Monument Erected.

The Rev. P. V. Ferris, died in this place Oct. 31, 1868 and was buried in the Cemetery of the M. E. Church until last week the place of his sepulchre has been unmarked. To those who cherish the memory of the good man in their hearts it seemed not fitting that his grave should remain unmarked, and a monument was erected...

He Wanted to Die!

From the New Lexington Tribune. A widow lady living, near a thousand miles from here, with one child, a son - had a hired girl, between whom and the son, she thought she discovered a growing intimacy. Every Saturday evening when the domestic returned home, the young man was discovered sitting on the fence some distance from the house, waiting for his fair one, whom he would accompany home in the twilight. The mother not caring to have her son make love to the "help" proposed to test the extent of her son's attachment...

Washington's Quadrille Partner.

Mrs. Frances M. Burling died in Milford, in this State, recently, aged 96 years. Her maiden name was Hurst. She was a belle in New York society nearly eighty years ago. On one occasion, at a public reception in that city she was Gen. Washington's partner in a dance. She was on terms of intimate acquaintance with Lafayette, Aaron Burr, Alexander Hamilton and many of the great men and women of that day. Her personal reminiscences of the early days of the republic were very interesting, she retaining a recollection of the piquant small talk as well as the notable incidents of the time. Burling slip was named after her husband, who was a prominent resident of New York City half a century ago, and who owned much of the property in the vicinity of the slip. He removed to Milford many years ago with his wife and daughter, where he died. Mrs. Burling left a large amount of property. Besides her daughter, an unmarried brother, aged 90, survives her.

The Aldine Chromos for 1874.

The two chromos presented to subscribers of THE ALDINE for 1874 are such beautiful and unusual works of art - faithful copies of actual paintings in all made by the celebrated artist, Thomas Moran, from studies of nature - that we feel justified in calling special attention to them. These chromos represent scenes characteristic of the East and the West; the White Mountains of New Hampshire, and the Cliffs of Green River in Wyoming Territory. In all the range of grand and beautiful American scenery, it would be difficult to find two more picturesque or charming views, unlike as nature in her varying moods, yet appropriate companion pieces. The view in the White Mountains gives the beholder a grand and sublime scene of the most famous region in New England, a picture which is filled with the very spirit of the region. The subject is treated with much breadth and feeling, without an overcropping of peaks and cliffs which so often spoil the artistic effect. The top of the principal mountain is surrounded by clouds of magical beauty, which add life to the scene, indicating, as they do, action. The picture is one of the elements - earth, air, water - thrown together by the hand of the great artist. Such a picture is always fresh, and never grows dull. The dashing river, the rich group of autumn-clothed trees, the deep-down, far-away meadows, the stream rushing down the mountain's side, the crags and rocks, the hint of cloud mysteries, and innumerable mountains beyond, all of which the artist gives us the study of trees in delicate and natural. One may carefully examine the whole list of chromos offered to the public, and fall in and elsewhere so much real artistic excellence as in these two representative landscapes.

They are every way worthy of the great art journal of America - THE ALDINE. These chromos are so fine, they can only be compared with the highest-priced pictures offered in the market. It would be an injustice to place them by the side of any of the cheap prints commonly sent out by newspapers as premiums to their subscribers.

Army Reminiscences.

By H. M. S. Editor Somerset Press. The night was cold. We advanced nearly to the farther side of a large cotton field, and when within about two hundred yards of Stone River, halted. Our regiment was deployed as skirmishers. We advanced close to the edge of the river and under cover of a tree, stump or rock, watched for the foe. Of course we could not have any fire, and being on the lookout for the enemy, and knowing they were but a few feet off, dared hardly move for fear the noise would cause a bullet to find us. They were all night, and when we were relieved just before daylight, we were so stiff with cold we could hardly move.

That night and the day following there was a circumstance occurred that I shall never forget. We had in our company a man who was very profane, and who always gave vent to his feelings, with the most profane oaths I ever heard, at the least hardships we had. That night it seemed that he could not find language profane enough in which to curse himself or his God. Among other things, he wished, with the vilest oaths, that he might not live to see another sunset. Poor Man! God heard his prayers, and sent his answer. About ten o'clock next day while lying behind a little canal, waiting to make a charge a ball came over the hill, just grazed his hat, and hitting him in the neck, killed him instantly.

