WERE NEUTRAL.

We know some folks who'd like to see the Germans licked from A to Z; But others think it would be well to see the Allies back in—er Paris. Now, we are very glad to say we do not feel at all that way. Both armies look alike to us; We play no favorites in this fuss. For how can we be anti-Dutch? Or anti-French? We owe too much to fashions, French, to German song, To English books—all cherished long.—EX.

MAYOR BENNETT UNABLE TO DELIVER LECTURE HERE.

A telegram was received yesterday evening by the leaders of the "Dry" party which stated that because of a wash-out below Cincinnati, Mayor W. W. Bennett of Rockford, Ill., who was to lecture on the effects of Prohibition in Rockford, would be unable to get here in time to deliver his lecture. Rev. W. S. Irvine, formerly of Fleming county, but now of Jackson, Ky., Mr. W. W. Ball, Rev. Mr. Baumann, of Flemingsburg, and Rev. W. B. Wilhoite, delivered interesting speeches. The children, under the direction of Mrs. C. M. Freeman of Ashland, marched and sang several songs. Mayor Bennett will fill his engagement here at a later date.

FUNERAL OF MRS. G. W. OLDFHAM.

The remains of Mrs. George W. Oldham arrived here yesterday afternoon at 1:40 over the C. & O., from Cleveland, accompanied by her son, Mr. W. D. Oldham, and were taken to the home of Mr. P. W. Wheeler in West Second street, where the funeral services were held at 10:30 this morning. Rev. J. M. Literal of the Third Street M. E. Church, in charge. The burial will take place in the Maysville Cemetery, beside the grave of her late husband.

SEALED BIDS.

Will be received at Superintendent Jessie O. Yancey's office for the building of a school house at Plumville, Ky. Specifications can be seen at my office. Bids will be received up to 10 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, September 22nd. The lowest and best bidder will be awarded the contract.

THE SEVENTH EPISODE OF "The Million Dollar Mystery"

The Greatest of All Serial Plays

Hon. Jacob E. Meeker—His Speech

REJECTS PRINCIPLE OF MAJORITY RULE

He threw down the gauntlet to the principle of Majority Rule and said that the liquor traffic would show those who oppose it that no law was strong enough to hold it—a thing we have learned well enough when it comes to laws intended to regulate the traffic. He declared that if Local Option carries the traffic would violate the law and sell liquor anyhow. He seemed not to consider that it would be easier and less embarrassing to fight a few degraded white men and their degraded negro lieutenants, with the law on our side, than to contend against eminently respectable citizens protected by the law.

But all this talk about obeying regulatory laws and violating prohibitory laws is the merest stuff. Every town and city having open saloons has also "Blind Tigers," sells to minors and inebriates and violates the Sunday closing law. Meeker and those whom he represents are greatly concerned lest local option should tempt minors to get liquor through mail order houses. The law as it now stands is just as prohibitory of the sale of liquor to minors as local option would be. If the saloon keepers obey the law, the minor is in as much danger from the Mail Order House as he would be under local option.

The advocates of prohibition accept Mr. Meeker's challenge of defiance of the law and are prepared for a fight to the finish. The laws of nature are on the side of the prohibitionist. The expulsion of the liquor traffic is a great evolutionary process and has its strength in a great life force that existed before man was created, the same that "moved upon the face of the waters" and brought order out of chaos. That force is carrying humanity to a higher plane and will not give up the fight.

NOT THE BUSINESS OF WOMEN ANYHOW

Mr. Meeker more than intimated that the saloon and the drink habit was no business of women, upon whom he was particularly hard. WHEN A MAN ASKS A WOMAN TO PERMIT HIM TO BECOME THE FATHER OF HER CHILDREN, THE PROVIDER AND PROTECTOR OF HER HOME, AND SHE ACCEPTS HIS OFFER, AT ONCE THAT WOMAN HAS "VESTED RIGHTS," AND ANYTHING THAT MAN MAY DO THAT AFFECTS HIS FITNESS FOR FATHERHOOD OR HIS EFFICIENCY AS A PRODUCER AND PROTECTOR IS THAT WOMAN'S BUSINESS. She is justified in using all righteous means to prevent his doing anything that renders him unfit and inefficient.

It is a fine thing to tell negro men and the husbands of laboring white women that these women who do the drudgery of the community, upon whose labor depends the comfort of the community, have no business to concern themselves about the whisky their husbands drink.

SHOCKING PERVERSION OF BIBLE

Mr. Meeker was once a minister of the Gospel. He knows as do all public speakers the magic there is in the name of Jesus. While he was a minister he fell in company with some high-thinking fragments of which he has not forgotten. And so he endeavored to catch the better part of his audience with reciting those fine lines of Holman, beginning, "God Give Us Men," and more of the same kind. Imagine his appealing to God to give us "Men whom the lust of office will not buy."

in addressing the advocates of the saloon in which the lust of office daily barbers and sells men like sheep in the shambles. Has Mr. Meeker no sense of humor?

But it was shocking beyond measure to hear the words of Jesus in Gethsemane quoted in support of the perpetuation of what the people of Maysville daily see and hear on the east side of Market street from Third street to the river. Profanation, Impiousness, Desecration, Blasphemy, are the terms that come readily to the mind in trying to describe Mr. Meeker's use of high and sacred things.

