WORK
Long years ago, a goodly stretch. When men were ever free and jolly, There lived a Turk, a crabbed wretch, Whose only love was melancholy; He cursed to see a happy face, He loathed all gladness and delight, He longed to bring upon the race Some sort of saddening blight.

Till very old he schemed and planned, He labored at the one endeavor, To bring to men a sorrow and To rid the world of joy forever. Did he succeed? No history Records it of the ancient Turk, Though some have thought that it was he Who first invented work.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE AT PARIS
Mr. W. L. Anderson, Superintendent of the Paris Division of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, attempted to commit suicide at his home in Paris yesterday afternoon by cutting his throat with a knife. He was still alive this morning and it is thought that he will recover. It is not known what caused him to commit the act.

STANLEY BACKS BONE DRY ISSUE
Having seen the handwriting on the wall Governor Stanley comes out flat for the submission of the bone-dry prohibition amendment to the people of Kentucky in a letter made public Friday. The letter was written in inquiry to his stand on submission made to him by Dr. W. B. O'Bannon, candidate for the Democratic nomination to the Legislature from Lincoln county. The governor says that patriotic citizens and loyal Democrats who have hitherto disagreed on the question of submission are now united in an earnest desire to have it definitely settled. It is conceded, he says, that this amendment will be immediately submitted. The governor says he will do all in his power to see that it contains no "joker", that it is "bone dry" and not "jug dry."

OFFICE HOURS CHANGED
On account of my increased out of town practice I find it necessary to change my morning office hours, from 11 to 12 instead of 9 to 11, as heretofore. Afternoon 1 to 4. Sundays and evenings by appointment.

"THE SCHOOL OF LIFE"

Excellent Sermon Based on Life of Paul Preached By Dr. John Barbour Yesterday Morning.

Philippians IV:11. "I have learned." The words suggest Paul in the school of life.

One of the most valuable talks to some theological students recently was one by a minister of forty years' experience telling of how his ideas had enlarged and his religious experience had been developed out of his own personal history. The popular idea is that a man should come from the seminary fitted for all ministers work. We hear people say he should be taught all this or that before he leaves school. Such people do not know how much there is to learn, and that the greatest part is not in the books but in life in what Pankhurst calls "the school of event." He has to learn to speak by speaking and he has to learn living by living.

It is difficult for us to realize that the mighty Paul had to pass through these stages in his life to develop him as the great teacher of the church. Was he not one of the most learned men of his time? Festus cried out "Paul much learning hath made thee mad." He impressed every one as a scholar, taught as he had been at Tarsus and Jerusalem. Nevertheless he had to vitalize his knowledge through the experience of life. George Matheson has written a suggestive book on the spiritual development of Paul, some of it rather fanciful, I think, but based on a great truth.

At the beginning his will had to be broken by subjection to Christ, and by being admitted by Ananias a nobody into the church. Then he had to go away for three years into Arabia to study the scriptures anew and to meditate on his future work. Then came the contest with the world. A young lawyer has got to learn his law in the shock of contest at the bar, and Paul had thus to deepen and make certain his grasp of the truth. Then came the distrust of his own brethren and the fight of the Judaizers on him and his preaching. To come through all this unscathed, to learn the larger charity and to love men more the more he was persecuted, this he must be able to do to be like Christ. Then Paul had to learn to preach. That was a magnificent philosophical discourse at Athens but it is certain that at Corinth afterwards he preached only the doctrines of the cross. Then he must enter the school of the thorn, as some of the greatest ministers have had to do. Spurgeon was an intense sufferer, preaching always in great pain. Robert Hall prepared most of his sermons on his back writing in pain. George Matheson was blind. As Paul writes these words he is in prison and approaching old age. In this condition he writes I have learned at last to be content, i. e. self-contained— independent of surroundings for my satisfaction. "I can do all things, suffer all things now through Christ who strengtheneth me."

In this school of life not only every minister but every Christian has to learn if he is to develop in spiritual manhood and usefulness. Every worker in a mission has to learn patience and sympathy as he deals with needy people. Every great Bible teacher must have a personal experience of the truth he teaches. Children instinctively try their teacher by this. They expect them to live the truth they teach them in the Sunday School.

Now there is involved in all this that the great purpose and wisdom of life is learning to be a Christian. A man does not have to know much to start, but he is to enter Christ's school and put His yoke upon him. He is to learn directly of the Great Teacher, as He teaches him out of the Bible and out of life. He is to learn by doing it.

Above all, he is to ask the guidance of the Holy Spirit. He is the wisest man who lives who he knows. We are to learn from others, too.

