SOME REFLECTIONS.

It is very wonderful how the principles and spirit of purpose of Christianity are asserting themselves. There is nothing that concerns human life and its interests which Charly, the blossom and fruit and crowning Grace of our Faith, do not manifest.

It may perhaps have been better for the communication never to have been made public; but in this connection, two things are to be remembered. First, it was a private letter, which Mr. Cleveland never intended for publication, and next, the provocation which Ingalls has given Mr. Cleveland in the past is sufficient to justify any bitterness which the latter may feel.

But possibly the greatest and most striking result has been the elevation of the individual man. "Ye are a royal generation, a holy priesthood," was the echo and response in later years. And now the first principles of our common law are "personal liberty, personal property, and the pursuit of happiness," as the life of society.

Indeed, to any man who can think, who will not deliberately blind his eyes, and harden his heart, and refuse the entrance of sense or reason into his mind, the whole world gleams with a strange light, and all the customs, institutions, and social observances of the civilized world have more or less of the freshness and invigor of dawn.

HISTORIC JAMESTOWN.

In another column of THE TIMES this morning appears a strong article upon Jamestown, which should appeal to the patriotism and the pocket of every Virginian. That the ancient capital of the Old Dominion, the cradle of American liberty, a spot made sacred by the lives and deeds of many of Virginia's great historic characters, should be a prey to the elements and iconoclasts is a shame.

ENGLISH AND AMERICAN PRESS.

In a recent interview with a representative of one of the New York papers the Duke of Marlborough, who is now travelling in this country, gave his views as to the points of difference between English and American journalism. These views are worthy of attention as coming from a man who, besides being of decided ability, has had ample opportunities of studying the subject upon which he touched.

A WEEK WITHOUT GERMANS

EXCLUSIVE IDEAS IN SOCIETY'S FRIVOLOUS HEAD.

Inclined to Prefer. Only to be "at Home to a Few Friends"—Marriage of Mr. Kinkead and Miss Spillman—Other Affairs.

No balls and no Germans found admittance into the doors of society last week. In fact, it would seem from many obvious signs that the domain of fashion was getting notions of exclusiveness into its frivolous head, and manifesting a preference to be "at home to a few friends" at dinners, luncheons, card parties, etc., rather than open the house and embrace at one armful every chance speaking acquaintance recognized in so-called "good society."

CLEVELAND ON INGALLS.

The recent letter of Mr. Cleveland, expressing satisfaction at the likelihood of the defeat of Ingalls for re-election to the United States Senate, and expressing the opinion that it was a source of congratulation to Kansas that she would be no longer represented in that body by such a man, is being used by the friends of Ingalls to bolster up, as far as possible, his desperate fortunes.

ON THE SAME AFTERNOON AT 5 O'CLOCK

A charming wedding took place at the home of Mrs. James Thomas, on Monday last, when Mr. and Mrs. William B. Kinkead were married.

THE BRIDE WAS ATTACHED IN A TRAVELING

costume of tan-colored cloth, the same shade as her hair, which was styled in a high and becoming cap. She carried a large bunch of white roses.

THE SPECIAL SALE OF CLOTHES YESTERDAY

and the day before will continue this week. The supply is equal to the demand. Ladies would do well to see this stock before it is exhausted.

MILLINERY.

During the past week we have been very busy in this Department. Last Sunday we advertised a Great Clearing Sale. It was a success, and it will continue during the forthcoming week.

DRESS TRIMMINGS.

In Dress Trimmings we take pleasure in announcing that we can show an assortment of styles and desirable colors—all of this season's purchases—and we want to close it out at low prices.

NO EXCUSE FOR NOT BUYING

KAUFMANN & CO.'S STORE DURING THIS WEEK.

WINTER WEATHER HAS NOW SET IN WITH AN EARNESTNESS WHICH IS UNUSUAL FOR THE SEASON. WE HAVE THE GOODS YOU WANT AND WE SELL AT PRICES THAT WILL SUIT YOU.

Ladies' Cloaks and Jackets.

We have very few cheap, low grades of these. When we selected stock our foremost idea was to get the choicest styles. We are justified in the belief that we succeeded, if our recent rush of trade can be used as a standard of judgment.

Infants' and Children's Cloaks.

Yesterday we opened up a new and plentiful assortment of Infants' Linen Cloaks and Children's Shirts. Our reputation on these goods is too well known to need comment.

Seasonable Underwear.

There is nothing in Men's, Children's, and Ladies' Underwear that we cannot show you. All kinds of Undervests, Drawers, and other garments in the greatest variety.

CAPEES.
