NEWS OF THE PHOTOPLAYS

Next Week's Bill at the Grand.

Sunday—Harold Lockwood and May Allison in "The Hidden Children," and a comedy, "Skinny's False Alarm."

Monday—Wallace Reid and Myrtle Steadman in "The Prison Without Walls."

Tuesday—Ann Murdock in "Envy."

Wednesday—Jack Pickford in "The Dummy."

Thursday—Muriel Ostriche in "Moral Courage."

Friday—E. H. Sothern in "The Man of Mystery."

Saturday—Francis X. Lushman and Beverly Bayne in "The Great Secret," Marin Sais in "The Girl from Frisco," Pathe News and comedy.

"The Hidden Children." Harold Lockwood and May Allison, two of America's most popular and talented screen stars, play the leading roles in the stirring Metro wonder-play, "The Hidden Children," adapted from the famous novel by Robert W. Chambers, with which the Grand will inaugurate its series of attractions for the week beginning May 13.

"The Hidden Children" is a powerful story of revolutionary days, laying special stress on the struggles of the early colonists with the Six Nations of the Iroquois Confederacy. It is a play that will arouse patriotism, describing as it does in intimate detail the heavy odds against which the founders of the nation battled. The story takes its hero, the Indian chief, and his heroine, little Lois de Contrecoeur, with Morgan's riflemen through dangerous ways into the very heart of the territory of hostile Indians. Battles with the Indians are described, as well as the depredations of traitorous whites.

"The Prison Without Walls." Dealing with prison grafters and reformers, "The Prison Without Walls," which comes to the Grand Monday, is a well-made picture telling a good story. Wallace Reid has the male lead, that of a prison reform expert who dons prison garb a la Tom Brown of Auburn, as Thomas Mott Osborne was known when he made his famous week's sojourn behind the bars in Sing Sing penitentiary. Mr. Reid does splendid work—restrained, convincing, the antithesis of the melodramatic. Opposite him is Myrtle Steadman, in the role of Helen Ainsworth, a Lady Bountiful, with leanings to prison reform, too. Her characterization is a worthy one.

The course of the intrigue is clearly established—the forces of order on one side seeking for the one individual who most profits from the crooked contracts, and on the other the "man higher up" and his numerous subordinates. There is woven into the fabric a pretty love story and many moments of strong drama.

"Envy" First of "Seven Deadly Sins." Everybody in Donaldsonville has heard about the "Seven Deadly Sins" either of the temptations themselves or of the wonderful five-reel McClure pictures grouped under that title. Manager Bloomenstiel announces that he has booked these splendid plays, and that the first of the series, Ann Murdock in "Envy," will be shown at the Grand next Tuesday. Each is a complete production, entirely different in theme and treatment from the others, but the seven are connected by the love story of two young folk, impersonated by Shirley Mason and George LeGuere. In each, Miss Mason, growing into womanhood, is tempted by one of the seven sins, until at the end—well, Manager Bloomenstiel won't tell what happens in the end.

The seven features and their stars are: "Envy," Ann Murdock; "Pride," Holbrook Blinn; "Passion," Shirley Mason; "Wrath," H. B. Warner; "Greed," Nance O'Neill; "Sloth," Charlotte Walker; "The Seventh Sin," George LeGuere.

The name of the seventh sin is not being announced. You are at liberty to guess. Just think over the sins you are particularly fond of committing and one of the twenty or twenty-five is sure to be the right one.

"The Dummy," which will be the Wednesday offering at the Grand, may be described as a cleverly devised story. It provides good entertainment and at times supplies a thrill. For a background there is the kidnapping of the child of an incompatible pair, a former messenger boy employed in a detective's office, and the proper assortment of kidnappers and detectives. The action is fast.

Jack Pickford has the role of Barney, the discharged messenger boy much fed up on nickel detective literature. He takes speedily to his new job as aid to the great detective Babington, skillfully portrayed by Frank Losee. Young Barney has adventures a-plenty. He becomes in the flesh the actor of the role which in calmer days, when described in print, had so stirred his fancy.

"Moral Courage." A story of life in a New England mill town is told in "Moral Courage," featuring Muriel Ostriche, which will be shown Thursday at the Grand.

The play deals with the manner in which a canny Scotch lassie who works in the Connecticut mill owned by Joshua Anson marries the latter's son, and when his father disinherits him, obeys the irascible old man and gets a divorce. Later the tide turns in the Scotch girl's favor and she gets for her husband the man of her first choice.

Many of the scenes were taken in one of Connecticut's largest mills, and are notable for their exceptional news interest. The story itself is thoroughly charming, there being a large mixture of subtle Scotch comedy injected into its various phases.

