STRICT ECONOMY IS RECOMMENDATION OF ADVISORY BOARD

Special Committee Advises Council That By Strict Economy City's Debt Can Be Wiped Out Without Tax Increase in Few Years.

"We urgently insist that the most rigid economy be observed in order that a sufficient amount may be saved out of each year's revenues to retire the past due and maturing indebtedness of the city within a period of not to exceed six years."

These sentences form the crux of the special Advisory Board's recommendation to City Council in their report submitted Thursday evening. After setting out that there is now past due $26,910.66 in improvement bonds, the committee says: "We also find that the city has exceeded its revenues for the fiscal year of 1921-22 by approximately $16,000.00."

Without increasing the present tax levy of $1.55 the committee finds that the city will this year have an income of approximately $103,272.00 and they recommend the following budget: Attorney's Commission, $ 202.00. Alms and pensions including donations to Mission Home and colored mission, 3,800.00.

Total $59,419.05. "If the above limits are rigidly adhered to there will be a balance of $13,852.95 to apply on, and retirement of past due indebtedness, and if a similar saving is continued, the entire indebtedness can be wiped out in about six years."

Besides this general cutting down of expenses in the city's various departments, the committee makes the following specific recommendations: (1) Sale of non revenue producing city owned real estate.

(2) Sale of city's equity in Washington Fire Company's property by agreement between three business men to be named by Mayor and a similar committee named by the Fire Company.

(3) Taking up of bonds as soon as sufficient monies have accumulated in various funds. (4) Collection of license fees to be turned into city treasury. (5) Use of system of bookkeeping installed by experts in 1918.

The committee adds that: "Apparent deficits in the various street improvement funds are chiefly accounted for by the cost of street and sidewalk improvements in front of public property and at street intersections."

Paris, Ky., April 21.—Millersburg eight miles from Paris, narrowly escaped a conflagration Wednesday night when the Ingles building, on Main street, opposite the new Farmers' Bank, was destroyed.

The citizens were awakened by the rapid firing of revolvers. The upper floor of the structure was occupied by the families of Bruce McManahan and Thomas Beeding, who lost their entire possessions.

Thomas Beeding, 65, was trapped in his room and was rescued by citizens by the aid of ladders.

The Mill-Bour Theater was conducted as a motion picture show by a Mr. Zaenners, who had sold his lease a few days ago and was preparing to retire from business. The building was to be retrofitted for a dry goods store.
