Judge Tall Slough, of Lancaster, was in our city on last Friday evening looking after the judicial fees. He thought he could see in the pale light of the moon, our natural gas not needed, that the fences were in tolerable good shape.

Judge Butler, of New Lexington, was in the city yesterday, the guest of his brother-in-law, Ben Trisch. Mr. Butler is an announced candidate for Judge. He is an able lawyer, and has many friends in the district.

Mr. Stinehart, of Adelpha, and other gentlemen interested in the extension of the Karsner road to Floodwood made a tour of inspection on the route last Saturday. The gentlemen felt assured the road will be built at an early day.

The Commissioners of Pickaway county published the report of their proceedings, ending August 31st, 1887, last week. We think the delay is explained in an item, "paid for analyzing water of Cofft House well, $50.00."

Mr. Peter Sloan, of Laurel township, and Miss Ella B. Huls, of Millville, were married at the residence of the bride's father on Sunday last. Mr. Sloan is one of the prominent young men of Laurel, and the SENTINEL extends to him congratulations in securing, for a partner through life, one of Millville's fairest daughters.

Barney McQuade, a young man who has been working for Winfield Poston, on his farm three miles south of this city, was found dead, on last Friday, in a field where he had been sent to work. McQuade is said to have been an industrious man, and leaves a wife and one child to mourn their loss. His death is attributed to heart disease.

Barbara Philips, residing near Enterprise, swore out a peace warrant against her husband, James Philips, and the case came before the Mayor, Tuesday. The Mayor considered the evidence insufficient to hold the defendant under bond and the action was dismissed.

A couple of handsome, affable and accomplished members of the Sentinel staff, will make a trip for pleasure and business through the western parts of our county, this and next week.—Courtesy and attention shown them will be appreciated.

Mr. Noel Hamblin has purchased the interest of Mr. Comley in the hardware store, and will give the business his constant personal attention. Mr. Hamblin is one of our best known and most highly esteemed citizens, and we bespeak for him a hearty welcome to the business circles of Logan, and a liberal patronage to his business from the people of Hocking county.

Sanford Browne has removed his Saloon to the old Roller corner, one door east. The room has been newly fitted up, painted and papered, and presents a neat and cozy appearance. Mr. Browne will keep up with the best in the way of refreshments. All the best brands of liquors, wines and beer can be had at his bar, with Billy Courson to attend to your wants. Sanford aims to keep a first class lunch table, and farmers can get a good meal at all hours. Call in as you go along.

We would be very much obliged to our correspondents who write up long notices of Birthdays and Surprises Parties for persons who never take the SENTINEL, to send the party so much noticed, a copy of the paper. We don't want to be overlooked in the way of a crumb from the "grooming tables," such as only the ladies know how well to prepare, but we feel as though a great oversight occurs, if the fellow, paraded like a colt in spring, don't get to see the paper he is advertised in.

Gen. Jim. Retaille, of New Lexington, struck our town on last Thursday, and was as heartily welcomed by his many friends, as are the daisies that peep up to our sight from under the snow in spring time. Gen. Jim seemed to be Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary for Reuben Butler, who has recently been one candidate for the judgeship in this district. A cold wave and frosts followed Gen. Jim's warm welcome.

This county, we think, would be better for Retaille, for Judge if he asked it.

"Put a right smart gurgle of paroled Belle of Maryland Rye into a glass half filled with pounded ice," remarks a hale and hearty headed old statesman from the 4th ward, "and a few drops of lemon juice, and syup, then put in a small handful of bruised peppermint (this year's crop), and you have something that will tickle you from the roots of your hair to your toe nails—the spirits of just men made perfect, as it were."

For this economical luxury, go to Wanner & Holl, sole agents for Logan.

Attention is called to the advertised sale of the Oakland property. The death of one of the partners in the property, enforces a sale and settlement under order of the Probate Court.

Col. Schleich thought the prettiest thing to be found in the language was in Walter Scott's "Talisman," in which the old Arab Sheik winds up his remarks by saying that a gift from Allah was something with which the wise man could comfort and warm himself, but with which the fool would burn the tent. And so on each of the company expressed his preference. Col. Schleich had kept silent. He was called on. He said he would not quote from known authors, but he had in his head a verse, where he found it he did not know. A leaflet on the tide of literature. He had never seen it in print. He wrote for all of us a copy—we present it below:

The moon shines bright,
And her silver light,
Through the forest aisles is glancing;
And with trembling beam,
On the rippling stream,
A thousand stars are dancing.

