THE UNIVERSITY IN THE CONSTITUTION.

The Committee on Education of the Constitutional Convention has brought in a report in which it recommends that the University of Virginia shall have an annual appropriation of a sum not less than the present appropriation of $50,000.

We learn with some disappointment that there is opposition on the floor of the convention to the noble stand taken by the committee.

The reasons for founding a university for higher education are abundant and simple. No citizen, for the education of his son, can afford to build a university costing a million or two of dollars, and employing twenty-five or thirty learned men...

Neither should the State depend upon religious bodies for higher education. While religious bodies have built many noble schools of learning, they did it more as a rebuke to the State because it neglected its duty than because it felt that it was their sphere in which to operate.

Some of the members say, leave it to the Legislatures, but if the Legislatures are to legislate in regard to its support they then legislate in regard to its existence, and this is wrong.

The organization of the Richmond Horse Show Association was an event of more than local interest throughout the State, and it is being eventually throughout the State.

Dr. B. L. Gildersleeve, professor of Greek at Johns Hopkins University, has been saying some interesting things to the Baltimore Sun about the remarkable riots that have occurred in Athens because of a proposal to translate the Gospels into Greek.

Others say, why not put the Virginia Military Institute in the Constitution? It has annual appropriations amounting to $5,000 from the Federal Government.

The opening of the new Union Depot building in Richmond to-day is an event of more than passing interest, for it signifies much. It means that Richmond now has a new trunk line to the South, that Richmond is headquarters for the Seaboard Air-Line, and that the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company has more completely identified itself with Richmond.

The opening of the new Union Depot building in Richmond to-day is an event of more than passing interest, for it signifies much.

It is not in the same relation to the State as the University, and it is illogical to connect them.

The men who controlled the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad because they refused to support the free silver ticket, and especially because they said that the contemplated work in this city could not be done if free silver should prevail.

John Armstrong Chanler, declared sane by a Virginia court, had the hardihood to enter the boundaries of New York State, where a court has appointed a new guardian for his estate on the ground that he is insane.

Why not levy on the pension funds for one year and build the Nicaragua canal—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

At the general missionary convention of the Methodist Episcopal denomination in Pittsburgh Bishop James N. Fitzgerald, of St. Louis, incurred the displeasure of his fellow delegates because of his devotion to the Hawaiian Islands.

Yeast-I see a Philadelphia composer has written a quickstep. Crimmon-Yes, and I hear they are using it in Chicago for a funeral march—Yonkers Statesman.

Thomas P. Watts, of Louisville, Ky., who agreed to eat the large straw that he was wearing last election day if the Republican ticket should be defeated in that State, has gone into training for the present purpose.

The Opinion of a Veteran Trustee. Sir,—If the convention desires to let the voice of the people be heard in the management of the public schools, then let this constitution be amended so that school meetings of the patrons of each school, this meeting should have the authority to elect one director for each school and to formally express their views as to the conduct of the school.

Manassas, Va., Nov. 21, 1901. County Courts in Virginia. Sir,—I believe that you are wrong in supposing, as you do, that the people wish to continue to pay the cost of county courts in order to have a "County-Court Day."

Manassas, Va., Nov. 21, 1901. Sir,—A suggestion has been made by some members of the Constitutional Convention that in lieu of an annual pension the Confederates should be exempt from taxes to the extent of $1,000.

Turks are but a repetition of the wars of the ancients with Persia. Their devotion to the ancient language displays itself in many ways. The stone signs are either in the ancient characters or in the French language.
