

CONVULSED LAUGHTER IN SENATE CHAMBER

Debate Bitter, Sarcastic and Yet Good-Natured.

AN HISTORIC STATEMENT

Mr. Vest Corrects Impression as to Hampton Roads Conference.

FUNSTON IS DENOUNCED

Mr. Carmack Accused Him of a Deliberate and Premeditated Lie—Ready to Meet Every Slanderer of the South; Wherever He Comes from—Senator Dolliver Replied to Him.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—Discussion of the Philippine bill in the Senate today, while it scarcely abated in bitterness, took on an amusing phase. In a breezy speech Mr. Dolliver, of Iowa, made such a good-natured and yet such a sarcastic arraignment of Mr. Carmack, and occupants of the thronged galleries were convulsed with laughter. While, seemingly, considerable temper was aroused by the debate, good feeling was shown by the respective participants in the war of words.

VEST'S STATEMENT

Mr. Vest, of Missouri, called attention to the statement Mr. Tillman made yesterday, which he said, he was compelled to take notice of, in justice both to the living and the dead. That statement, which has been found in the public press and upon the lecture platform for the last three years, is that of the battle of Wounded Knee, to the Mountain Meadow massacre and to the massacre of Union negro soldiers at Fort Pillow, and contended that the action of American troops in the Philippines was in most instances entirely within the realm of civility.

WHAT DID HAPPEN

Mr. Vest then stated that what did happen at Hampton Roads, beyond question, was this: "That when the President and Secretary Seward met the commissioners of the Confederacy, Mr. Lincoln, addressing himself to Mr. Hunter, whom he knew by name, said: 'In the first place, gentlemen, will you know what are your powers and instructions from the Richmond Government?' avoiding, as Mr. Hunter told him himself, the words 'Confederate States.'"

CONSIDERED ITS DUTY

Mr. Vest then said that this terminated the interview, and as the Confederate commissioners retired, President Lincoln, addressing Stephens, who was the last to go out, said: "Stephens, you are making a great mistake, your government, as it seems to me, there will be chaos and disasters which we cannot now foresee which must come to your people."

asked everything, everything that is held dear amongst men, in defense of the Confederate cause."

While the deep silence still reigned in the chamber, he spoke, and with every eye directed toward him, Mr. Vest concluded as follows: "It may be but a very short time until I shall join the twenty-five colleagues I had in the Confederate Senate, and I did not want this statement to go into the record of this country without my statements of these facts and my solemn declaration that I should not have been in this position, which has been going the rounds of the newspapers of the country for the last few years."

The discussion of the Philippine bill then was resumed and Mr. Carmack, of Tennessee, replying to Mr. Burton, made a bitter denunciation of General Funston. He said he did not question his physical courage, but a few acts of dexterity in the Philippines did not make a hero.

PREMEDITATED LIE

When Funston had stated that Aguinaldo had burned three hundred people alive at one time, said Mr. Carmack, he only made a premeditated lie. In his opinion, he said, Funston is not to be believed upon any question whatever. The sudden waking up of the Republicans, he said, was for the deliberate purpose of reviving sectional hate in order to divert this debate and the attention of the people from the atrocities which have been permitted in the Philippines.

"I suppose it is in obedience to instructions from the White House," he said, "that the effort is being made to reopen the wounds of the country that have been healed."

"Facing the Republican side, and speaking with evident emotion, Mr. Carmack said: "I shall be ready to meet every slanderer of the South and every defamer of its honor, whether the assailant comes from some part of the country beyond the borders of the South, or whether it be some recent and degenerate traitor who has proved a traitor to the womb and bosom of his mother."

KEEP THEIR MOUTHS SHUT

After stating that he would not be diverted from the issue now before the Senate by the falsehoods brought into the debate, Mr. Carmack said, referring to the charges, etc., in the South: "You cannot help us by denunciation. The best thing you can do is to keep your mouths shut and let us alone. Turning his attention to the Philippine question, and especially to the speech of Mr. Lodge, Mr. Carmack said that the Massachusetts Senator was so narrow that he could not have a proper appreciation of the arguments that have been made against the Philippine policy. He declared that Mr. Lodge was dishonoring the American army and the American Senate by defending orders which looked to the murder of women and children. Such orders of death—a brutal and inhuman order—could not be justified by anybody; yet these were the orders which Senators had the 'devilish impudence' to justify.

