THE BOER CAMPAIGN Has Been Planned and Operations Are Looked For Soon.

ENGLAND HAS OTHER REASONS

For War Than the Wrong's of the Outlanders—She Fears a South African Dutch Federation.

As frequently mentioned in these dispatches, the attitude of the British Government, in always insisting upon sovereign power, has practically undergone no change throughout the entire negotiations.

As frequently mentioned in these dispatches, the attitude of the British Government, in always insisting upon sovereign power, has practically undergone no change throughout the entire negotiations.

Heretofore the countless, confusing phases due to the various and conflicting intentions of the governments involved, and the contradictory reports from the troubled territory, the most probable solution of the present situation seems this:

The Boers who must have plainly seen the efforts of the British government to avert hostilities until the arrival of reinforcements, having, weeks ago, planned a campaign, will put it in action, perhaps as early as the week ending September 25.

Regarding the plans of campaign of the respective armies, there is no reliable information, though it is the general assumption that the main object of the British will be the capture of Pretoria.

There were no demonstrations in the streets, and Mr. McLean was everywhere cordially received.

There were about ten thousand men in line, and they marched through the principal streets to the speakers' stand at the court-house, where Mr. McLean was introduced by Speaker Soward.

At the conclusion of Mr. McLean's speech, General E. B. Finlay was introduced amid great applause.

On the west stand Hon. C. W. Baker was the principal speaker. Other speakers were Hon. Joseph Dowling (chairman), John C. Welby, and Hon. M. A. Daugherty.

At the night meeting L. H. Newman, of Peepa, and Jesse Lewis, of Urbana, made vigorous replies to Senator Hanna and Judge Nash.

The actual time made by Pierce was not as good as that of Elkes and yet his achievement was a most marvelous one.

A dispatch received this evening from Johannesburg says the Transvaal government officials to-day requisitioned 500 horses, provision and general equipment for the Johannesburg.

Active war preparations are being made throughout the country. In the meantime business is stagnant, and the exodus of Outlanders continues, 200 leaving Johannesburg on one train to-day.

MCLEAN OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN

SPORTS OF THE NEXT CENTURY

Automobile and Motor Cycle Races to Take Prominent Rank.

AN INTERNATIONAL CONTEST

Believed to Be One of the Events Which Will Inaugurate the Beginning of the Twentieth Century.

Some Automobile Points.

When the sporting history of the nineteenth century is written the racing of horses and the racing of bicycles will be set down as two of the great achievements for during the century that is now dawning to delight the hearts of lovers of contests of speed.

Already there is every reason to believe that the twentieth century is to be inaugurated by a brilliant international long distance race in which the automobiles of every country will fight for supremacy and there is little doubt that the achievements along the line of motor cycles will be of sufficient importance to assure a similar race in which these marvelous machines will participate before the first year of the new century has closed.

more from which I have just awakened. I remember it all, however, although there was little to remember. But a wild ride to keep up with the infernal machine that kept just so far ahead of me. But, nevertheless, I think I have solved the mystery of the wonderful speed. It is nothing more or less than the fact that the force of the atmospheric pressure, suitably broken by the action of the motor I felt practically no pressure at all; there was no resistance, nothing to impede the progress of my wheel, no matter how fast I might ride. That is the whole secret.
