DEMOCRACY'S BLUNDER. The Charlotte (N. C.) Observer reproduces from our columns the article from the Charlottesville Progress, which we recently printed and reviewed, on the felly and suicidal policy of Democratic fusion, or alliance, or association of whatever character with Populists and Free Silver Republicans and others who are not in thorough accord with the principles and policies of the Democratic party.

When the question shall have been duly considered and canvassed and deliberate conclusions reached, Richmond will fall into line and will give hearty support. That is the whole case in a nut shell and there is no use in having hard feelings about it.

Rejected communications will not be returned unless accompanied by stamps.

DEMOCRACY'S BLUNDER.

The Charlotte (N. C.) Observer reproduces from our columns the article from the Charlottesville Progress, which we recently printed and reviewed, on the felly and suicidal policy of Democratic fusion, or alliance, or association of whatever character with Populists and Free Silver Republicans and others who are not in thorough accord with the principles and policies of the Democratic party.

We do not profess to have the gift of prophecy, but our readers will recall that we said time and again in recent years that if the Democratic party continued to tie itself to free silver and free silverism, and to consort with Populists and Republicans, it would not only be defeated but the organization would become demoralized.

Everybody admits that the development of the State of Virginia during the past twenty-five years has been almost entirely through the means of corporations; and yet, strangely enough, there seems to be a sentiment of hostility in this State toward "organized capital," as it is called.

There were divisions in the Democratic party from the time of its organization on certain questions of public policy, but there was no division until 1856 on the principles of Democracy. Take the platforms of the party from the beginning until then and the same underlying principle is in each and all.

It is with regret that we see it reported that Major John W. Daniel, United States Senator, is thinking of resigning from the Constitutional Convention, on account both of his health and of his duties in Washington.

Lord Rosebery's term of office as Rector of Glasgow University ends with the present academic session, and the respective Liberal and Conservative societies connected with the university are arranging for the nomination of a successor.

CHARLES RHODES, managing director of the British South African Company, has just purchased for about $100,000 the 14th and 15th Hall estate, near Newmarket, which includes an imposing residence, built in 1794 by a Bishop of Ely, and 3.47 acres of fine shooting.

THE NEWSPAPER MORNING HERALD and Evening Times have been consolidated and the Times-Herald is now published as an afternoon paper. This seems to us a wise move.

The following from Harper's Weekly hits the right place and hits it hard: A Boston poet who contributes to the Transcript seven long stanzas of verse about "Roosevelt and his Guest" insists that the brands of war are smouldering under this people's calm, great heart.

Bill to Provide for Electrocuting in Virginia. Delegate George Y. Hunley, before leaving here for his home in Mathews several days ago, announced that during the recess of the Legislature he would prepare a bill to be presented in February providing for the electrocution of all prisoners in Virginia convicted of crimes punishable by death, instead of the present mode of inflicting death by hanging. He will present at the same time a companion bill providing that all executions shall take place at the State penitentiary, instead of in the county or city where the prisoner is convicted.

Mr. Hunley, at the last session of the Legislature, introduced a joint resolution calling on the State Board of Health for its opinion as to these matters, and just before the short session adjourned, Dr. Paulus A. Irving, the president of the Board, replied, giving the opinion of the Board, which is in conformity with the bills to be presented by Mr. Hunley. The popular Mathews leader says he expects to press both of his bills when introduced.
