Richmond at Wilmington. Newport News at Norfolk. Portsmouth at Raleigh.

Fillman's bad throw to the home plate to cut off Red Gilligan lost yesterday's game in the eighth inning, and Norfolk went away with another victory added to its list.

Up to this point Richmond had the game well in hand, although it was no cinch either way. But the eighth, or last time up for Norfolk, was fatal to Richmond. In the first place Manner made a serious mistake in attempting to catch Red Gilligan at third, when he could easily have put out McDade in the same manner. In an attempt to stop a batted ball he caused it to bound out in right field between first and second basemen, and the runner safed.

HOW RUNS WERE MADE. Richmond's first run was made in the third inning. Hooker singled, stole second, and scored on hits by Fillman and Trager. The other run was made in the sixth. Soffie singled, took second on Kahn's sacrifice, stole third, and scored on Thomas' hit.

Norfolk scored its first run in the first inning. Gilligan singled, stole second, and scored on Thomas' error in throwing. The other two crossed over in the eighth. Red Gilligan hit for two bags, stole third and scored on Fillman's error, McDade following on the same play, after having captured Manner's throw with effort in attempting to head Gilligan.

The crowd was disappointed in the result, but they were satisfied with the splendid exhibition of ball playing. Richmond leaves to-day for Wilmington where a series will begin to-morrow afternoon.

What Are You Going to Wear?

Thinking about getting a new Spring Suit, are you? The thing that troubles you most is that you don't know just what's to be the "proper caper."

But you've no excuse for not knowing that! Not when we've a whole store full of the "proper capers" in men's and boys' wear for summer.

You want to make it your duty to call on us some day soon. Say to-morrow—how will that suit you?

The natty new Spring Suit, the "swell" Spring Overcoat you're looking for have arrived in Richmond; the new 1900 neck and wrist wear, the dainty ties and fine shirts you're to wear this spring and summer are in town; the nobby hat, stylish gloves and "dandy" cane you'll be wanting have struck the city—we've got them.

The Suit. The Overcoat. It's here. All the new browns, olives and greens that fashion has declared "it." All new, 1901 weaves. Correctly cut, firmly fashioned, stylish Suits. Priced from $5 to $25. Here, also. The nobby sort. Either "light as a feather" tan top coat or the more swell, long, loose roof cherviot spring coat. Both sorts are here. The right sort of both sorts. And the prices, too. $7.59 to $25.

The Furnishings. They're here, too. The man who finds it hard to find just the shade and sort of ties that please him—who wants his gloves just so—his shirts perfect—his collars and cuffs correct; we want him to see our stock.

We've the sort he wants—or it isn't made. We've everything that's up-to-date—and nothing that's not. From shirts to sleeve holders—everything here is what the nobby dressers have declared the "proper caper."

Best at the price: Collars, 10c. Cuffs, 15c. Scarfs, 50c.

Varsity Won From Tarheels

Defeated Boys From Chapel Hill by Score of 9 to 2. Pretty and Clean Contest.

Great Enthusiasm Prevailed and at Conclusion of Game Carter, Nalle and Walker Were Borne from Field by Rooters.

(Special Dispatch to The Times.) UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA, April 20.—North Carolina is out of the race for the baseball championship of the South, she having lost to Virginia this afternoon by the score of 9 to 2. The contest was a pretty one, despite the wretched condition of the face of the field, for errors made did not figure in the score.

Carter pitched a steady game for Virginia, keeping his hits well scattered except in the fifth. In that inning Carolina, after making three singles with none out, failed to score. Nalle gave the Virginia captain splendid support behind the bat.

GOOD WORK. Carolina's twirler, Cunningham, also did good work in the box. After the fifth inning he struck out six men and allowed only two hits. Carr played the best game in the field and at the bat. All his chances were hard ones. Gilliam in right field made the star catch of the game in the ninth inning, robbing Nalle of a hit and Virginia of two runs. Graves, who captained Carolina's football eleven last season, caught a good game and secured a two-bagger and a single. Smathers and Holt played a pretty fielding game.

Great enthusiasm prevailed throughout the contest, and at its close the rooters made a rush for Carter, Nalle and Walker and bore them from the field on their shoulders. The score:

JOSEPH JEFFERSON PLAYS HERE BEFORE IMMENSE AUDIENCES. He Is Seen In Rip Van Winkle Which He First Played in Richmond and In The Rivals.

Members of that company four were in Richmond last night—Mr. Jefferson, his son Charles, who was the child in some productions, Mr. Jack and Theodore Hamilton, of the Giffen Company. The other survivor, George C. Boniface, is now in London, and a godson of Mr. Jefferson, appeared as Falkland in "The Rivals." They are capable and conscientious in the rendition of their roles. The charm of Rip Van Winkle is too well known for extensive comment. It is one of the greatest characterizations of the American stage, and its charm will ever live in the memories of those who have laughed and wept under the marvelous acting of his creator. "Our mutual friend, Rip Van Winkle," said Mr. Jefferson in his words of thanks for his splendid reception, and he spoke most truly. "The Rivals" was most delightful. There is no other Bob Acres so real, so delicious in his humor as Jefferson. It is a masterpiece of comedy. The cast was excellent throughout. No tribute of praise can be too great for the beloved dean of the dramatic profession, not only because of the marvelous finish and artistic perfection of his acting, his various accomplishments, and sagacious as a landscape painter and writer, but for the completeness and beauty of the character of the man.
