

The Richmond Times THE TIMES COMPANY. THE DAILY TIMES, when delivered by carrier...

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1901. DEMOCRATIC POLICY. We have received the following communication:

EDITOR OF THE TIMES: Sir,—In a recent issue of The Times you refer to a recent issue of the "Commoner," August 30th, and comment on the attitude of Mr. Bryan in regard to the principle and policy of the D.P. party...

It would be presumptuous in The Times to attempt to outline a platform for the National Democratic party in 1904. Indeed, it would be presumptuous in any one so far in advance to say what policy the Democratic party should pursue three years hence with regard to certain questions which are now before the people.

There is one thing, however, in connection with this question that should be settled at the earliest possible moment. The case was admirably put by Mr. M. E. Ingalls in an address recently delivered in Kansas City. He said:

The great danger as to our foreign possessions is that with no colonial policy we shall drift along until in a fatal hour we will admit these different countries and islands as "territories," and then it is so easy to make them "States." Then where will your republic be, when Presidents are elected by votes in Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines?

Our mistake will be if we drift along without providing safeguards against the danger that I have alluded to. We should at once provide by constitutional provisions that no State could be admitted to this Union unless it was composed of contiguous and adjoining territory.

These are the words of wisdom, and if the Democratic party were going to make a platform this year, we should undoubtedly advise that this be made one of the planks thereof. As for national banks, The Times is opposed to the existing system. We believe, as our readers all know, in free banking, and we believe that if all banks, under proper restrictions and regulations, were permitted to issue notes, the currency problem would be solved.

the time when the movement of the crops and the corresponding fall requirements are making the year's largest demands for money. And so it is seen that under our present system the government is absorbing large sums of money which it does not need, yet has no natural means of putting that money back into the channels of trade.

As for the question of trusts, we believe that what is needed for them is less legislation rather than more legislation. Corporations are the creatures of government, and they should be properly regulated and restrained.

Recurring to the address of Mr. Ingalls, he said that to his mind the real defense of the republic is its own government—local self-government in the States, in the cities, in towns and in the rural districts.

Here is another cardinal principle of Democracy, and we believe that the more rigidly it is adhered to the safer will be the republic and its institutions, and the nearer will we approach to popular government in its perfection.

LYNCHING FOR ANARCHISTS.

In an interview printed Monday afternoon with Hon. E. C. Folkes, who is a member of the House of Delegates, stated that in his judgment no statute law could wipe out the anarchists.

PERSONAL AND CRITICAL.

Some of the colored scientists of Richmond would doubtless be gratified if the Constitutional Convention would declare itself in favor of proclaiming the new Constitution.

The father of M. Santos-Dumont, the famous aeronaut, is the wealthiest coffee grower in Brazil. He employs 6,000 laborers on his plantations.

The collection of drawings by Victor Hugo which Paul Maurice—whom the poet referred to in his letters as his most faithful and devoted friend—intends to give to the city of Paris, together with the other contents of his Hugo Museum, belonged at first to Mme. Prouet.

THE APPLE INDUSTRY.

It is said that a Missouri farmer who has an apple orchard containing two thousand acres has sold this year's crop on the trees for $75,000, buyers to take all risks from now on. The orchard promises a yield of 100,000 bushels of apples and as the apple crop throughout the country is short, the purchasers expect to make a handsome profit.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

Emma Goldman, the anarchist, has been arrested, and it is intimated that she will be tried as an accomplice of the wretch who shot the President.

has said that he was incited to the assault by a speech which he heard from her lips. But it is not, indeed, extraordinary and unaccountable that this woman should have been permitted to go at large for so long a time and preach the doctrine of anarchism ad libitum.

Early in the year in a public interview, Emma Goldman used such expressions as this: "I was born a revolutionist." "I am an anarchist, because I love individual freedom, and I will not surrender that freedom." "If a man came to me and told me he was planning an assassination, I would think him an utter fool, an utter refuse to pay any attention to him."

In spite of, or possibly because of, Parliament, the London County Council, the metropolitan boroughs and the lighting and water companies, London is possibly the most inconvenient and most untidy city of Europe.

On Saturday not less than 650,000 words were sent out in special dispatches to the newspapers by the Buffalo correspondents, and as much more was dispatched from other points. This means that about 3,700 operators have had to work almost continuously for about forty-eight hours.

Former Owner of Westover.

Sir,—I have a little article about Westover, and, in to-day's paper, that you speak of the former owner of Westover and founder of Richmond as Colonel William Evelyn Byrd.

In Wrong Column.

Sir,—My attention has been called to the fact that in your issue of August 29th my name was published in the list of those in favor of proclaiming the new Constitution.

Very truly yours,

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 5th. ROY B. SMITH.

ELEGANT HOME WEDDING.

Miss Lucilla Stanley Booker Bride of Clement Anderson Boaz. (Special Dispatch to The Times.) LEXINGTON, VA., Sept. 10.—A pretty marriage was solemnized this evening at the residence of Rev. and Mrs. James E. Booker, the contracting parties being their second daughter, Miss Lucilla Stanley Booker, and Mr. Clement Anderson Boaz, of Fort Worth, Texas.

