LAST BATTLE IN BRITAIN

Was the Victory of the Duke of Cumberland Over the Adherents of Charles Edward.

The last battle fought on the soil of Great Britain took place in the middle of the eighteenth century. While George II was engaged in the war of the Austrian succession Charles Edward, who was called the young pretender, a grandson of King James II of England, landed in Scotland and made two attempts to obtain the throne of his ancestors. He was victorious in the battle of Prestonpans, but the duke of Cumberland, son of George II, having been recalled from the continent to take command of the king's forces, the pretender was entirely defeated at Culloden Moor, a plain in Scotland, four miles from Inverness. This was the last battle fought on the island of Great Britain, and took place April 16, 1746, and it was also the last attempt on the part of the Stuart family to recover the throne of Great Britain. Charles Edward Stuart escaped to France after he had wandered five months in the Highlands. He died in Rome January 30, 1788. The duke of Cumberland gave no quarter. The wounded were all slain, and the jails of England were filled with prisoners, many of whom were executed. Among the latter were Lords Balmerino, Kilmarnock and Lovat, being the last person who was beheaded in England.

DREADFUL TO THINK ABOUT

One Cannot Help but Feel That Barney Was Something of a Peesmist.

Timothy McNulty was boss of a section of a southern railway which included several tunnels. Timothy had as his guest Barney Mahoney, a new arrival from old Ireland, and together they were making an inspection of the road one morning. As they neared one of the tunnels they were greeted with the piercing whistle of the limited, and stepped aside until it had passed. Barney stood in open-mouthed wonder as the fast train neared, passed and entered the tunnel at the rate of 50 miles an hour. "Ain't that fine!" said Timothy, as the last car finally disappeared. "Talk about yer wonderful inventions! Where'll yer find anythin' ter bate that?"

Barney was awestruck, and it was some moments before he could adequately express his thoughts.

"Yis, Timothy, 'tis fine," said he, finally, "but I was jist thinkin' what a terrible thing 'twould be if it should miss th' hole!"—Barber's Magazine.

The Practical Joker.

In these days filled with an overplus of law against this and that, it is to be regretted that there is not some enactment against the practical joker. The newspaper reader is being constantly reminded that this nuisance is still abroad. Today it is the one who maliciously pulls a chair from under an acquaintance's feet. Yesterday it was the young man who put a sheer over his head and lay in wait in the shadows to frighten young girls into hysterics; tomorrow it is likely to be the superb young man who holds up another at the point of an "unloaded" revolver, only to find on pulling the trigger that it was loaded. It is exceedingly difficult to imagine what joy there can be in misplacing a chair so that a person falls to the floor, often to his permanent injury. And yet there are those who profess to consider this form of practical joke entertaining.—Indianapolis News.

Protecting Birds.

The laws of New York state protect all wild birds under severe penalties, except the English sparrow, starling, crow, hawk, crow black-bird, snovy owl, great-horned owl and kingfisher. The law says that protected birds "shall not be taken or possessed at any time, dead or alive, except under the authority of a certificate." The penalties are severe. Any person violating the law is guilty of a misdemeanor and is further liable "to a penalty of $60 and an additional penalty of $25 for each bird or part of bird taken or possessed or had in possession." These provisions do not apply to the game birds for which an open season is fixed.

Bridegroom's Happy Lot.

As far as I can see, a bridegroom does not have such a bad time of it. He has only got to have his trousers properly creased, nail a smile on his face and say "I will" in a clear voice when the parson gives him the tip. Nobody takes much notice of him; he has no responsibilities and nothing to remember. If the bridesmaids are pretty, he can kiss them; if they are not, people only think the more of him if he doesn't. "Such a nice, steady fellow, and so fond of his wife that he would not look at the other girls!"—"Some Women and Timothy," by H. B. Somerville.

Bees Have No Common Sense.

Henri Fabre, the "Insects Homer," as Maeterlinck calls him, asserts that bees have no reason, only instinct, and gives many proofs of his assertion. For example, he opened the bottom of a cell in course of construction, but the bee that was building up the cell and storing honey in it, quite unconscious of the fact that the food for the future generation was oozing out, finally sailed up the top of the cell, never paying any attention to the hole in the bottom.

