We never did think those Chicago Cubs knew the game anyhow.

Philadelphia may be sleepy in some things, but baseball isn't one of them.

Vote for all the amendments, pay your poll tax and keep on being a good citizen.

Millard says if a low voice is an excellent thing in woman, how about no voice?—Memphis Appeal-Avalanche.

Mum's the word.

We'll bet three to one on Bob Wickliffe against the field—and not three crackers to a barrel of flour, either, but genuine coin of the realm.

Barring "biles" and pins in the chair, Judge Thornton may be expected to take his seat without difficulty in December as United States senator from Louisiana.

Acadia parish is reveling in the delights of a red-hot campaign on the liquor question. The people are to vote at the election of Nov. 8 whether the saloon shall come back or go for good.

"What are the qualifications necessary for registration?" asked a resident of an adjacent parish in conversation with a neighbor. "To belong to the courthouse faction and to be on good terms with the registrar," was the response of the wise guy.

Ex-Gov. William Pitt Kellogg says Dix is going to carry New York. This is the most hopeful indication yet observed of Stimson's probable victory. The venerable ex-governor's political predictions are generally like the Irishman's dreams: they go by contraries.

Why haggle over fifteen new patches on Louisiana's crazy-quilt constitution? Put 'em all on. The state will have to get a new one before long, anyway, and the more the old thing is patched now the sooner public opinion will demand its reversion to the rag pile.

The St. Martinville Messenger suggests to the voters that if in doubt as to any of the proposed constitutional amendments, it would be well to vote against them all. That's not in accord with American law or justice. The doubt should be solved in favor of the amendments. Vote for them all.

Cardinal Logue of Ireland, who has been visiting the United States, expressed the opinion that the women would eventually win their fight for suffrage, especially in England. He said, "When a woman pays big rent and taxes she should have a voice in the expenditure of public money, but otherwise she is better without suffrage."

President Taft is said to be considering the name of Associate Justice E. D. White of Louisiana in connection with the chief justiceship of the United States supreme court. The selection would be an admirable one from every point of view, and would demonstrate beyond cavil that the president ignores political considerations and party advantage in the selection of judicial officers.

General Bill Tunard has gone down state to inquire into the Donaldsonville Chief's recent use of the words "Junior Pluvians." In fact, the Chief is familiar enough with General Bill's reserved expression to call it "Old Pluv." Go to!—Cosgrove's Weekly.

Colonel Jim was evidently misinformed as to General Bill's mission, else the Gen. got sidetracked somewhere. Moreover, we didn't refer to the mythological thunder-burster as "Old Pluv," but merely dubbed him "Jupe." Descend, Col. Jim; in other words, come off!

Only two of the fifteen constitutional amendments to be voted on by the people of Louisiana next month involve any increase of taxation, and the combined raise contemplated is that of a mill for the country parishes and one mill for the parish of Orleans. Of this $ of a mill, $ is the Panama Exposition tax and $ a good roads tax. The adoption of both amendments would still leave the rate of state taxation within the constitutional limit of 6 mills.

An Editor in Peril.

Says the St. Helena Echo—otherwise the great and only Billylum T. Holland: "This editor has been summoned to Forest Hill schoolhouse next Sunday to enter a chicken pie contest and to participate in a Sunday School rally for the benefit of the Methodist orphanage at Ruston. Mrs. Holland declares that she is going with us and carry a bottle of paregoric or something that will prevent us from killing our fool self."

Let's!

"Now, let's devote the next two months to promoting the Panama Exposition tax. This proposed amendment to the constitution means more to the state of Louisiana than all the politicians combined can accomplish in a life time. By voting for this tax, the people of Louisiana will take a giant stride in the direction of progress and development. We, as a people, cannot afford to neglect so great an opportunity."

So saith the Monroe News-Star. So saith The Chief. So say we all!

WHY STEAL THE ELECTION?

If the Democratic leaders in New Orleans had a few ounces of political gumption and would allow the leaven a chance to impregnate their systems, it seems to us they would give the Republicans a fair deal in the matter of appointing commissioners and clerks for the coming election and have the contest honestly conducted and the returns made up openly and above board.