The bride was becomingly attired in white India silk, with chiffon and applique trimmings, and wore a veil. She carried a bouquet of white and pink flowers. Her sister, Miss Helen Booker, was maid of honor, and wore white organdy, with ribbon trimmings. She carried white roses and smilax. The groom was attended by Mr. Edwin Page Bledsoe, of Lexington, as best man.

General John H. Littlefield, who studied under Abraham Lincoln, gives this anecdote of his in Success: "All clients knew that with 'Old Abe' as their lawyer, they would win their case, if it was fair; if it was not, that it was a waste of time to take it to him."

AFTERMATH.

Bertram Hiles, an Englishman, has become a painter in spite of the fact that he lost both arms in an accident when he was a child. He had developed at that time a taste for drawing, and the loss of his arms did not swerve him from his determination to become an artist.

HANOVER TROOP REUNION.

(Special Dispatch to The Times.) FREDERICKSBURG, VA., Sept. 10.—Mr. Charles H. Hurkamp purchased today of Mrs. Jessie Little the handsome Boscobel estate, three miles from this city, for $100,000. He will make a model stock and racing farm of it.

Tennessee has lost a picturesque character by the death of "Uncle Alfred" Jackson, at Nashville, recently. He was the favorite body-servant of Andrew Jackson and the last of the servants of the Hermitage farm under its first owner.

General Garfield was shot at 9:30 o'clock in the morning of Saturday, July 2, 1881, in the ladies' waiting room of the Baltimore and Annapolis Railroad in Washington, while he was walking arm in arm with James G. Blaine. He was taken first to a private room in the station and thence removed to the White House.

THOUGHT THEY HAD TRACED IT

Autopsy, However, Showed That They Had Been Mistaken—Garfield's Wound Was Necessarily Mortal. The attempt to assassinate President McKinley, and above all the failure of the surgeons to locate the second bullet, of course turns the thoughts of every one to plights of President Garfield when he lay for eleven weeks and more suffering from the effects of Guitau's bullet, the whereabouts of which the surgeons failed to discover until the knife laid bare its course at the autopsy.

President Garfield's recovery from the shock of the wounds was very gradual. Later attempts to find the bullet failed, but there were no signs at once of serious internal hemorrhage and there was little external bleeding. Both of these symptoms developed later in the afternoon, with vomiting, and at 3:30 o'clock the physicians said that the patient could not be kept from vomiting.

PERITONITIS.

From then until the autopsy disclosed their error the surgeons spoke of the President's wound as having penetrated the liver and that it would eventually show an illustration of the chances of life in such a wound. It was found that of 100 or 170 cases of similar liver wounds in the Civil War, twenty-three were treated by the method of the President.

LITTLE REAL INFORMATION.

The newspapers printing extra editions almost hourly and the physicians were issuing frequent bulletins, but it was well understood—the doctors even saying so—that the bulletins gave little real information. They merely recorded the pulse, temperature and respiration and left the public to make its own deductions.

BOSCobel CHANGES HANDS.

Had Been in One Family for Over Two Hundred Years. (Special Dispatch to The Times.) FREDERICKSBURG, VA., Sept. 10.—Mr. Charles H. Hurkamp purchased today of Mrs. Jessie Little the handsome Boscobel estate, three miles from this city, for $100,000.

putting his hand to his lips. Later he lost all desire to talk. Not until Friday was pus—which the president's attendants thought was around the wound—seen. Ten days after the shooting the patient's temperature reached the highest point—102.3. The doctors all this time believed that the bullet had passed between the clavicle and the axilla, that it had struck the abdominal cavity, where they said it had lodged in the anterior wall of the abdomen, from which they expected to be able to remove it readily, in due time, without danger.

The surgeons had not relied solely upon the manifestations of the pus-walkings, but had also watched the patient's condition on the occasion of the "induction balance." There had been at least two occasions of serious relapse in the latter part of July, and at length Dr. Agnew made an incision. Explorations were made along the pus canal the supposed course of the bullet, where there was a chance of finding it, but the results were not satisfactory.

AUTOPSY MADE.

Improvement and relief continued through August, and on September 6th, the President was removed from the White House to Elberon, his case then being really hopeless. Three thousand, five hundred feet of track were laid from the railroad to the site of the President's cottage, to which the President was taken, so that the train could run practically to the door.

at No. 525 E. Broad Street. themselves on their arrival at Washington, they accepted the reports of the other attending surgeons and gave their approval of the course taken by them. On one hand it was said that they were bound to accept the reports of the other doctors who were first in charge. In the other, it was said, that their profession and the people expected them to be their own judges wholly and that the profession all over the world, when informed that these two men had been summoned, felt satisfied that the President was to have the best medical and surgical skill and knowledge available, and that this implied initial examination on the part of these surgeons. The case by reason of the remarkable mistake in the diagnosis of the wound, became a famous one in surgical annals.
