The McArthur Fair.

The McArthur Fair was held last week and it was certainly a grand success. Full of life, full of amusements and full of people. It was not conducted as are many fairs, with premiums on every pumpkin and potato in the country but the general basis of the fair was races. This feature is the drawing card for all fairs and of course the more the races the more the people. A good band was in attendance and an attractive feature was the feats of Prof. Tolber in his bare back racing with gray hounds and his balloon ascension and parachute jump. High premiums were paid and thereby good horses secured. Mr. McGrath as Secretary of the agricultural society is certainly a hustler and his efforts were well awarded by a royal success.

Our County Fair.

Many of us like to go away on jaunts to neighboring cities or even more distant point and this is often very nice; but it all takes money, some of the trips large sums of money, and much or little it takes it away from home. It would be well to endeavor to make home thing of more interest. Here is the County Fair. It is a local, home enterprise, and takes little or no money from the county. Indeed it ought to bring money into the county. Let us give the Fair more attention and money, and give less time and cash to benefit and enrich people we don't know, in some other part of the country, and who are already rich. It occurs to us this would be the part of wisdom. The Fair is a home, county enterprise. And there should be no place like home. Not the family home, only, but the community, the county. The local Fair is one of the enterprises where this sentiment may receive expression—not only in words, but in deeds, in works, in money. Let us not discriminate against ourselves, but on the other hand, be just and liberal to all worthy home and local enterprises.

RESOLUTIONS

Adopted at a Mass Meeting of K. of P's on death of Frank Lehman.

Whereas, our esteemed and respected brother Frank Lehman of Elk Lodge No. 198 K. of P. of McArthur Ohio, was murdered at McArthur Junction on the 1st day of August and whereas his life was taken in a cold blooded manner, and his loving wife and tender babes were bereft of a husband and father in an uncalculated and brutal manner; therefore be it resolved by us as representatives of a large body of Knights assembled at his funeral: 1st. That we view and condemn with horror the awful and inexcusable murder of our dear brother and hereby express our longing for said crime and its perpetrators.

2nd. We earnestly call upon and demand of the Authorities of Vinton Co, Ohio a speedy apprehension, detention and punishment of his foul murderers and ask all good citizens to lend their immediate support thereto in order that there be no dallying or juggling with justice that should speedily overtake and deal with his assassins.

4th. That in case of failure of the proper Authorities to act in this matter, we are in favor of public feeling being fully expressed in order that his murder may be properly avenged.

5th. That these resolutions be published in the Vinton and Hocking County newspapers. S. H. Quick, F. M. Smallwood, R. L. Patton, H. L. Cameron, C. J. Jourgenstern, Committee. Logan, Ohio, Aug. 4, 1891.

Murder, Cold Blooded

Frank Lehman Falls an Innocent Victim at the Hand of an Assassin.

On last Saturday, Frank Lehman, car inspector at McArthur Junction was shot and killed at that place by Henry Woolweaver. The feud seems to have started with old man Woolweaver who was intoxicated and seemed to be trying to occasion trouble with Mr. Ewing, the agent at the station. Woolweaver and his two sons kept a saloon near the depot and they had had some trouble with the railroad officials in regard to same which led the old man to have a general antipathy for all rail road men. On this particular day he was most unusually loud and seemed to be very anxious for some one to step out and hit him. His son came down from the saloon and took the old man away a few times but he would return to the freight platform and most outrageously cursed the agent, the company and all railroad men in general. He happened to see Frank Lehman down working under a car and the old duffer made for him with a beer bottle in his hand. He said something like, "You son of a— b— your are another one of 'em." Frank came out from under the car and the old man struck at him with the bottle, which broke over his hammer that he held up for defense. The fragments of the glass flew in the face of Lehman cutting him severely, and probably cut the hands of the old man Woolweaver also. At this time Ewing, the agent, came out and Henry Woolweaver came around the corner of the depot. His father told him to shoot and he immediately did so. Three or four shots were fired, the first piercing the body of Lehman near the heart and another taking effect in the leg of Ewing. Ewing returned the shot which grazed the arm of young Woolweaver. Lehman walked across the track and fell dead. He leaves a wife and four children and hosts of friends to mourn his sad and sudden end. Mr. Lehman was one of McArthur's best citizens. A quiet, inoffensive, orderly walking gentleman, liked by all who knew him, and an enemy to none. He was a man strictly adherent to disputes, quarrels, intemperance and all iniquity; loving to his wife and family and pleasant with those he met. The Woolweavers were arrested and placed in McArthur jail, and strange to say the charge against them was simple manslaughter. The prosecuting attorney was seen and insisted upon to raise the charge to murder in the first degree, but he flew up in a rage and said he knew his business. Is it possible that a cold blooded murder like the killing of this innocent man, is to be avenged but by the serving of a few years in the prison? Will the State of Ohio put up thousands of dollars to protect and support this hellish fiend and let the poor wife that he made a helpless widow toiled with weary hands to support herself and orphan children? Heaven forbid. Judge Lynch is the man to decide such cases. If there existed suspicions as to the guilt of the accused, then be it that a fair trial is had. But is there any suspicion in this case? None whatever. The demon of hell deliberately crushes the life of an innocent fellow being regardless of the results or the laws of humanity. Why protect, then by the laws. Hemp is the avenger and hemp is what ought to be used.

