

THE SLEET.

A WINTER SCENE. In the black December. And I ever shall remember. When one morning from my window I beheld a sight so grand.

But the spell at times was broken By the joy whispermers spoken. When the children's voices and rattle

Lo! the morrow blazed in glory Over that landscape white as hoary. Par beyond the hills and valleys

So the sunshine did its duty. Lending to this scene of beauty All the colors of the rainbow seen

But this loveliest vision vanished When the sun the clouds unshrouded. Like earth's fairest wreaths and flowers
