

MR. HUGHES LINK NOW IN MANILA

A Fulton Boy Who Loves the Smell of Powder.

CONDICTION OF LESTER STREET.

Is a Turtle a Fish, or is it Game? is a Question That Will be Settled by a Fulton Debating Society.

There will be a debate at Denny-Street, M. E. Church next Tuesday night by some of Fulton's most prominent debaters.

Mr. Sam Knauft has received a letter from his brother Charles, of Honolulu, N. H., stating that his health is improving rapidly.

Mr. G. W. Rogers, of Fulton, has received a letter from John Link, a Fulton boy, who is now seeing active service on the firing line, stationed at Imus, eighteen miles from Manila.

HOW THE BUNNIE LOST HIS TAIL

Sad is the Story Told But True it Must Be.

SIMPLY HELPED HIMSELF.

But it Was to Food That Belonged to Other Bunnies, and Punishment Was Meted Out to Fit the Crime.

Like the proud peacock, the frisky squirrel is happy in the possession of a luxuriant caudal appendage.

And a squirrel without a tail is something after a ship without a sail.

There are few squirrels that lack the bushy appendage characteristic of the species, and those that covet about the woods and by-ways, sans tails, are taboored by the general run of squirrels, and are condemned to live apart, like those with the mark of Cain upon them.

Few squirrels are born without tails. It is generally understood among students of the habits and nature of squirrels, and among the squirrels themselves, that a squirrel without a tail has been guilty of some grave, serious crime in the annals of profane history as it relates to squirrelology.

COMMITTED DEPRADATIONS.

Nine out of ten squirrels without tails have committed depredations upon their neighbor's goods and have endeavored to come into possession of other squirrels' means through nefarious deeds.

They are classed with the grasshopper of the field—as lazy and worthless—striving to live upon the energy and toil of their neighbor. They are said to browse about seeking whose feast they may devour, never thinking of the days of frost when the record of their depredations is their stores that have been laid away for a rainy day by the industrious squirrels.

And it is confidently asserted by the old sages that whenever the drones are caught in the act or even when circumstantial evidence is accumulated against them, or the verlest suspicion has been aroused, that a drum-head court-martial is held in the top of the highest oak and the verdict of "guilty" is pronounced.

The offender is then declared a squirrel is then degraded to meet out the punishment decreed upon such occasions.

BIT OFF THE TAIL.

This punishment is well known and the committee appointed to carry out the decree of the court sets about his business at once. He locates the culprit, and the culprit knows his business. He starts off on a dead run, nor does the chase end until the derelict squirrel is cornered in a hole somewhere, with the busy tail sticking out.

Then the committee gets in its good work and with one mighty smash of its teeth it comes the offending squirrel's tail.

And that's how it happened.

There is one ballad squirrel in the annals of squirrelology. It is said that its tail was lost in the manner prescribed by law. It's the black sheep of the flock and is ostracized by the others. It must hustle for itself, for none of the squirrels with bushy tails have any sympathy for one that has suffered from the drum-head court-martial.

Mathews Betrayal Case.