What a fool a young aviator would be who would not profit by all that has been learned by the flying of others, who proposed to try it all over again. But that is nothing compared with the folly of experimenting with things which are ruining the lives of people all about us. What tragedies are being enacted before us constantly of young men whom their fathers can teach nothing and young women who despise the teachings of prudence and religion to experiment with the world. What suffering would be saved, what years of time if we would just open our eyes and take to our hearts the wisdom that cries out in the very streets.

A man said "I have been forty years learning three things; first, that I could do nothing to merit salvation then after a time of despair I learned that God did not expect me to, then to my astonishment I learned that Christ had paid all of the debt if I would have it so."

Forty years to learn what multitudes of young people know who believe the scriptures.

Homes have often to be shadowed before they will realize that this world is only the preparation for another, and thousands of people, some of them good people have to go down into the valley of death before they find the Saviour who wanted to walk with them all their lives. At the last they only come to believe what they had known from the beginning. It is a pitiful thing to see old people whose lives have never received the truth or going out of life whining and sored with the world. Christ will show us how to approach the grave with serenity, "like one that wraps the drapery of His couch about him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."

JULY 20 DATE SET FOR FILING EXPENSE ACCOUNTS

Frankfort, July 14 — Candidates seeking nominations in the August primary must file pre-election expense accounts on or before July 20. Candidates failing to comply with this provision of the law will not receive certificates of nomination until the expense statements have been filed with the officer of the county or State who issues the certificates of nomination.

This opinion was given today by Assistant Attorney General Myatt in response to a number of inquiries concerning pre-election expense statements.

Myatt also held that after the primary successful candidates must file post-election statements covering the expenses of the campaign between the date of filing the pre-election expense statement and the date of the election.

MAYSVILLE GIRL SINGS AT PATRIOTIC DEMONSTRATION

(Circleville (O.) Herald)

Last evening when the Star Spangled Banner slides was shown on the screen and America was played on the piano the large audience arose to its feet en masse and remained standing until the finish of the hymn. It was a very patriotic demonstration, that was not pre-arranged, and indicates that Americans are Americans first, last and all the time, in war and peace.

The hymn was very acceptably rendered by Mildred Proctor, of Maysville, Ky., the 13-year-old niece of Mrs. Baughman, wife of the Manager.

Miss Haydee Carter of East Union street, entertained at six o'clock dinner Monday, honoring Mildred and Marybelle Proctor, of Maysville, Ky.

TAKE NOTICE

DEATH OF MISS MARGARET HEFFERNAN

Miss Margaret Heffernan, aged 30 years, passed away at her home on East Sixth street yesterday morning at 2:15 o'clock after a lingering illness. She is survived by her father, Mr. Owen Heffernan and one brother, Mr. John Heffernan.

The funeral will be held from St. Patrick's Church Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock. Interment in the Catholic cemetery at Brooksville.

The Red Cross Rooms will be opened tomorrow for the regular work. A full attendance is desired.

SERIOUSLY INJURED

Was Young Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ham of the County Saturday Night When Run Over by Automobile—Driver of Car Not Blamed.

While driving along the Fleming pike to her home in the county with her parents Saturday night about 10:30 o'clock the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ham was seriously injured when run over by an automobile belonging to and run by Dr. Win Hord of Orangeburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Ham and daughter had been to Maysville and were returning to their home. When near the rock quarry on the Fleming pike the machine belonging to Dr. Hord approached. As the horse attached to their buggy was rather young all three got out of the buggy until after the machine could pass. Dr. Hord slowed down his machine and was about to pass the buggy when the father called to the girl not to stand in front of the horse as it might run away. This frightened the girl and she ran directly in front of the approaching machine, which struck her and ran over her, fracturing her left leg near the hip and otherwise injuring her.

The doctor immediately stopped the girl's auto and went back to where the girl lay. She was unconscious and at first it was thought she was dead. She was revived in a short time, however, and was soon brought to Maysville in an ambulance and taken to Hayswood Hospital, where she received medical attention.

Although her injuries are quite painful they are not dangerous. She was reported as getting along nicely this morning.

Mr. L. M. Salter has returned from a visit with relatives at Circleville, O.

RED CROSS CARNIVAL CLOSSES

Notwithstanding the fact that the weather was very threatening Saturday night there was an enormous crowd out to attend the big Red Cross Carnival at the ball park. Many turned out every night during the whole week and all the shows and concessions reaped a big harvest, of which the Red Cross Society gets a liberal percentage. The carnival left here yesterday afternoon for Lexington, where it will show this week.
