SALOONS OR NO SALOONS.

Often it is said that when you touch a man's pocket book, you touch his heart. But it never seemed so sadly true as in the present issue of "saloons or no saloons."

We hear not the question of which is right, nor which will count for health and long life, nor which will make happy homes and good citizens. But the one cry of objection from those who would keep the saloon is "property, taxes, revenue, commercial interests."

Must the streets of the city be paved and lighted with blood money? One boy in four is the victim of strong drink. Do you barter your own or your neighbor's son?

We knew that liquor clouded the brain and blinded the eyes and dulled the sensibilities of those that imbibed. But until this time we had not known that its very presence has the same effect upon some of those who only see and smell it from day to day!

Scenes on the streets of Maysville on Saturdays, court days and holidays are surely enough to touch the pride of any good citizen. In the presence of such sights can silent indifference continue even in business should suffer and taxes should increase? It may cost something to have a decent town. But the records of dry towns show that in most cases business has flourished as never before.

Prosperity has taken the place of object poverty. Money that before was worse than squandered has gone into useful channels. Men are no longer incapacitated for work and can support their families. The chief cause of the heavy burden of crime, poverty, and insanity being removed; the public funds may be used to benefit the community instead of supporting those made helpless by the traffic.

More than once it has been clearly intimated that Maysville could take care of herself without the county's help. "What business has the county here?" Until now the county's products have found welcome market and have gone far to furnish Maysville's food supply. Until now our patronage of those markets, stores and banks has found a warm welcome. But where corruption for revenue is concerned, you are independent! Do you take our products and our dollars and return the blighted lives of our strong young men? This fight is our business for the reason that self-preservation is the first law of life. It is our business because as law-abiding citizens we have a right to protection. Our very lives are endangered. It is our business because of the inalienable rights granted to Ken-

HELPLESS AS BABY

Down in Mind Unable to Work, and What Helped Her.

Summit Point, W. Va.—Mrs. Anna Belle Emey, of this place, says: "I suffered for 15 years with an awful pain in my right side, caused from womanly trouble, and doctored lots for it, but without success. I suffered so very much, that I became down in mind, and as helpless as a baby. I was in the worst kind of shape. Was unable to do any work."

I began taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, and got relief from the very first dose. By the time I had taken 12 bottles, my health was completely restored. I am now 48 years years old, but feel as good as I did when only 16.

Cardui certainly saved me from losing my mind, and I feel it my duty to speak in its favor. I wish I had some power over poor, suffering women, and could make them know the good it would do them."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, it will certainly be worth your while to give Cardui a trial. It has been helping weak women for more than 50 years, and will help you, too.

Try Cardui. Your druggist sells it.

tuckians by our Bill of Rights. "The right of enjoying and defending their lives and liberties. The right of seeking and pursuing their safety and happiness."

Liquor traffic is the greatest enemy of our greatest institutions, the home, the school, and the church. Therefore it has no moral right to continue. It has no good excuse for its own existence.

In a Kansas case it was decided by the Supreme Court of the United States to be "a business in which no one may lawfully engage."

Sixteen of Kentucky's counties are preparing for the battles in September. The States around us not already dry are making ready for State-wide prohibition. This is a national movement, even a world movement. We can only answer for Mason county just now. We must sweep before our own door before going out to clean up the world. Which will it be on September 28th business or boys, houses or homes?

What is the wealth of the world without the priceless treasures of peace and safety, health and happiness? The strength of manhood in this proud, old county must protect its youth and defend its homes.

THE CHAUTAUQUA SALUTE.

A subscriber at Mt. Sterling sends the Courier-Journal a clipping from a religious newspaper in which a Texas minister assails the Chautauqua salute as "unsanitary and dangerous." The following extract indicates the line of his argument:

"I sat for eight days in the General Conference room in Oklahoma City and there was hardly an hour, day or night, but that the atmosphere in the room was almost thick enough to float one's hat, and every time the janitor lowered a window some old croupy fellow who was dying for the lack of pure air would jump up and pull the window down. But on top of all this impure air some nervous individual would pull off an occasional Chautauqua salute and empty out the germs from a thousand handkerchiefs on the already highly polluted atmosphere."

The writer goes on to say that in the interest of the public health the Chautauqua salute ought to be abolished by common consent. He makes the sensible suggestion that "the healthful exercise of hand clapping should take its place."

The ventilation in public buildings frequently is of negligible character. In such a case as is cited at the Oklahoma City meeting it may be readily imagined that a general waving of handkerchiefs is likely to put in circulation the germs of tuberculosis, grip and other diseases—and that, too, under highly favorable conditions for disease distribution. Unfortunately there is a very large proportion of the human family that remains to be educated in the matter of proper ventilation.

A Chautauqua salute in the open air with handkerchiefs of immaculate cleanliness might be harmless. In a crowded and poorly ventilated building the germ-bearing possibilities of hundreds and thousands of handkerchiefs in active service are appalling.—Courier-Journal.

QUAIL SHOOTING

Promises To Be Unusually Good—Season Has Been Favorable For Development of Birds.

Frankfort, Ky.—Quail are reported much more plentiful this year than for the last two seasons, said J. Q. Ward, executive agent of the State Game and Fish Commission. A shortage of cover, due to the prolonged drought, he believes will make the sport exceptionally fine when the season opens the middle of November. Last year unseasonable floods washed away the nests at brooding time, and the year before floods and cold weather got many of the birds. At the same time pot hunters were slaughtering and shipping out of the State hundreds of thousands of birds. By co-operation between the State and Federal departments that has been made too hazardous an occupation to be profitable and Kentucky is rapidly being restocked.

The streams likewise are being replenished with game. The drought has helped the fish through the spawning season and been beneficial to the fry placed in the Kentucky and other rivers by the Government fishery service. The fish spawn in the small tributary streams. Freshets cause the spawn to be washed away and the little fish torn from the protection of the mother to be devoured by enemies or killed by the sediment held in suspension. The lack of freshets has permitted the spawn to linger in shallow water and protected the fry cast in these tributary streams.

Mr. Ward said Government experts declared Kentucky streams as a whole the best fish streams in the country. Most of them have rocky bottoms, where the fish can hide and where fish food thrives. This latter element determines the growth of the finny population of any stream or body of water. Numerous tributaries also help as they afford proper spawning environments.

After undergoing hardships, many American tourists, who were in Germany when war was declared, have arrived in Holland. They report that they were treated courteously except on the day when England declared war, when many Germans assumed threatening attitudes on hearing English spoken.