THE HOCKING COUNTY FAIR WILL BE HELD Sept. 9, 10, 11, & 12

ROAD NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that a petition will be presented to the Commissioners of Hocking County, at their next session, in September, A. D. 1891, praying for authorization of a County road on the following line to-wit: Beginning at a point in the center of the County road on the line between the lands of Solomon Bowers and Welland's heirs at or near the north-west corner of fractional lot No. 3, section No. 25, Township No. 15, range No. 17, Hocking County Ohio then in a westerly direction through the lands of Solomon Bowers to the county line near the west line of said section No. 25, thence by said road about 1/2 mile, thence leaving said road north, on or near the line between section No. 25 and 26 and near the line between the lands of Solomon Bowers and Welland's heirs about 1/2 mile to a point in said road and thence north.

Many Petitioners.

Democratic Platform.

The Democracy of Ohio, in convention assembled, hereby resolve that we most heartily endorse the honesty and economy of the administration of Governor James E. Campbell and commend the Sixty-ninth general assembly for its business qualifications, economy and reform, and especially for having provided for a secret ballot by which every voter in Ohio can cast his ballot in secret as he desires, and have his vote counted as cast; and we invite attention to the fact that the Republican party, though hypocritically professing to favor "a free ballot and an honest count," yet opposed and voted against the bill for providing for a free and secret ballot, thus demonstrating its professions to be insincere and for political effect only, and we cordially endorse and approve the act of the legislature regulating the compensation of county officers by providing for a fixed salary.

We are opposed to all class legislation, and believe in a tariff levied for the sole purpose of producing a revenue sufficient to defray the legitimate expense of the government, economically administered. We accept the issue tendered to us by the Republican party on the subject of the tariff, as represented by the so-called McKinley tariff act. confident that the verdict of the people of Ohio will be recorded against the iniquitous policy of so-called protection, championed by the Republican party in the interest of favored classes against the masses.

We favor a graded income tax. We denounce the demoralization of silver in 1873 by the party then in power, an iniquitous alternation of the money standard in favor of creditors and against debtors, taxpayers and producers, in which by shutting off one of the sources of supply of primary money operates continually to increase the value of gold, depress prices hamper industry and disorganize enterprise and we demand the reinstatement of the constitutional standard of both gold and silver with the equal right of free and unlimited coinage.

We denounce the Republican billiard congress which by a Democratic administration, exhausted a surplus in the national treasury left there by a Democratic administration, created a deficit; which a substitute despoils rule for free discussion in the house of representatives, and we congratulate the people on the defeat of the odious force bill demanded by a Republican president, and championed by the Republican party for the purpose of perpetuating its rule by preventing the constitutional powers of the government, destroying free elections and placing the ballot box in the hands of unscrupulous partisans in order, as declared by Speaker Reed, "to register the voters, supervise the elections, count the ballots and declare the result." We are opposed to the enactment of all laws which unnecessarily interfere with the habits and customs of any of our people which are not offensive to the moral sentiments of the civilized world, and we believe that the personal rights of the individual should be curtailed only when it is essential to the maintenance of the peace, good order and welfare of the community. We favor the passage of such laws by the general assembly as will give us a system for the government of our municipalities uniform throughout the state, as the constitution requires, in which the executive and legislative power shall be separated, the former to be lodged in a mayor, and the latter in a council, both to be elected by the people; thereby realizing the principal of home rule, safe from the dangers and evils of special legislation. We favor closer commercial relations with our Canadian neighbors, and the removal of embarrassing, annoying restrictions which only vex our people without yielding any substantial revenue to the government. We favor liberal and just pensions to deserving and disabled soldiers and sailors who fought for the maintenance of the government and like pensions to their widows and orphan children. The persecution of the Jewish people by the Russian government justly deserves and receives our unequalled censure. We extend to them our sincere sympathy, and believe that this government, in connection with the enlightened governments of Europe disposed to unite with them, should take proper steps to alleviate the wrongs thus inflicted on this long suffering and oppressed people.

