No one ever thought of introducing so expensive a feature as lithographic color work in the days when the leading magazines sold for $4.00 a year and 35 cents a copy. But times change, and the magazines with them. It has remained for the Cosmopolitan, sold at one dollar a year, to put in an extensive lithographic plant capable of printing 320,000 pages per day (one color.) The January issue as a frontpiece a water color drawing by Eric Pape, illustrating the last story by Robert Louis Stevenson, which has probably never been excelled even in the pages of the finest dollar French periodicals. The cover of the Cosmopolitan is also changed, a drawing of page length by the famous Paris artist Rossi, in lithographic colors on white paper takes the place of the usual black with its red stripe. Hereafter the cover is to be a fresh surprise each month.

The Alva Heywood Opera Co., is the next attraction at Rempel's Opera House. It is a clean, entertaining and instructive play, one to which a doctor, a lawyer and even a minister may take his family and not take offense. It is composed of some of the best people of the theatrical world. It is highly spoken of by both press and pulpit, and we recommend it to our readers to be the best operative entertainment that has ever appeared before the footlights to a Logan audience. Brooke, Carl Webb, Andy Voris and J. S. Williams. The Throughbred is a good play and was well rendered at the Opera House last night, all the actors maintaining in the identity of their characters, in excellent accomplishment. For some unknown reason the manager of the Opera House had a rival company performing in the gallery. This troupe was composed of some coarse, vulgar boys and giggling, gabbling, ill mannered girls, from some of the suburbs of Lancaster or Nelsonville, not of Logan we are sure, who kept up such a disgusting display of rudeness, that the enjoyment of the stage performance was very much weakened. Col Rempel can't afford to have his gallery boxes compete on the same night, with the stage. General Gordon This distinguished lecturer has been engaged to appear in Logan at an early date, the exact time has not yet been determined. Gen. Gordon is one of the most distinguished men of the South, and his lecture, "The Last Days of the Confederacy," is one of thrilling interest. NOTES.

J. T. H.

Items of interest, questions, suggestions, etc., relating to the game are solicited and should be addressed to J. T. Brannon, care of Hocking Sentinel.

The chief event of the past week in whist circles was the big match between the Inter-club League of Brooklyn and the associated clubs of New Jersey, which took place on Wednesday evening in the rooms of the Jersey City club. One hundred and sixty players sat down at the call of time, and twenty hands were played at each table. New Jersey won by 27 tricks.

Harry Ambrose was away off last Friday evening for the first 15 hands but finally got down to business and put up a good game to Yerges and won as usual.

The time was when there was only one signal for the player to look out for. Now there are so many that no man knows them all, or can see half of them, or knows what he is looking at when he does see them.

Last week witnessed an event that is destined to play a most important part in the advancement of the game of whist. At Philadelphia, forty-four women, divided into eleven teams of four players each, contested from 2.30 to 6 p. m. for the championship.

It was a contest of women, and yet, for three hours and a half, the only sound to be heard was that made by the card as it was played upon the table, every contestant devoting herself assiduously to the game.

The penalties of the game were as vigorously enforced as at an American Whist League Congress tourney, and if the truth must be told, the standard of play was about as high as when the men meet to decide the whist fate of the nation.

The women of Philadelphia last week, as in all the matches of the winter, played a game of which they and their admirers may well be proud. They have proved conclusively that whist is a game which may be reduced to a science by one sex as well as the other.

What is the matter with Logan having a duplicate whist contest?

Harry E. Rose, an old L. W. C. member, has been rechristened and given a new name, so we have been informed; his cognomen is Palerweski. We are indebted to comrade Davenport for the information.

El. Hartly is the Jonah of the Logan Whist Club.

What has become of Harry Sparrow? He used to think he understood the game called whist.

The American Whist League trophy is still in Washington.

Sheriff Ryan plays a pretty stiff game.

The Court House gentlemen ought to challenge the Logan Whist Club.

John Nixon needs a little more coaching before he attempts to travel in fast company.

Charley Rose has been taking a week's rest in order to read up modern whist as it should be played.

Yerges played bum last week, a regular school boy game.

John Canty is coming out all right as a whist player. He can put up a strong game when he has a good partner.

We take the hint.—El.

The Logan Whist Club will have to give Gus Baird a trial at the game. There is whist in Gus, if you don't believe it, ask Yerges.

Hartly and Elbert beat the world for holding giant hands.

Rose don't make many bad plays, but when he does make one, it is about as rotten as you can make 'em.

Yerges says we are not so cowardly in our plays as we were a month ago. He says if our partner makes a lead and it gets around to us we will let go of a king instead of risking a ten spot.—The beauty of, and the science in the game, is to know when to risk a ten spot when to let go of a king, that is why we win so many and lose so few sittings.—El.

It has often been a subject of warm controversy as to how many tricks can be won or lost on a single hand, through very bad or scientific play. Some have held that it would be impossible to show a difference of more than seven tricks. To show you the fallacy of this idea, we would suggest that a hand be played at several tables and then see if your mind will not be disabused of the seven trick idea.
