

SAFETY FIRST

's a sage farmer not many miles from town, who once told us this fable to tell a mushroom from a fool.

you live, it's a mushroom.'

's a similar element of risk in the big of cheap clothes. It is all a matter of whether you want to risk $15 on a chance, or invest $15, $20 or $25 on a certainty.

At the live store we can sell you a $15 suit as good—and probably better—than you can get anywhere else in this country.

You need never worry about discovering—too late, alas—that your mushroom was, in fact, a toadstool.

And to make assurance doubly sure, this store stands behind their clothes with a guarantee that insures your lasting satisfaction or your money back without a quibble or a frown.

MRS. KLEIN DILLMAN

Called to Rest Wednesday Morning at Home of Her Mother in Dayton, Ohio.

Dayton, Ohio, October 28, 1914. To The Public Ledger:

Mrs. Klein Dillman died at the home of her mother in Audubon Park, this city, Wednesday morning at 11:25; aged 23 years and 10 days.

Funeral from residence at 2 p. m., Friday, in Woodlawn Cemetery, etc.

Mrs. Dillman had resided in Maysville since their marriage three years ago, and both were very much esteemed by their many friends. Mrs. Dillman was an amiable, gentle, Christian character, and the bereaved husband and little orphaned boy have the sincerest sympathy of those who know how heartrending these visitations of the Death Angel to the home are to the human family.

Mrs. Dillman's health began to fail about a year ago and she was taken to the home of her mother in Dayton, in hopes that the change would prove beneficial, but the end was inevitable.

Mr. Dillman has been the expert typewriter operator in The Public Ledger office for the past year and the entire office force extend to him their deep sense of consolation in the loss he now sustains.

Mr. Albert D. Gale, of Richmond, Ind., is visiting her mother, Mrs. Alwidia Wheeler of Forest avenue

"A MIX UP"

Parker A. Hord's Merry Farce Wins Maysville Man Instant Dramatic Success

One of the Most Humorous Farces of the Day—Marie Dressler in the Title Role

(Friday's Atlantic City, N. J., Daily Press.)

The Apollo Theatre has seen more successes this season in a short space of time than at any time in the history of the playhouse, which has become famous for the number of premiere performances it has housed. There have been dramatic successes, melodramatic successes, comedy successes, musical successes and, yes, even farce successes. A former notable play which scored a few seasons ago in the latter category was "Seven Days." But there have been very few plays of the farce type that have soared to the heights of its success, for the simple reason that farce, pure, unadulterated farce, that maintains the interest from beginning to end is one of the most difficult of all the playwright's tasks.

Every once in so often a really exuberantly funny farce is written and it usually happens that the farce is by a hitherto unknown author. That once in so often happened last night, when the practically unknown Parker A. Hord—which name sounds strangely like a non de theatre—stepped into the limelight of success with his three-act play he has labelled "A Mix-Up."

That Marie Dressler would live up to her title of the "funniest woman on the stage" was a foregone conclusion, for Miss Dressler is funny in no matter what she appears; but with the lines, situations and highly improbable but amusing story that the author has provided her through the Messrs. Schubert the merry comedienne has advanced her humor standing to the nth degree.

If the author had subtitled his farce, "A play for confirmed grouches, or those who never laugh," he would have been pardonably correct, for theatergoers who never allow their stern visages to relax into a smile, or even a grin, surprised themselves last night by hearing their own voices raised in hearty laughter. In point of fact the situations in "A Mix-Up" are so spontaneous and so remarkably well observed as holding up to the light of ridicule the actions, fads and foibles of the human being, that the risibilities are easily touched and respond to shafts of wit, comedy, farce, satire and burlesque. In fact, the play runs the entire gamut. It has all been done before, of course, but here it is done with a fresh viewpoint and this newly garnered slant on old stage and shop-worn situations are not only acceptable, but relished.

The slight thread of the absurdity

Those old Daguerreotypes of Grandfather and Grandmother and Aunt Mary and then the quaint pictures of Father and Mother, taken just after the war—money couldn't buy them from you.

Are you forgetful of the fact that future generations would cherish just such pictures of you?

MISS MOORE RECOVERING.

Miss Pearl Moore, the victim of an attack by an unknown man last Saturday night, and who has since been confined to her home suffering from injuries inflicted by her unknown assailant, is recovering rapidly and will soon be able to resume her position at the Cumberland Telephone office.

The police are still working on the case, but with little prospect of apprehending the guilty party. On a theory that the man was a white man in disguise several suspects have been placed under surveillance, but nothing has been definitely learned that would warrant an arrest.

The similarity of the cases of Mrs. Isgrigg, in East Paris; Miss Oliver, near Rattles Mills; Miss Kiser, near Kiser; Miss Moore in Paris, and two others whose desire to avoid publicity has kept their names out of print, lead to the theory that one or two men have been pursuing the same tactics.

Man made laws may be all right and the talk of justice good, but there ought to be a quick and sure end to such dastardly scoundrels who are terrorizing and attacking defenseless women in their homes and on the public highways.—Bourbon News.

improbable story is based on the blundering of a stage star into the wrong apartment. Gladys Lorraine seeks the Coronada, but gets into the Colorado. Robert Hickman is the lessee of the apartment, whose wife has gone to mother's for the day. Gladys's rather, Rusted after she learns she is in the wrong building, is offered a cocktail and a cigarette by the obliging hubby. He accepts. Long lost relatives with the usual fattened bank account which will eventually be willed to the young husband arrive upon the scene. Hubby rather flustered now, introduces the actress as his wife. Then the complications ensue. The place to sleep is a fauer for Hickman; but he solves this difficulty by absolving his tired body to the couch in the living room, leaving the actress to his own room. Wife calls up to find how hubby passed the night without her. The pseudo wife answers the phone in the name of Mrs. Hickman. Wife returns to learn who has usurped her place and the "Mix-Up" is at its height—Then the usual explanation.

which runs thus: "Sister Sue sews soft shirts, etc." Robert Lytell did valient work as the young husband, Hickman. His farce comedy was accomplished with great credit to himself. Miss Helen Beaumont was excellent as the aunt, Mrs. Oremby. Her costume in a state of on deshabille in the second act brought forth a gal of rollicking merriment. The balance of the cast added greatly to the enjoyment of the farce. The role of the Irish cook whose name did not appear to have been programmed was remarkably well played. The play has been well staged by J. C. Hoffman. Don't miss "A Mix-Up" if you want to enjoy two hours and a half of solid laughter. I. W. C.

(Mr. Hord, the author of this farce is a Maysville boy and a son of Colonel and Mrs. Abner Hord of West Fourth street.)

Peace in Mexico is up to Villa.

THE RIVER

The gauge marks 3.6 and falling. Light rains in the Upper Ohio Valley but the river will continue to fall slowly in this district for the next 24 hours.

The Courier left the Cincinnati wharf yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock and is due to arrive here this morning at 11 o'clock. This will probably be her last trip, owing to the fact that the river is at such a low stage. All other river steamers will also be forced to quit unless the river rises soon.