No noise is heard,
Save the lonely bird,
As the boots from her desert dwelling;
And the distant crash,
Of some aged ash.

Which the ax of time is felling.

A point we want to make from what we have written on this, is that when our young folks meet, instead of wasting the hours in idle gossip and games of cards, they take up and discuss the gems of thought in the literature of our language. It will certainly be as entertaining, and much more ennobling, to "hold high converse with immortal thought," than strain attention and apply intelligence to catch Jack or Pedro.

All ladies interested in the success of the Ohio Centennial Exposition at Columbus, are requested to meet at the Court House next Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, for the purpose of organizing an association for the departments called Woman's Work.

The Prettiest Expression in Our Literature.

A REMINISCENCE.

Some years ago—years ago when all of us were younger, a pleasant company met at the hospitable home of General Tom Ewing, in Lancaster.

Of that company, who met on a pleasant summer eve, nearly all are now dead.

It is not out of order that the newspaper, always alive, presents a recollection.

Among the gentlemen present were Judge Wright, Col. Newt Schleich, Col. Lyman Jackson, Col. John Connell, John McNeill, and others.

The conversation did not turn on politics, nor ran to rough stories, but was about the writers and writings of the men of thought who had gone before, leaving footprints on the sands of time.

The proposition was presented by Gen. Ewing: "Now, each of you submit what you think the best and prettiest expression in English literature."

Lyman Jackson at once said, "the first sentence in Kassel's."

Judge Wright quoted from Walter Savage Landor, (no bare not the book at hand,) the idea being that the man who had climbed the mountain, had conquered the weakness of his nature, and stood upon the eminence above the fog and the contentious below, had achieved a God-like victory, and held close relation to Divinity.

Green submitted a biblical quotation from St. John, "In the beginning was the Word."

Johnny McNeill presented a quotation from Shakespeare, the instances where "jocund day stands lip-toe on the misty mountain tops."

Col. Schleich thought the prettiest thing to be found in the language was in Walter Scott's "Talisman," in which the old Arab Sheik winds up his remarks by saying that a gift from Allah was something with which the wise man could comfort and warm himself, but with which the fool would burn the tent. And so on each of the company expressed his preference. Col. Schleich had kept silent. He was called on. #### "Hints of How."

This is the pertinent title of the book before us, by "Francis" in which suggestions are presented to Amateur Artists, and Home Decorators.

The book is replete with valuable suggestions in the practical matter of mixing paints, and is especially interesting in the good taste displayed in encouraging Home Decoration.

The employed man comes to the house to paper. The hired help is brought to service to place seed or plant a post. The hired help and the man who pays for the work done, is lucky and successful as the word goes, if he is only able to pay his bills. But above this and bright as the stars, is the notion, even in the most mercenary mind, that a beauty, a dream, if you will, comes to us all, even to the men of the cabins born, that something pretty should be about our dwelling place.

It is not possible to us all to have all the elegancies we wish for, but it is practicable for us and profitable to take advice from those who know better than we do "How" to make home prettier, and "How" our amateur artists in the laudable attempt to decorate the birth place or dwelling place, may help the boys and girls along.

The "Hints of How" is for sale in Logan. Miss Ella Meeks is the agent. We heartily commend the book to our readers.

A Grand Spectacle.

Saturday last, April 28th, was a day of unusual activity at the residence of Joseph W. Cherry, Starr twp., the occasion being the birthday of Mr. J. W. Cherry.

His brother, Rev. W. B. Cherry, and wife, arranged to celebrate it in the old fashioned way. So the word was sent around, and about forty of the neighboring families with their wives and well filled baskets gathered in at the appointed time, 5 o'clock in the evening. The surprise was a complete success. Mr. Cherry was out in the field at work. Mrs. Cherry was found in the kitchen, still more surprised than her husband. A long table was prepared for the occasion out in the yard, and after a blessing by Elder Sanders, Rev. W. B. Cherry read a poem which he prepared especially for the occasion, that was very appropriate, but will be withheld from publication on account of its being personal. Then supper was served, such as only farmers' wives can prepare. Major William Scott being the champion eater. Will is a good clever fellow by the way; he says he lives by eating.

About 9 o'clock the guests began to separate and go to their homes, feeling that the evening had been pleasantly and profitably spent. The occasion will be remembered by Mr. and Mrs. Cherry as one of the pleasantest events of their lives.
