A NATION SYMPATHIZES.

When sorrow spreads her wings and the shadows lengthen round us, personal differences are forgotten; animosities, if they existed, are wiped out, and a great swelling wave of sympathy engulfs all. In his hour of utter desolation with the temple of his love in ruins, a nation shares the grief that encompasses the President of the United States.

All the world loves a lover, and the tender, yet ever virile, solicitude of Woodrow Wilson for her who shared his triumphs and his defeats, his joys and his sorrows, endeared him to all who had knowledge of his domestic felicity.

There are griefs whose depths may not be sounded. There are sorrows unfathomable. Though sweetened by the generous and spontaneous sympathy of the American people, Woodrow Wilson must drink along the bitter waters of Marah.

It was extremely unfortunate that during their life in the White House Mrs. Wilson was long incapacitated to such a degree as to prevent her from exercising her splendid talents and intellect. Fitted in every way to fill with dignity the onerous place of First Lady of the Land, her activities were halted, checked and finally terminated by the fatal malady that so unexpectedly beset her. News of her critical condition was unexpected, and knowledge of her death came as a shock to the entire nation.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

PEACE IN THE RAILROAD WORLD.

In consenting to arbitrate acute differences with their engineers, the managers of 98 Western railroads have removed an ominous cloud from the horizon of domestic affairs. A strike of such great proportions, at this particular time, might have developed into a very serious national disaster. That such a disaster was near is evidenced by the fact that the President of the United States felt constrained to use his influence toward an immediate and peaceful solution of the trouble.

The railroads were very reluctant to submit to a scheme of arbitration which would not permit them discuss certain of their own contentions. We do not know whether it was patriotism, an untenable position or strategy which finally brought about the railroads' change of front. But whatever it was, it saved the country from a strike which would have had costly results.

With this strike out of the way, the freight rate matter finally adjusted and with the Government doing all in its power to relieve the money situation, the country can settle down to studying European war maps with more concentration of mind than might have been looked for.—Times-Star.

"All forms of business in Porto Rico are suffering an acute depression, and the final removal of the tariff on sugar will throw the island back into practically the same economic condition that it was in before the American occupation," is the statement of R. L. Smith, a sugar expert, who visited the island, recently, and made a careful study of conditions.

The people of the State of Maine, says the Portland Express, have not changed in their attitude toward the protection principle in the twenty years, past, and if history repeats itself, as all the indications now are that it will, the election in this State in September will be an overwhelming victory for Governor Haines and the Republican party.

But those New Yorkers who are war-bound in Europe think its a million miles from Broadway.

WILL THE "OLD GUARD" RETURN?

"Verily," says the Boston Globe, "the Old Guard never surrenders, but can it come back?" And then it points out how the members of the Old Guard are trying to "come back" all over the country—Penrose in Pennsylvania, "Uncle Joe" Cannon and William B. McKinley in Illinois, Foraker in Ohio, Dillingham in Vermont, Gallinger in New Hampshire.

Come back! Why, of course they'll come back, says Truth, perhaps every mother's son of them; at least, a majority. And why should they not?

The Globe calls them "standpatters." The Bull Moose call them "sinister influences" and the links connecting "crooked politics" with "crooked business." But calling hard names has served its purpose. It is no longer effective. Those who think it is, mistake the temper of the people today, for the people remember how prosperity was passed around under the regime of the "standpatter," and they have learned by bitter experience since what a menace to their welfare the enemy of the "standpatter" really is.

"Few people are aware," says the San Francisco Chronicle, "that the Great Lakes traffic passing through the Soo canal is about three times that of the volume passing through the Suez canal. The habit of considering external traffic, or what is called foreign trade, as of more consequence than domestic intercourse, is responsible for the obscuration of the fact that the home trade is of vastly more consequence, and greatly exceeds in magnitude that which grows out of the exchange of products between people who live under different flags."

It is a significant fact that the leading maritime nation, Great Britain, passed through the Suez Canal during 1912 12,847,621 tons, while from the United States which permitted its merchant marine to decline to insignificant proportions only 2,944 tons passed through that waterway. During 1910, 1911 and 1912 Great Britain furnished 63.4 per cent. of the entire net tonnage that passed through the Suez Canal, while the United States furnished less than one-tenth of one per cent.

The New York Journal of Commerce has made a careful computation of the probable amount that the income tax will yield for a full year, and concludes that it will not be over $35,000,000. The estimates of the Democratic tariff leaders last year ranged from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000. This was, of course, exclusive of the corporation and excise taxes.

THE DAILY NOVELLETTE.

Almost Fatal.

Terror took possession
Of Laseon Longstreth Lucket.
He cried, "I am a dead one.
I'm sure I'll kick the bucket."

It was so dark that one could scarcely see one's hand before one's face. Behind one's back it would have been impossible.

Laseon L. Lucket didn't see the locomotive until it headed straight for him.

The hair on his head began to rise.

"My lands," he thought (he was a terrible swearer), "what if it should hit me?"

Unable to move, almost unable to think, hypnotized by the great headlights on the rushing iron steed, Laseon L. Lucket could do nothing but stare, stare with open mouth at approaching death.

Nearer, near!

"It must be time for me to think over all the details of my life in rapid succession," shivered Lucket despairingly.