INSINCERITY APPARENT

The insincerity of Mr. Meeker is easily apparent. He says that statistics show that following each of the movements led by Father Mathew, John B. Gough, Francis Murphy and Francis Willard, there was a marked decrease in the consumption of intoxicating drinks, showing he says that moral suasion is a more effective weapon than legislation. Since he gives as his reason for taking part in this struggle his desire to conserve morals and to keep at the minimum the consumption of intoxicants, why does he not use his unusual powers of public speech in an effort by moral suasion to move men to abstain from liquor? As a result of modern scientific research, Mr. Meeker knows more than the reformers of the past generation the nature of alcohol and its effect on living tissues and is therefore better equipped than were they to make a winning fight against it.

He shows some understanding of the ethical intent of Christianity, why then does he tell men that it is none of their wives' business if they do drink and distort the Bible to make it appear that the use of a poisonous drug as a beverage has the Divine approval, and why does he suggest gleefully an infinite variety of ways in which the Prohibition law may be violated.

Even his illustrations are arguments against his contention that the open saloon keeps at the minimum the consumption of liquor. He says, "God placed the apple tree in the middle of the Garden of Eden and Adam and Eve ran a race to see which could get the first apple. God ought to have placed it over the fence." From which illuminating illustration he concludes that saloons in the middle of a town are less apt to be patronized than "Blind Tigers," over the fence. And the Business Men's Association calls that argument and pays for it at $125 per.

If the darkened, often because never lighted mind, of some in the audience were caught by this clap trap, one can hardly believe that the part of the audience better fitted to weigh and consider even among those responsible for Mr. Meeker coming, could feel anything but revulsion at the whole performance—for it was a performance—of the vaudeville type.

PUNISH THE CONSUMER

Mr. Meeker was particularly insistent that the consumer of liquor as well as the seller be punished. Never yet has the consumer failed to pay the penalty, and he gets his sentence under a system of government, IN WHICH THERE ARE NO HUNG JURIES, NO REMITTED FINES AND NO PARDONS, AND ASIDE FROM NATURE'S PENALTIES, WHO BUT THE DRINKER IS ARRESTED, FINED, JAILED, PUT IN THE PENITENTIARY AND HUNG FOR CRIMES TO WHICH THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC AND THOSE WHO SUPPORT IT BY THEIR VOTES ARE PARTY.

Mr. Meeker sought to forestall criticism by inveighing against his critics. He, himself, he declared abstained from calling people names. Then having said that the hypocrite was the only man whom Christ denounced because the hypocrite was the sum of all the infamies, he proceeded to put by implication all ministers of the Gospel, all elders and deacons and all church members, who oppose the open saloon into the same class of hypocrites.

EVENING ADDRESS

Mr. Meeker's evening address did not differ in method nor materially in matter from the afternoon address only he kept it at longer.

He delivered two of his old sermons, one on the Good Samaritan and one on the Ninety and Nine. But when it came to making practical application of the liquor traffic to stop beating and robbing men and leaving them naked by the roadside and to stop making ergs and precipices over which wandering sheep may fall, and jungles in which they may be lost, he sneered at the anti-saloon league for trying to remove these places of danger.

He did not tell that the ones who do whatever is done to bind up wounds and hunt up the lost is done by the very people who stand back of the work being done by the Anti-Saloon League.

He said that the erring should be reclaimed by the power of love, that the liquor traffic was a great public benefactor in that it furnished much of the revenue to run the city and then the crowd that brought Mr. Meeker here, on every Monday morning, catches up poor J—, you every one know his name, one of the best patrons the Maysville saloon ever had and has paid as much or more of the city's revenue as any man in Maysville and fine him in Police Court for his patriotic service. They ought to decorate him with the Legion of Honor and on days when we march in honor of soldiers, sailors, red cross nurses and all those who serve their country at the risk of their lives, we ought to place our kind, fellow-citizen—you all know him—in rich regalia at the head of a regiment of those who pay revenue to support the city through the tills of the saloon.

Every once in awhile Mr. Meeker stumbled and fell upon a truth. For instance, when he said "Politics does have to do with morals and business." Now, there is just where the Church and its ministers get on. Little by little we are coming to see that politics is only the management of our common interests and that the politics that has nothing to do with religion is very bad and useless religion.

One thing that Mr. Meeker said that was pertinent was to advise the rail-sitters to get off the fence and get into the contest somewhere, to get off the fence and stand for something.

Jesus Christ is again on trial, may he not be wounded in the house of his friends. Peter is not the last man who denied his Lord nor Esau the last who sold his birthright for a mess of pottage.

The fact that men of the type who follow do not know where some very prominent Christians stand is misleading some, and will make votes for the wrong side. Christian, use your influence to its fullest extent for the side of a clean town and peaceable, prosperous homes.

A GASOLINE SIDE-WHEELER.

(Courier-Journal) An innovation in water craft is attracting considerable attention on the local wharf. It is the gasoline side-wheeler towboat Jephtha, owned by Capt. W. B. Clouser, a riverman who has been plying the Mississippi River and its tributaries since 1865. Sidewheel boats driven by steam were common in 1865, but are seen rarely now. The Jephtha is believed to be the first side-wheeler with gasoline as the motive power.

Miss Anna Dieterich is in Lexington today.