There is every reason at this juncture why the election should be above suspicion. A Republican congress is being asked to recognize New Orleans as the Panama Exposition city. Why handicap the petition by affording our opponents in the exposition contest an opportunity to show that New Orleans is under the domination of a partisan political machine that brooks no competition and absolutely refuses to grant the people the privilege of a free election and a fair count?

Has the habit of stealing elections become so strong with the manipulators of the city machine that no sort of moral suasion is strong enough to wean them from it?

The Louisiana Republicans have been derided as being in a woful minority—a mere handful of the electorate of the state and its chief city. What honest or reasonable excuse can be offered for refusing fair play to such a minority?

PORTUGAL A REPUBLIC.

A revolution occurred in the kingdom of Portugal on Tuesday, the 4th inst. After a brief and bloody conflict in the streets of Lisbon the insurgents obtained possession of all branches of the government and proclaimed the establishment of a republic. Most of the army and navy supported the outbreak, and the success of the movement was quick and decisive.

King Manuel and the other members of the royal family escaped from the country by sea and are the guests of the British governor of Gibraltar. The vessel used in the flight is to be sent back to Portugal and surrendered to the new government.

Theophile Braga, an eminent Portuguese scholar and statesman, has been placed in the chair of president, with a cabinet of able leaders of public sentiment to assist him in directing the affairs of the republic.

A principal cause for the revolt seems to have been popular opposition to the clerical party and alleged encroachments of the authorities upon the functions of civil government. Hundreds of priests and nuns are being expelled from the country and a number of monasteries and convents have been seized as public property.

Peace prevailed throughout Portugal at latest accounts and all sections are giving allegiance and support to the new republic.

Great apprehension is felt in Spain's government circles that a similar uprising is brewing in that country.

DEMOCRACY AND THE DARKY.

It is interesting to note multiplying signs of the tendency of the negro voters of the country to divide their political allegiance between the two great parties.

And it is still more interesting to note that Democratic leaders and organizations, even in states heretofore classed with the solid south, are not only willing, but ready and anxious, to accept and seek the affiliation of the "colored brother" as a means of strengthening their selves and winning victories at the polls.

In rock-ribbed Democratic Tennessee, for instance, the regular Democrats, who supported Gov. Patterson up to the time of his withdrawal and are now in line for Senator Bob Taylor for governor, have been openly encouraging the negroes of the state to register in the hope that the black vote may be secured for the Democratic ticket and offset the wholesale defection of independent Democrats bent upon smashing the dominant political machine built up under the Patterson regime.

At the opening meeting of the Democratic campaign in the St. Louis Coliseum Tuesday evening, Oct. 18, at which two Democratic congressmen were the principal speakers, "A large delegation of negroes, who shouted for Tom Kinney and Pat Gill, congressional nominees in the twelfth and eleventh districts, caused much enthusiasm." So says the Post-Dispatch, and the other St. Louis papers describe the incident similarly.

If the result of the enlistment of a considerable proportion of the negro voters under the Democratic banner will be to eliminate the race issue from our politics and take from Democratic partisans the last vestige of justification for denouncing their opponents as "a nigger party," even Republicans will have no reason to regret the movement of the black suffragists into the hospitable camp and welcoming arms of Democracy.

Gertrude Atherton, the novelist, is quoted as indulging in a little hen-crow over the alleged growth of the smoking habit among American women. She says women have as much right as men to smoke; that female lecturers make themselves ridiculous denouncing the practice; that cigarette smoking is rapidly increasing in America, "and why shouldn't it? It's a pleasant pastime." Wherein the unfair and ungentle Gertrude makes herself much more ridiculous than any of the lecturers she criticizes. Perish the disgusting thought that the day will ever come when America's beautiful women will be found their sweet breaths, tarnish their pure lips, stain their dainty fingers in the "pleasant pastime" of consuming coffin nails! Go to, thou unfringed factionist, go to, and go quickly—and stay there!

RAISING THE MAINE.

At last it looks as if the wreck of the Maine in the harbor of Havana will be raised. The president has directed that the work be completed by Feb. 15, 1911, and preliminary investigations into the condition of the wreck and the character of its resting place are already being made. Spain has been invited to send a representative to watch the proceeding, but whether she will do so or not has not yet been learned.