DISHONORED THE ARMY

Mr. Carmack, quoting from the speech of Mr. Lodge, said that the Massachusetts Senator had not suggested any reason why General Smith should not be hanged as a common murderer. "Smith has not," said Mr. Carmack, "burned people at the stake. He has done nothing but butcher a whole people in cold blood. He has dishonored the whole American army."

DISHONORED THE ARMY

He declared that the United States was entering upon a century, perhaps three centuries, of constant warfare, for no other result than that a few carpet-bags thieves might have opportunity to rob the people of the Philippines as they used to rob the people of the Southern States.

DISHONORED THE ARMY

Mr. Foraker interrupted to ask if Mr. Carmack thought it was the purpose of President McKinley in taking over the Philippines to provide a theatre of scandalism. Mr. Carmack replied that McKinley's purpose was that of "benevolent assimilation. The purpose of the Republican party now is malevolent dissimulation." (Laughter.)

DISHONORED THE ARMY

Mr. Dolliver then read an editorial from a Memphis newspaper upon Mr. Carmack's recent speech on the Philippine question, in which that paper took sharp issue with the Tennessee Senator as to his conclusions. Mr. Dolliver's comment upon the editorial as he read it was highly amusing, and both Senators on the floor and the people in the gallery laughed heartily at his sarcastic allusions.

DISHONORED THE ARMY

In reply Mr. Carmack said he had no idea of tossing jaw bones with the redoubtable tongue slinger from Iowa. He said that where his language was not witty his gestures were ridiculous. "So far as his argument is concerned," said the Tennessee Senator, "he might just as well have been talking in his professional hall from a leafy bough."

DISHONORED THE ARMY

The speech, he declared, was accompanied by Simlan gestures and was of little force or effect so far as the main question was concerned. He said that the newspapers from which Mr. Dolliver read were owned by Luke E. Wright, a member of the Philippine Commission. He charged that Mr. Dolliver, in his speech just concluded, committed murder in the Philippines and defended the order of General Smith.

DISHONORED THE ARMY

"Poor old Smith," he continued, "the scoundrel, the murderer, the butcher. I am glad to say that the Senator from Iowa is the only man thus far that has risen in his place to defend that bloody old scoundrel."

DISHONORED THE ARMY

"I call the Senator from Tennessee to order," suggested Mr. Hoar, "in response to a ruling from the Chair on my point of order."

DISHONORED THE ARMY

By direction of the President pro tem (Mr. Frye) the stenographer here read the final statement of Mr. Carmack.

shown, and that the debate had taken a sectional turn. He thought it would be well for both sides first to learn the truth about the order of General Smith. If the charges are proven he did not believe any Senator would defend him.

HOW TO PAINT A HOUSE CHEAP

NEW KENT COURT

No Meeting Could Be Held, but Proclaimers in Majority.

(Special Dispatch to The Times.)

NEW KENT, VA., May 8.—The fact that the weather was not favorable for farming operations brought a large crowd to the courthouse to-day. The chief topic discussed was the new Constitution, and it was intended by leading Democrats to have a Democratic mass meeting for the purpose of instructing the county's representative, Hon. M. H. Barnes, as to the wishes of the Democratic voters as to proclamation. But there was considerable business before the County Court, the use of the courthouse could not be had, and the meeting was abandoned.

Controversy Over the Ownership of an Old Mill Pond—Bishop Randolph Preaches and Confirms a Class.

(Special Dispatch to The Times.)

HOUSTON, TX., May 8.—The criminal docket in Halifax County Court was an unusually large one, but every case was tried and disposed of. Sanford Kinley, charged with the murder of E. C. Crowder, was found guilty of murder in the second degree and given eighteen years in the penitentiary. The prisoner was unable to employ counsel, but at the request of the court he was represented by Judge Merrill and Kent Morris, who made an excellent and effective defense, saving the prisoner's neck, which was really a great victory.
