WORLD'S BIGGEST SHIP.

White Star Liner Celtic is the Largest Merchant Vessel Afloat.
The White Star liner Celtic is far and away the largest ship in the world, being almost a quarter as large again as the Oceanic, which was previously the biggest leviathan afloat. As for the world-famous Great Eastern, which was built in 1866, it was only a mere puppy as compared with this ocean greyhound.

The Celtic is in every sense of the term a floating city, having no fewer than a dozen decks, and being 700 feet long, with a beam of 55 feet, and a displacement of 20,700 tons. She carries 2,742 passengers and crew, and 12,000 tons of cargo.

The captain's bridge is 100 feet above the keel. The plates are an inch and a half thick, and weigh about four tons apiece; while 1,700,000 rivets have been put into the vessel by hydraulic machinery.

All the men who could stand on her decks at one time would stretch in single file from London to Norwich—a distance of about ninety miles, as the crow flies.

It is said that at present the Celtic cannot be loaded to her utmost capacity, as she would in that event probably ground on the bar of New York harbor, where the depth at low water is about 32 feet; but it will soon be dredged down to 40 feet, so there is no need to fear that she will not be able to carry full cargoes when she sets out on her ocean-going career.

Imagination fairly reels at the enormous quantity of provisions the Celtic will carry. The total amount of flour stored for bread and pastry will be, for example, 17½ tons. There will also be 50,000 pounds of fresh beef and pork and 12,000 pounds of lamb, mutton and veal, and poultry and game; to the number of 6,000. Besides 2,000 pounds of salt fish and fifty boxes of smoked fish, there will be 3,000 pounds of fresh fish of various kinds, 500 pounds of lobsters, 500 pounds of oysters, 20,000 oysters and 400 tins of sardines. It is estimated that at least 25,000 eggs will be consumed during each voyage. They will weigh a ton, and if rolled into one would make a colossal egg 5 feet 7 inches high.

A ton and a half of oatmeal will be used for each voyage. Besides two tons and a half of ham and bacon, that amount of fifty pigs will be sacrificed for each trip, two and a half tons of beef (sufficient to feed 1,500,000 square inches of bread, two and a half tons of jam, jellies and marmalade; ten tons of sugar, and a ton and a quarter of coffee and three-quarters of a ton of tea, to say nothing of 800 gallons of milk, 100 gallons of cream and 100 gallons of condensed milk.

Then the Celtic will carry forty-six tons of potatoes (the product of about fourteen acres of average soil), 500 cauliflowers, 1,200 cabbages, 800 pounds of tomatoes, one ton of carrots, two tons of turnips, 600 bundles of asparagus.

A veritable fleet of lifeboats will be carried on the Celtic's deck, each one large enough to be called a sloop yacht.

NELSON AND THE COXSAIN.

No Wonder Trafalgar's Hero Was the Idol of His Fleet.
Just before the battle of Trafalgar a mail was sent from the English fleet to England, and it was passed that it might be the last chance to write before the expected battle. The letters had been collected from ships, the letter bags were on the vessel which was to take them, and she had got some distance under way, under full sail, when Lord Nelson, in a midshipman's uniform, came up and spoke to Passo, the signal officer, who, upon hearing what he said, stamped his foot in evident vexation, and uttered an exclamation. The admiral called Passo, and asked what was the matter. "Nothing which need trouble your ship," was the reply. "You are not the man to lose your temper for nothing," rejoined Nelson, "What is it?" "Well, if you must know, my lord, I will tell you. You see that coxswain?" pointing to one of the most active of the petty officers.

"We have not a better man on the Victory," and the message which you see on this was this. I was told that he was so busy receiving and getting off his mail bags that he forgot to put his own letter to his wife into one of them; and he has just discovered it in his pocket."

"Hoist a signal to bring her back," said Nelson, and the coxswain immediately knew that he may not fall in action tomorrow? His letter shall go with the rest." And the dispatch vessel was brought back to that alone.

Mr. Harrington was born on the line between Delaware and Maryland, and at 12 ran away from home and was a powder monkey on the gunboats Brandywine, Delaware and Winston. Many years later he fought through the Mexican war under Gen. Scott, and when the Civil war opened, although he was 60 and more, he joined the Sixtieth New York and went through the entire war. He has smoked a pipe all his life, and smokes now.

A Family Crisis Averted.
A New York town, whose business keeps him down town very late at night, and whose wife does not sit up for him, received a present of some very fine writing-paper, says the Times, and it occurred to him that, inasmuch as he would not have the opportunity of showing it to his wife until the next morning, it would be a good joke to write her a note. It was a great scheme, and he took much pleasure in it.

But the next morning his wife received the letter with conflicting emotions. She turned it over and over. What could her husband—at that moment upstairs, sleeping the sleep of the just—have to say that he could not say by word of mouth? It certainly was very mysterious.