THE LATEST SNAKE STORY.

Snake stories are always in order, and it matters little how long a bow the story teller draws, everybody believes him. One is a rule long established that it shall be so. Now here is one that comes from an Indian: About the middle of June, 1890, a snake was seen crawling into the tracks of a well to be drilled in South America, on the Uruguay river, a few miles below the city of Assumption. Mr. Freeman's contract called for $100,000 as the completion of the well, so he immediately shipped his tools and rig to San Francisco. They were then loaded on a steamer and sent to their destination. We commenced work as soon as the tools and rig was on the ground. After everything was in running order, drilling began. It was a great sight to see the derrick, 200 feet high, and covering three-quarters of an acre of ground. We got along all right for a while, when at the depth of 1,500 feet the cable broke and left the tools at the bottom of the well. We worked for several days and nights, but without any success. The cable was all broken to pieces, with the exception of about 500 feet of good cable, that was left on the shaft. We had pulled some forty feet of the cable over the derrick, and piled it on the floor. I do not know why we did this, but it was done. We did not have cable enough to do anything with, so we finally decided to turn down to the matter over and come to some conclusion as to what to do, when, to our astonishment, we saw a snake crawling into the hole. Mr. Steward, the driller that worked on the opposite tower from me, threw the snake up. He never was able to see the snake, but he started down the well. It was 600 feet of its tail. We immediately took a rope, attached it to the end of the cable, and pulled Mr. Snake higher and higher in the derrick till, finally, the end of the tail went over the crown, within 100 feet of the shaft, when, all at once, everything stopped, for the snake was slipping. We doubled the cable from the snake's tail to the shaft, then put pieces of rails on the belt, hooked them to the cable, and presently something gave way.

We kept pulling and winding the cable, and when the snake appeared at the top of the well, but to our astonishment it had hold of the end of the cable, and was hanging by its tail to get it loose. We hammered it with sledge hammers, burnt it with red-hot irons, but did not succeed in getting it loose. We finally got it up, and went ahead and finished the well, using the snake for a cable. It had such a death hold on the tools that we had to burn his head after getting the tools out of the derrick, yet it should be said that we did not get a superabundance of natural gas. The hole was plugged with cement. The skeleton is now on exhibition at No. 1000, Ind., and the hide is used for a gas main in Hartford City.

THE YOUNG MAN KEYS A Ledger of His Social Amusements. There is a young man in this city as well known in business circles as he is a large number of young ladies, says the Philadelphia Press. In his business he is quiet, regular and industrious, and particularly prides himself upon the neatness and accuracy which characterize his books of account. During the social season he fits about from entertainment to entertainment, frequently attending the opera and play houses, always having with him some one of about a score of girls to whom he pays more or less attention. When asked recently why he had so many girls he said: "Oh, all girls talk, as they write, very much alike, but still there is more variety in twenty than in one. Besides, I keep a regular set of books at home in which I enter every cent I spend on them, and it affords me considerable amusement. For instance, I charge the cost of theater tickets, flowers, supper, and carriage hire, and then credit it with the amount of pleasure I had as 'passable time enjoyed,' 'enjoyed the evening hugely,' etc. The girls who afford me the most enjoyment receive the greatest number of invitations. I think I may fairly say that I seek relaxation and pleasure in the same way that I attend to my business, on any day."

A man never realizes until he has made a fool of himself what a laughing-love world this is.

A Negro Woman's Invention. Ellen Eglin of New York, a member of the Woman's National Industrial League, invented a clothes-wringer. She sold the invention to an agent for $18 in 1888. When asked by the writer why she sold the invention so cheap, she replied: "You know I am black, and if it was known that a negro woman patented the invention white ladies would not buy the wringer. I was afraid to be known as the inventor of a wringer, but introduced in the market; that is the only reason. I am working on another invention and have money to push it. The patent is issued to me, and the invention will be known as a black woman's."
