Woodrow Wilson declared in his Indianapolis speech January 5, 1915: "I want to pay my tribute of respect and affectionate admiration for the two great Democratic Senators from the State of Indiana. I have never had to lie awake nights wondering what they were going to do." Whatever the President's freedom from concern was for them, the distinguished Senators undoubtedly had to spend many restless nights trying to conjecture where the leader of their team would land in the morning and what distance he had hopped during the watches of the night. The President, interpreting his own position, continued: "And the country is not going to trouble itself to lie awake nights and wonder what men are going to do. If they have to do that, they will choose other men." No President since 1856 has been so unstable, so uncertain and so undependable as Woodrow Wilson. Throughout his term the country has been kept awake many nights owing to the fops of its Chief Magistrate and it now seems as certain as tomorrow's sun will rise, that the people will choose other men next November to whom to entrust the destinies of this nation during the momentous years which are just ahead.—The Protectionist.

Belle of Maysville

The most wonderful whisky that ever drove the skeleton from a feast or painted landscapes in the brain of man. It is the mingled souls of wheat and corn. In it you will find the sunshine and the shadow that chased each other over the billowy fields; the breath of June; the carol of the lark; the dew of night; the wealth of summer; and Autumn's rich content—all golden with imprisoned light.

Drink it, and you will hear the voices of men and maidens singing the "Harvest Home" mingled with the laughter of children. Drink it, and you will feel within your blood, the star-lit dawns, the dreamy, tawny dusks of many perfect days. For many years this liquid joy has been confined within the happy staves of oak, longing to touch the lips of man.

Yours for, $3.00, $4.00 and $6.00 per gallon. Sold only by

"VERY SCANTY" ARE SUCCESSES OF THE GREAT ALLIES' OFFENSIVE, SAY GERMAN MILITARY CRITICS

Berlin, July 5.—In view of the fact that the initial attack of every offensive is hardest to withstand, owing to the unavoidable effect of surprise with superior masses of troops and accumulated ammunition, the military critics here are unanimous in considering that the great offensive in the west has made a showing which can not encourage Germany's opponents.

Major Morsh, in The Tageblatt, calls the Anglo-French successes "very scanty". He writes: "The critical moment for the success of a great attempt to breach a line is the time between the beginning of the enemy infantry attacks and of the counter attacks which the defenders are able to make after concentrating their forces. The enemy's success in the four days' offensive, from this viewpoint, is very small. The enemy succeeded in overrunning the demolished German first trenches in several places with heavy forces. The resistance could not be great because little except dead remained in the plowed-up trenches. Where the Germans stood on the defensive stubborn fighting occurred, and, as the enemy reports, the Germans fought obstinately to the last man."

"At other points the German leaders, with cool deliberation and with troops well in hand, bent back elastically. This counter tactic involved the enemy in embarrassment. As he was unable to impart the finishing stroke to the defenders with the first drum fire he had to begin anew with artillery preparation or rattle the unweakened defenders as an alternative. The reports of the offensive must prove directly discouraging to the attacking forces."

"Paris heard the cannon thunder as in 1914. For let it again be said that the operative efficiency of the attacking British army is inadequate to break all our rows of lines, which have been most thoroughly constructed, and expel us from France and Belgium."

The Morgen Post critic says the latest reports show that the British and French are gaining no ground, but that the General Powers have made gains in Volhynia and south of the Dniester.

Other comments follow the same lines, absolute confidence being expressed that the Entente Allies are unable to menace the German lines anywhere.

The Frankfurter Zeitung refers to the French advance on Peronne as "remarkable," and continues as follows:

"We know we are only at the beginning of the battle. The first pushes usually are dangerous, but it stands to reason that the introduction of very important reserves by the attacking armies which is to be expected to a certainty, will impose a very heavy task on the defenders. There is no question that the British will attempt to profit in their new offensive by the experience they gained through failure at the battle of Loos."

The Berliner Tageblatt's correspondent at the German headquarters says the fighting north of the Somme has lessened the prospects of the Entente Allies for a quick and systematic advance.

The Volks-Zeitung, of Cologne, says that in the widest circles of the German people the feeling prevails that if the allies' offensive is held up Germany will have accomplished a great deal.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years doctors pronounced it to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment.

Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