That any definite information will be obtained as to the origin or cause of the explosion which wrecked the ship is probably too much to expect. It is almost certain that no adequate deductions can be drawn from the condition of the hull to warrant a conclusion that the original explosion was either internal or external. After the wreck of the Maine, and partly by reason of it, the British government caused a series of experiments to be conducted under very similar conditions, with the result that it was practically demonstrated that the effects of both internal and external explosions were so nearly the same in the bending and twisting of the plates and frames that such data furnished a very misleading and deceptive basis for any conclusion whatever. It was found that with an internal explosion over a mud bottom very near the bottom of the vessel the reaction from the bottom into the partial vacuum created by the upward blast was so immediate and so violent that the plates and frames were bent just as they would have been if the explosion had been originally external.

It will be well, therefore, for any expressions of opinion to be very conservative and for the conclusions even of experts to be accepted with reserve. At least, it is to be hoped that nothing calculated to wound the Spanish people, with whom we are now at peace, will be lightly put forth or insisted on.

Ten balloons, carrying two men each, ascended at St. Louis on the 17th instant, in an international contest for the Bennett cup. Nine of the balloons descended safely within one to five days after the beginning of the race at distances varying from 175 to 1200 miles from the starting point, but the tenth—the "America II," manned by Allen R. Hawley and Augustus Post of New York—was not heard from until the 26th, when an Associated Press despatch brought the news that the mammoth aircraft had landed all right in the wilds of Canada and had won the Bennett cup by traveling 1350 miles. Up to the time of hearing from the "America II," it was thought that the race had been won by the "Germania," which landed at Coccoche, Canada, October 21, about 1200 miles from St. Louis. The "Dusseldorf II," also a German entry, came down at Kiskissink, Canada, 1100 miles from St. Louis. All previous records for time in the air and distance covered were broken in this race.

Frank Oteri of New Orleans was convicted at Plaquemine of the murder of J. F. Stephens, a veteran of the Union army, who spent most of his time going from place to place in a motor-boat. Oteri had been the old man's companion for several weeks and the purpose of the murder was robbery. The trial lasted eight days and accused was defended by very able counsel, but the jury consumed only fifteen minutes in reaching a verdict of guilty. Unless an appeal is taken and the case remanded, the young murderer will expiate his crime on the scaffold.

The trial of Dr. H. H. Crippen, the American dentist charged in London with the murder of his wife, has ended in the conviction of the accused and his sentence to death. Miss Leneve, the young typewriter who fled from England in boy's attire with Dr. Crippen, was acquitted of complicity in the latter's crime. The date selected for the hanging of the convicted dentist was November 8, but it is announced that an appeal will be taken in the case and hence an indefinite stay of proceedings will ensue.

Noting a report that the Winnfield (La.) board of trade has made a protest against the reduction of freight rates on lumber and timber in Louisiana on the ground that "any lowering of such rates will encourage the cutting of timber, and, therefore, militate against the conservation of forests of the state," the Manufacturers' Record pertinently and laconically asks, "What next?" Don't know, unless it be the presentation of a leather medal to the Winnfield board of trade.

SUGAR SQUIBS.

Opening of the Grinding Campaign in Ascension and Elsewhere—Items of Interest from Field and Factory.

A few days of ideal fall weather prevailed during the latter part of last week, the low temperatures predicted by the weather bureau having arrived on schedule time Thursday night, Oct. 20, and remained in effect until Sunday, greatly to the gratification and benefit of the sugar planters, and, indirectly, to the community at large. The cool snap commenced to peter out at the beginning of the current week and for the greater part of the period the mercury has hovered in the neighborhood of a rather unseasonably high thermometer altitude. A light shower fell in portions of the parish Thursday forenoon and was cordially welcomed, rain being needed to lay the dust which had accumulated on the public highways and plantation roads since the last precipitation.

L. H. Dupre, the capable manager of the Presqu'il plantation in Terrebonne parish, passed through Donaldsonville Monday forenoon en route to Belle Rose, Assumption parish, where he paid a flying visit to relatives. Mr. Dupre, who resided on the Evan Hall plantation in this parish for a number of years, was cordially greeted by his numerous friends in this community during his brief stay here, and all of them were pleased to note his hale and hearty appearance and to learn from him that he and his estimable family are enjoying the blessings of good health and happiness. Presqu'il made a fine crop of corn this year and is promised an unusually successful and prosperous grinding, the cane crop being in excess of last year's yield by at least 2000 tons from all appearances. The campaign was inaugurated, Thursday, Oct. 27.

