EMBARGO ORDERS

delivered his recommendations, Congress set about to see how they might be enacted into law. The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, which has before it bills prepared to carry out the plan, did not get a quorum and will meet tomorrow morning. The House leaders announced their intention of waiting on the Senate's action.

Legislation to Be Rushed. The President intends to use all his influence to hasten action in Congress, but should there be delay he intends to appeal to the patriotism of the leaders and their duty to the public, not to persist in calling the strike at this time. With the issue now set forth before the country, the President expects the public to make known to the brotherhoods its opposition to a strike, regardless of the merits of the controversy.

Meanwhile the railway heads prepared themselves for a strike. Orders not to accept perishable freight for shipment were issued to prospective passengers that unless they could complete their journey before 7 o'clock Monday morning they would risk delay. Many of the railway presidents left for their headquarters, announcing they considered it necessary to be near their property. The managers' conference committee, which has full authority to deal with the question, remained here. Brotherhood committeemen who have not already departed, hurried away, announcing their intention to be in their home districts Monday. Only Presidents Garretson, Stone, Carter and Lee, heads of the conductors, engineers, firemen, and trainmen, respectively, remained here. They announced their intention of directing the strike from Washington.

Although the railway presidents feel that in the face of President Wilson's suggestion for legislation the employees can not afford to strike, they have not overlooked any element of preparation for the strike order. Tracks to Be Policed. Provisions have been made to police every mile of track and yards of all the great eastern systems, where the brotherhoods are particularly strong. No general agreement was reached today on the question of embargo. With varying conditions each road was expected to act for itself. The roads will fight a strike individually and not collectively.

The railroad presidents and managers who remain here will continue consideration of plans to meet the strike situation, but will watch Congress and the brotherhood chiefs.