BAD STOMACH TROUBLE

Yields to Delicious Vinol

Shreveport, La.—"I had a bad stomach trouble for years and became so weak I could hardly walk or do any work. My appetite was poor, my food would not digest, I bloated and was very weak and nervous. I tried many remedies without help. I saw Vinol advertised and tried it, and now my stomach trouble is completely cured and I am well."—E. L. BRADSHAW.
Vinol is guaranteed to tone up the tired, over-taxed and weakened nerves of the stomach and create strength. X-Ray Pharmacy, Donaldsonville, La.

TRAGEDIES CAUSED BY LOVE

Many Cases on Record of Ruined Lives—Women as Well as Men Have Been Affected.

Love troubles have been the cause of many curious actions on the part of men and women who have suffered disappointment in that direction. A curious house owned by Doctor Phenix of London was in a class by itself, its exterior being ornamented with gilt statues. It was built by the doctor for his prospective bride who died a few hours before she was to have been married. In the extensive grounds, too, masses of carved stone could be seen. The house, shut off from the world, was furnished just as it was on the fatal wedding day. Some of its windows were boarded, others covered by common sacking. It remained a mystery house until the doctor's death at the age of over ninety, a few years ago.

Women as well as men have become hermits when love's young dream has come to an untimely end. In the eighteenth century there died a woman who had not left her room for 30 years, owing to a love disappointment, and just a few years later a similar case was brought to light. In the second instance the lady had vowed that she "would never see the light of the sun again," owing to being fitted in love. She religiously kept her vow, living in a darkened room till the end of her days.

This country has produced martyrs on the altar of blighted affection. For more than twenty years an old fellow shut himself up in a miserable room in Pittsburgh. At last, when it was decided that he should be arrested on the ground of insanity, it required the united strength of four constables to secure him.

EARWIG NEED NOT BE FEARED

People Generally Have Mistaken Ideas About Insect, Says Scientist Who Ought to Know.

The earwig, one of the most familiar types of insect life found in garden and field, has been much maligned. So says W. Harold S. Cheavin, F. R. M. S., a well-known British scientist.

A great dislike for the earwig has existed for centuries because of belief that it delights to creep into the human ear and cause death. The name, says Professor Cheavin, probably helps to keep alive this idea, which is absurd to entomologists. He contends that insects considerably smaller than the earwig would have trouble in entering the human ear, and in nearly every attempt would fail. The earwig is a fourth of an inch long.

That it is chiefly responsible for damage to pet plants is another absurd idea about this insect, says Professor Cheavin. Research proves that it is a boon, and not a pest, feeding largely on aphides and plant lice, and preferring dead insects to fruit or vegetables.

Perfumes at $100 an Ounce.

Genuine altar of roses comes from the Orient. When perfectly pure it is of almost fabulous value. The secret of its preparation is carefully guarded, and the finest product is usually sold in quantities not exceeding a few drops. Violet is one of the perfumes that have been so closely imitated that thoughtless people never stop to discriminate and buy the manufactured for the genuine article. The recent discovery of a chemical process which cannot, even by experts, be distinguished from true violet extract is a matter of importance, as this is one of the most popular of odors. The substance, however, is worth $100 per ounce wholesale. Lavender is a home grown perfume.

Got In Wrong in the End.

They're so particular about the English that is used in one of New York's big high schools that it is considered quite as much of a disgrace for a boy to make use of a slang expression in the classroom as it is for him to stick pins in his teacher's chair—and get caught at it. Part of the plan to discourage boys in the use of slang is that they write essays on their daily conversation. One boy of fourteen turned in a really well-written essay which was surprisingly free of grammatical errors and totally devoid of slang. At the end, however, he offered this: "The majority of people, after all, who do use slang, are low-brows and roughnecks."

Explanation of Boundary.

Why the northern boundary of Delaware should have been circular in form is often a source of wonderment. It came about in this way: After William Penn had obtained a grant of Pennsylvania he was desirous of owning the land on the west bank of the Delaware to the sea. He procured from the duke of York, in 1682, a release of all his titles and claims to Newcastle and 12 miles around it, and to the land between this tract and the sea. A line that was the arc of a circle of 12-mile radius was then run with Newcastle as a center. When the three "lower counties" on the Delaware became a state they retained this boundary.

Dietary in the Stomach.

There are many people who have a distress in the stomach after meals. It is due to indigestion and is easily remedied by taking one of Chamberlain's Tablets after meals. Mrs. Henry Padgham, Victor, N. Y., writes: "For some time I was troubled with headache and distress in my stomach after eating, also with constipation. About six months ago I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. They regulated the action of my bowels and the headache and other annoyances ceased in a short time." Obtainable everywhere. (Adv.)
