken, but not without a desperate resistance on the part of their officers and crews. Lieut. Jones was dangerously wounded in the fight, and the command devolved upon Midshipman Parker, who continued the battle with spirit. The British did not capture the five gunboats without sustaining a far greater loss than they inflicted upon the Americans. The British commander, Capt. Lockyer, reported three midshipmen and fourteen seamen killed, and one captain, five lieutenants, three master's mates, seven midshipmen, and sixty-one seamen wounded, making a total British loss of ninety-four. The Americans had only six killed and thirty-five wounded, making a total of forty-one. The obstinate resistance of these gunboats detained the British in the swamps and lowlands much longer than they expected, and gave the American troops in New Orleans valuable time in which to prepare for the final British assault on that city.

Geo. W. Jenkins, editor of the Santa Maria Times, Cal., in speaking of the various ailments of children said: "When my children have croup there is only one patent medicine that I ever use, and that is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It possesses some medical properties that relieve the little sufferers immediately. It is, in my opinion, the best cough medicine in the market." If this remedy is freely given as soon as the croup appears it will prevent the attack. It is also an ideal remedy for whooping cough. There is no danger in giving it to children, as it contains nothing injurious. For sale by Dr. W. M. Abney, Druggist.

To the Voters of Ward 2.

In accordance with the findings and orders of the Parish Executive Committee, on the 2d day of December, 1895, I hereby announce myself as a candidate in a second race, for the office of Constable of this ward, at a primary election to be held on the 11th day of Jan., 1896, the day agreed upon by all the other candidates who did not receive a majority at the first election, and respectfully solicit the support of my friends in this friendly contest with my opponent.

On a trial by the Committee of the contest filed by Mr. J. M. Montgomery, on the 2d day of December, the following named members were present and represented, viz: H. J. Lenoir (proxy for W. H. Hodges), J. M. Arnold, J. M. Arnold (proxy for W. J. Fish), W. B. Boggs, L. G. Smith (proxy for J. F. Strayhan), L. T. Sanders, W. A. Stroud, C. H. Irion, J. A. Bumgardner, J. A. Snider and J. G. Ogden (proxy for J. F. Edwards).

This was, practically, a full committee; both parties to the contest announced ready; my opponent was represented by an attorney; both introduced proof; every matter was fully and fairly presented, and the committee, after considering the contest and proof, in executive session, declared that another election should be held to determine who should be the nominee of the party for this office. This judgment was rendered in open session, was cheerfully acquiesced in by both myself and opponent, and the matter was considered at an end.

I do not consider the action taken by a few members of the committee on the 6th day of December as binding on anyone. I at this latter meeting, there were present acting only three regular members of the committee and three proxies, all my opponents at the former election; and as there are twelve regular members, a quorum did not act.

The matter had been fully and finally settled at the former meeting. This latter meeting, on the 6th, was called solely to consider a contest from ward 1—all other matters had been finally adjudged. My friends on the committee did not expect any further action.

3. My opponent I deem an honorable gentleman, and he has told me that he did not approve the action of these members in his interest and was willing to submit to the action of the full committee that ordered another race, and I now invite him to a friendly contest on the 11th day of January, when we can submit our names to the white Democratic voters of our ward, and have them determine this matter. I deem this a question which affects the entire Democratic party of the parish, and confidently believe that another race will give entire satisfaction.

Very respectfully, W. E. MORRIS.

At a Coroner's inquest held on the "Stumpy Lake" place, on the 8th instant, over the body of Matt Carroll, the Coroner's jury failed to agree on a verdict. The main facts in the case are: That Mr. Carroll was at work on the place some three-quarters of a mile from Mr. G. A. Manuel's house getting out boards. About 4 o'clock in the evening on Friday last he was seen to come from his work in the direction of Mr. Manuel's house in a "trot," arriving at or very near the house he whirled around returning the way he came at the same gait, and after proceeding some 75 yards was seen to fall. Mr. Manuel says that when he saw him fall he thought he had stumbled or made some awkward step and waited several minutes to see him get up; but as he did not he went to see what was the matter with him, and when he got to him Carroll only breathed two or three times—life was extinct. Carroll was formerly from Coushatta, and was a very steady and quiet man. For some time prior to his death he had been in a bad state of health and was taking two or three different kinds of medicine (now in the hands of the Coroner) at the time, one of which he complained of having a "terrible effect" on him. Whether his death was due to some heart trouble or to the medicine he was taking, or to both causes combined the jury was unable to decide. There was no evidence of foul play.