The battle raged in all its fury through the day, another night came on, but how different from the last! Then all was quiet, excepting an occasional shot from the pickets, now all over the field lay the dead and wounded, who could not be carried off. It is the cry for help from a wounded comrade, that touches the feelings of a battlesman soldier more than anything else. He has no fear of bullets, if he can aid a wounded comrade. As an instance that day we had been compelled to fall back, as evening advanced, we heard a voice of one of our comrades calling for help. "Ah," Charles said, "I must try to help him, my comrade," and I misty try to help him, he wants water." The rebel bullets were flying fast, he looked and finally saw the form of his comrade almost in front of him, and some distance away. "Can I ever reach him, without receiving a bullet?" he said. Without waiting for a reply, he took a canteen of water, and the bullets flying thick around him; he almost reached him, but a ball passed through his canteen and the water was gone. He called to Charles and told him what had happened. Poor Charles was suffering for water. "Never mind," said John; "he still, and I will be with him." He slipped back to the line, procured another canteen of water; the bullets blew thicker than ever. They seemed determined to make the day as long as possible, but he again started out, he made the nearest tree and stopped to look for the next point. He reached a stone, then a stump, and just as he dropped behind it the bullets cut the bark. A few feet from him he saw a log, he made it for, and crawled to the other end, and finally reached his comrade in safety, refreshed him with what he had brought and helped him to crawl to a ditch, and took off his own clothing to bind up his wounds. It soon got dark so that others could come and help carry him to the rear.

Is There To Be a Reign of Terror?

In New York. From the New York Chronicle. If there are any Americans who are incapable of comprehending the terror which pervades French society at the possible elevation of the Communists to power, their difficulties on this point will cease when they come to understand the scope and tenor of the resolutions and speeches at the workingmen's mass meeting in this city on Thursday night. This meeting was organized for the praiseworthy purpose of presenting to the public the claims of the workingmen to employment and assistance during the approaching hard winter, and it is almost certain that any real practical plan presented for that purpose would be adopted, and the earnest co-operation of the municipal, State and Federal authorities, and the still more effective aid of private citizens could be relied on in the emergency.

Attractions for the Holidays.

To meet the demand of the holiday season P. G. Matthias, the well-known Jeweler on West Main street, made heavy additions to his stock, consisting of rich, rare and beautiful specimens in his line, specially adapted to buyers who contemplate making presents to relatives or friends. While in general terms it may be remarked that the stock at this house will compare favorably with any exhibited in our midst, the beauty of design and perfection of finish of many of the articles cannot be excelled. At eleven o'clock in the evening, the principal attractions, which is perhaps as clear as our readers will be amply repaid by visiting the establishment and ascertaining for themselves the exact nature of the inducements offered. His stock of fine watches comprises the most celebrated American and foreign makes, in great variety, plain and chased cases. A few of the principal attractions in the jewelry line are bracelets, chains, coral, amethyst, Roman and gold sets in the latest styles. In the miscellaneous department will be found beautiful bronze figures, several styles of medals, and all representations of the firm or employees can be implicitly relied on.

PROCLAMATION.

To the Citizens of Perry and Surrounding Counties! We are assured that three-fourths of the Farmers have resolved to conduct their business on a cash basis - a resolution which we heartily concur and will assist in carrying out by establishing a CASH STORE with ONE PRICE on each article and POSITIVELY NO DEVIATION. We know this is the true principle upon which to conduct a mercantile business, and trust it will be appreciated by the people. We propose to furnish goods on credit only by establishing a percent, as they can be handled, which will be the rates established for furnishing goods to the Patrons of Husbandry throughout the country - only we give ALL cash customers the advantage of the reduced prices. On and after the 1st day of January, 1874, we will close our books and adopt the above plan. We hope that none will take offence at this and we are convinced that every sensible man will view them as the light we do - as being best for buyer and seller. We will, of course

Another fresh arrival of fine goods for the holiday trade at the jewelry store of J. C. Curran. School links, at 5 cents per bottle, Slates from 5 cents upwards, Envelopes at 5 cents per pack, good paper at 12 cents quire, 3 lead pencils for a dime and everything sold down low at Curran's.

take all kinds of country produce in exchange for goods, as usual. The existing panic in money matters renders it necessary, in fact, compels us to make collections, and all parties indebted to us will at once call and arrange for settlement. We want to close up our old book accounts at the close of this year. Come in and see us and examine our Stock and Prices. CASH! ONE PRICE AND POSITIVELY NO DEVIATION? We respectfully request you not to ask for credit as you will be refused. Respectfully, ISAAC WEAVER.

TO THE CITIZENS OF PERRY COUNTY. We employ no runners, neither do we go to the country (so many do) calling on people as soon as they have buried their door and bag, to see and insist on their buying of us. We prefer to have a more decent regard for their feelings. We are almost daily receiving letters from persons outside of Loudon County, wanting marble work and inviting us to call on them with our designs, that they may inspect them and learn our prices. This we do, and we never fail to suit, both in the design of the work and then in its execution.