"The Man of Mystery." In the five-part Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature, "The Man of Mystery," which the Grand will present as its Friday attraction, E. H. Sothern, who plays the title role, makes a most remarkable transformation in his appearance.

In the first part of the production, Mr. Sothern is seen as an elderly and somewhat pompous gentleman with a great growth of beard, crooked neck and baggy eyes. His appearance is anything but attractive and forms a goal for the small, petty remarks of Madame Branchart, his mother-in-law and a foreign spy.

Coming Attractions at the Gem.

Today—Dorothy Dalton in "Chicken Casey."

Sunday—Douglas Fairbanks in "The Americano."

Monday—Sarah Bernhardt in "Queen Elizabeth."

"Chicken Casey." In which the magnetic Triangle star, Dorothy Dalton, will be seen at the Gem to-day, introduces a young author, Everett Dryden Hale, who has written a book that at once leaps into the ranks of the best sellers. It is entitled "Wife and World," and is the story of a New Englander with a strong Puritanical strain, knows by personal experience practically nothing at all. The principal character in the story is a girl nicknamed "Rags" by her associates. A New York producer is anxious to have the book dramatized, and his leading woman, Mavis Marberry, insists on her right to create the part of "Rags."

Hale rejects Mavis for the role, as he believes her talent is exclusively of the refined comedy order. With the aid of a dramatic critic Mavis stages a surprise for the author and is introduced to him as a typical "Rags" in a low Bowery dive. Mavis enacts the part in such a lifelike manner that Hale, unaware of the deception, starts out to reclaim her and informs the manager that he has found his ideal heroine—"Chicken Casey," the name her friends give her—who must have the star role in his play.

The play is produced with pronounced success, Mavis Marberry playing the part of "Rags" with the same realism with which she invented the mock creation of "Chicken Casey." Hale, who is present at the premiere, recognizes that he has been the victim of a trick and leaves the theatre hurt and indignant. Mavis finds a way to earn his forgiveness and secure a happy future for both star and author, and "Chicken Casey" becomes only a memory.

After being fearfully burned by the lava of erupting Vesuvius, he is taken through some newly discovered scientific process by a renowned medical professor, and when the bandages are removed his entire face and form are changed. He is now a distinguished-looking man of middle age with hair streaked with grey.

This transformation is cleverly done indeed. In fact the audience will find it difficult to believe that the famous star portrayed both roles until later in the play when he again makes up as his former self in order to prove his identity to his wife.

With his new appearance he returns to his old home and makes himself most useful to his wife, who is being swindled by an unscrupulous lawyer.

"The Americano." Douglas Fairbanks, famous Triangle athletic star, has full opportunity to display his athletic prowess in "The Americano," a play of stirring adventure in a South American country upset by a revolution, which will be the Sunday offering at the Gem.

"The Americano." Douglas Fairbanks, famous Triangle athletic star, has full opportunity to display his athletic prowess in "The Americano," a play of stirring adventure in a South American country upset by a revolution, which will be the Sunday offering at the Gem.

"Queen Elizabeth." Madame Sarah Bernhardt, world-famous queen of tragedy, romance and comedy, plays the title role in the superb production of "Queen Elizabeth," which the Gem will offer Monday as a special attraction. The peerless French artiste is seen at her best in the role of England's most famous queen, Elizabeth, or "Good Queen Bess," as she was affectionately known to those fortunate enough to be in her good graces. Every school boy and girl knows the story, how Elizabeth plotted and planned until she brought about the death of her cousin, Mary, Queen of Scots, a lovable woman of fine character and high morals.

This is one of the most magnificent motion pictures ever produced, and one that everybody should see. Just at this time, when Mme. Bernhardt is so ill in New York that her life is despaired of, an added touch of pathos is given her delineation of the proud and haughty Queen Elizabeth, who has no more gone to her reward. Tomorrow the great French tragedienne may be no more—gone to her reward, as has Elizabeth, whom she so realistically portrays.

Seldom it is that an opportunity is given motion picture patrons to witness a super-production of the high class of "Queen Elizabeth," and it is to be hoped the patrons of the Gem Theatre will show their appreciation of Manager Von Lotten's efforts to provide them with the best there is by witnessing this superb cinema spectacle in large numbers.

Be amiable, cheerful and good natured and you are much more likely to be happy. You will find this difficult, if not impossible, however, when you are constantly troubled with constipation. Take Chamberlain's Tablets and get rid of that and it will be easy. These tablets not only move the bowels, but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion. (Adv.)

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for anyone who can cure a case of Catarrh by any other method.