"But try as he might he could think of nothing save that when he was a mere child he had put his finger in a closing door to see how it felt.

"This is frightful!" he thought.

The locomotive was now almost on him. Laseon L. Lucket closed his eyes.

But lo! just as the collision seemed inevitable (he was on the first row) the locomotive reached the front of the moving picture screen and disappeared from view.—Louisville Times.

SEVEN REASONS

Why You Should Attend the State Convention at Ashland, Ky., From August 31st to September 3d

- (1) Ashland is one of the most beautiful cities of Kentucky.
- (2) Ashland is one of the best industrial cities in the State.
- (3) Ashland is the gateway to the Billion Dollar Eastern Empire.
- (4) This is the first time in the history of the Christian Church that a State Convention has met in Eastern Kentucky.
- (5) The Ashland Church is a child of the State and has gone to house keeping; she wants the old folks to come to see her.
- (6) The Ashland Christian Church is one of the most beautiful and one of the best equipped buildings in the State.
- (7) Our cause is not strong in Eastern Kentucky. We would have you know more about this growing section of the State and we need the inspiration of your presence.

Ashland is located on the Ohio River in Boyd County below the mouth of the Big Sandy River. Ashland has a population of ten thousand and is one of the best paved cities in the world. Practically all of the streets are paved with brick or bitulithic. The avenues are one hundred feet from property line to property line. She is a splendidly laid out city and the streets are lined with beautiful trees. In the very heart of the city is a park of fifty acres with virgin forest, being one of the finest natural parks in the Middle West. Beautiful Cliffside Park is just outside the city limits. We, may Ashland be called the "Park City." Some of the handsomest homes in the state are to be found along her avenues.

In coming to Ashland from Central Kentucky the delegates will pass through Morehead where the C. W. B. M. is doing such a great work. The N. & W. C. & O., and a splendid trolley line will enable the delegates to reach Portsmouth and Ironton, Ohio, Catlettsburg and Louisa, Kentucky, Ceredo, Huntington and Guyandotte Valley, W. Va., and other nearby cities quickly and cheaply.

Space forbids our describing Industrial Ashland. Situated between the ore fields to the north and the coking coal mines to the south, Ashland has a decided geographical advantage. The raw material is here made into the finished product. Ashland has the largest and most modern iron furnaces and steel mill in the state, one of the largest and one of the largest and most complete tanneries and leather plants in the world. Also a sheet mill and roofing plant, a cut and wire mill, a fire brick plant and a million dollar by-product coke plant. Ashland is growing rapidly. A "for rent" sign is seldom seen.

Eastern Kentucky is an Empire with itself. In the Big Sandy Valley cities are springing up as if by magic. Much wealth is being poured into this section of the state that the coal fields may be developed. When the connecting link thru the breaks of the Cumberland Mountains is completed, the shortest route between Chicago and the Southeastern Coast and Florida will pass through Ashland and up the Big Sandy Valley. Ashland is the logical Capital of this Great Eastern Empire for she stands at the very gateway.

The Christian Church has spent much money in Eastern Kentucky. More money is now being spent in the Sixteenth District than in any other District in the state. Yet the church has never held a state convention farther east than Mt. Sterling.

For years the State Board assisted the work at Ashland. At one time $1,000 a year was given to this work. How well that money was spent may be judged by the progress made. With fewer than three hundred members the present building was planned and built and dedicated in December, 1913. The entire plant cost $55,000. On the day of dedication it was necessary to raise $26,000. Over $31,000 was subscribed.

The church building was designed by the same architect who designed the Paris and Winchester churches. It is beautiful in its simplicity and is thoroughly equipped. The main auditorium has a seating capacity of seven hundred and is equipped with a Moller organ of 24 stops, including the cathedral chimes. The choir is vested.

The Bible School occupies the entire basement and the rear of the building on the floors above. The classes are separated by glass accordinian doors. In connection with the basement is a completely furnished kitchen and china closet. During the convention, dinner and supper will be served in the basement at a nominal cost. It will not be necessary for the delegates to leave the building during the day.

NO MOISTURE.

(Central City Argus.)
Central City experienced her first "dry" election Saturday, and it certainly was some dry. A few old timers hung around until almost time for the polls to close but it was no use.

"He is the sort of man," said Eph Wiley yesterday in discussing his son-in-law, "who marches in a suffragette parade."

MAY PROVE FATAL

When Will Maysville People Learn the Importance of 17?

Backache is only a simple thing at first; but if you find this from the kidneys; That serious kidney troubles may follow; That dropsy or Bright's disease may be the fatal end; You will be glad to know the following experience.

"This is the statement of a Maysville citizen. Mrs. Della Lunsford, 328 E. Front St., Maysville, Ky., says: 'I attributed kidney trouble to a strain. I had sharp, shooting pains through my kidneys and a dragging down feeling through my hips. I had dull headaches and dizzy spells and often if I had not caught hold of something for support, I would have fallen. I was in that condition for several years, up one week and in bed the next. I finally began to notice symptoms of dropsy and in a short time I was suffering from that trouble. My feet began to swell and my hands were at times the same way. At night I was restless and always felt tired. I read of a similar case being cured by Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a supply. Before long I was completely and permanently cured. Doan's Kidney Pills saved my life. I am glad to confirm my former endorsement of this remedy.' Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Lunsford had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.