Mrs. E. H. Barton's St. Emma factory got away Tuesday morning, the 25th inst. This well-equipped and admirably-managed plant never fails to give a most excellent account of itself, and unless there should be a serious breakdown or some other catastrophe the nature of which is at present unforeseen, St. Emma will probably come forward with a few figures at the end of the season which will compare most favorably with those furnished by any other factory in the Louisiana cane belt. K. A. Aucuin, Sr., who for many years has done double duty as field manager of St. Emma plantation and chief sugar-boiler and superintendent of St. Emma factory, will again be in charge of the mill's sugar-making department and may be depended upon to coax as high a yield from the cane juice as it is possible to obtain.

The Lemann Company's Palo Alto factory started grinding at 12 o'clock midnight on Tuesday, Oct. 25, and barring a minor accident which occurred a few minutes after the machinery was set in motion and delayed operations for several hours, the plant has been running in a smooth and satisfactory manner and is chewing up cane at the rate of several hundred tons per day. A number of well-known Donaldsonvillians are included in the Palo Alto clerical and mechanical corps, among them being Alex. Poche, chief engineer; J. W. Byrnes, electrician; Lawrence Creoll, Deming operator; James Profit, chief cane-weigher; Leopold Jambou and others.

Prof. Kerr, of the department of mechanical engineering of the Louisiana State University, is conducting a series of experiments at Palo Alto with a view to determining the best method of burning coal, bagasse and other fuel in order to obtain the maximum amount of heat efficiency for the least quantity of fuel employed. Prof. Kerr and some of the graduate students of the State University have been engaged in these experiments at various sugar mills throughout the state for the past three or four years, and the outcome of the interesting investigation is being awaited with no little interest by the sugar planters and manufacturers of the state.

S. Prejan's Half-Way factory in upper Assumption ground its first stalk of cane at noon Thursday, the 27th inst., and if the favorable conditions attending the opening of the campaign should prevail throughout the season—or the greater part of it, at any rate—there is every promise that the 1910 grinding will prove one of the smoothest and most successful in Half-Way's history. J. F. Oubre, of Donaldsonville, is holding down the important position of chief sugar-boiler, and has a capable assistant in young Mr. Michel, of Smoke Bend. Louis Landry, of Assumption, is cock of the walk in this engine-room.

Albert Muller, of Galvez, passed through Donaldsonville Thursday en route to Lauderdale, where he puts in the grinding season every year as cane-weigher of the big Salsburg factory. Mr. Muller dropped in to shake hands with his friends in this office during his stay here.

Grinding was started at the McCall Company's Evan Hall factory last Tuesday morning, the season being opened under favorable auspices with every promise of a smooth and successful run. Joseph Di-charrv, who has been in charge of the Evan Hall sugar-making department for lo, these many years, is again on the job as chief proof-stick manipulator, and the entire mechanical and managerial corps is well up to the high standard of efficiency for which the McCall Brothers' well-appointed mill is locally noted.

Dick Ohlmeyer left Tuesday for the Roanoke factory in Iberville parish, where he will be employed as chief electrician for the term of the sugar-making season.

Death of Mrs. J. B. Rateau.

Mrs. Jean Baptiste Rateau, nee Maria Solon, died at 11:45 o'clock last Sunday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Truxillo, in lower Ascension, at the age of seventy-five years, eight months and three days. Mrs. Rateau was a native of Bordeaux, France, but had resided in this parish for nearly half a century, having come to Ascension in the early sixties to assume possession of the Lacroix plantation in the fourth ward, which she inherited from a relative. Mrs. Rateau's husband, to whom she was married in France prior to coming to this country, preceded her to the grave some three years ago. Her surviving relatives include eight grandchildren, Marie, Marguerite, Jeanne, Isabelle, Maurice and Robert LeBlanc, of New Orleans, and Misses Marie and Céline Rateau, of lower Ascension, and one nephew, Joseph Rateau, of New Orleans.