Could it be?—yes, she remembered now, they had had a little discussion the other day in which they were not of the same opinion. Poor, dear boy! It must be that that little matter had rankled in his mind all this time. Well, she would open the letter and see. And this is what she found.

"Liebe Frau: What do you think of this for letter-paper? Yours."

Parted lovers are wont to declare that absence makes the heart grow fonder. It is probably owing to this mellow condition of the vital organs that Angelina so frequently transferred to Edwin soon after Algernon's departure. You see a man two or three hundred miles away isn't a bit of good to take a girl away, while the man on the spot—well, he's usually an amiable, well-dressed creature, that she becomes fond of before she knows it. If the young man of the town followed the advice of one who has given the subject much consideration, they would become engaged to the young women whose houses adjoin theirs. Then they would be in a position to see their fiancées three times a day.

Passes Century Mark.

John Harrington—"Uncle John" the children in the Bronx call him—is an optimist. He never worries and to his cheerful view of life is ascribed his remarkably long existence. He was 101 years old at noon on the Fourth of July, says the New York World, and the children in his neighborhood had planned to celebrate his birthday; and that of the nation simultaneously.

"Uncle John" knew of the proposed celebration for some time and was looking forward with much pleasure to the Fourth. Both he and the children were deeply disappointed, for the patriarch suffered a stroke of paralysis, with partial blindness, a few days before the Fourth.

"He regards his illness as a slight matter," said G. C. Odell, his son-in-law, "and believes he will soon be as well as ever. We encourage him, for, after all, will power is better than the best of medicines."

When a reporter asked the aged man how he accounted for his long life, he replied: "My motto has always been, 'Don't worry and attend to your own business.'"

Fires in Shipping Holds.
A machine for extinguishing fires in ships' holds recently introduced into Great Britain depends for its action on the generation of sulphurous acid gas, which is forced into the chamber in which the conflagration has occurred, and which, by replacing the air, so vitiate the atmosphere that combustion cannot continue. The machine consists of a generating chamber, into which air is forced by a fan, and in which a store of sulphur is placed. This can be simply ignited by throwing upon it a piece of burning waste. The gas thus generated is forced into the chamber, and a white extinguishes the flames. Attached to the apparatus is also a condenser, by means of which, the fire once extinguished, the gas is passed through and through the chamber as it cools, until the materials which have been burning are reduced to such a temperature that they do not burst into flame when the air is at length introduced. This is brought about by a gradual process.

Busy.
The importance of encounters for the championship was fully borne in upon the traveling man of business, who to name his experience to the Philadelphia Times:

When I arrived at Black Rock I inquired at the village tavern for a man of the name of Wharton, who had some land to sell.
"Do you mean old Bill Wharton?"
"Yes."
"Got land down on Bass River?"
"Yes."
"Well, he lives about three miles out of town."
"Can I get a horse?"
"Yes, but it won't do you any good."
"Is he ill?"
"Not that I know of, but he wouldn't see the President of the United States before next Wednesday. If you can wait seven or eight days you can get to talk about that land with him."
"Then he has some special business on hand?"
"Special business? Well, I should say so and no mistake. To-day him and old Pete Davis sat down to a game of checkers for the championship of the county."

In That Critical Time When a Girl Becomes a Woman.
girl in the land. It is a critical period in a woman's life when she ceases to be a girl and becomes a woman. Very few pass through this period without some trouble. The doctor is called and he generally advises an operation. Perhaps he will subject the patient to a long series of experiments with medicines and tonics. The reason he does this is because he does not know how to recognize the trouble.

In a large majority of the cases catarrh of the female organs is the cause. Peruna relieves these cases promptly because it cures the catarrh. Peruna is not a palliative or a sedative or a nerve or a stimulant. It is a specific for catarrh and cures catarrh wherever it may lurk in the system.

This girl was lucky enough to find Peruna at last. As she says, the doctor did not seem to understand what the trouble was and the medicine he prescribed from time to time did not help her. Peruna hit the mark at once and she is now recommending this wonderful remedy to all the other girls in the United States.

Thousands of the girls who look at her beautiful face and read her sincere testimonial, will be led to try Peruna in their time of trouble and critical period. Peruna will not fail them. Every one of them will be glad and it is to be hoped that their enthusiasm will lead them to do as this girl did—precisely the fact to the wit so that others may read it and do likewise.

Miss Bessie Kellogg, President of the Young Women's Club of Valley City, North Dakota, writes the following from First street, South, Valley City, North Dakota:

"Ever since I matured I suffered with severe monthly pain. The doctor did not seem to understand what the trouble was and the medicine he prescribed from time to time did not help me. He finally suggested that I have an operation. One of my friends who had been cured of a similar affliction through the use of Peruna, advised me to give it a trial first, and so I used it for three weeks faithfully. My pain was diminished very soon and within two months I had none at all. During that time I have not had an ache or pain. I give highest praise to Peruna. Every woman ought to use it, and I feel sure that it would bring perfect health."—BESSIE KELLOGG.
