PRIMARY ELECTION NEXT SATURDAY.

The Primary on Saturday is especially important. We have a county ticket and central committeeman to elect. Our candidates for county office are all good men. But for the one office of Treasurer there is no opposition. No mistake will be made in the nomination of the aspiring candidates.

We hope good and true Democrats will be chosen for committee-men. We have had in past years committeemen who wanted pay to attend a meeting. Some were in the pay of the Republican party.

We have lost the county by traitors in leadership. It is time Democrats, not office seekers, not half and perhaps altogether Republicans, have control of our party.

With the abandoning of the spring election, all the township officers will be elected this fall. It would be best if we make these nominations at our Primary next Saturday.

The following are the officers to be voted for at the regular election. The national state and county offices. Falls township: One Clerk. One Trustee. Two Justice of Peace. Two Assessors. Two Constables.

In all the other townships, fifteen supervisors and thirteen school directors. In Logan: Five council men. Five school directors. Four assessors. One marshal. Four committeeman.

YES, HE WAS A RAILROAD MAN.

Senator Wise was and is a railroad man. He began his career as a brakeman and by merit attained to a railroad Presidency.

The McArthur Republican, evidently the organ of the lazy louts or the foppish aristocracy makes this sneering fling at him.

"The Democratic candidate for the vice presidency was a railroad man for many years. The voters will tell him where to get off in November." - McArthur Republican.

It occurs to us that the working railroad boys of Vinton county will resent this low fling at one of the most distinguished self made railroad men in the county.

The career of Henry Gassaway Davis, from brakeman to multi-millionaire, and from legislative delegate to Vice Presidential nominee of the Democratic party, enters the domain of business, statesmanship, politics and philanthropy. It covers the utmost biblical limit allotted to human activity. It exemplifies the doctrine that energy may be substituted for education and family advantages; that opportunity is better than inheritance; and that the degree of success attained is regulated by personal exertion. The recital of his development, acquisition of wealth and great service to the public, with the climax of prominence that has now come to him is equalled by all history of few self-made men.

He will carry his state of West Virginia. He will be elected, and railroad boys will be honored and feel proud in the deserved promotion of the railroad brakeman.

JOHN R. McLEAN.

It pleases to know that John R. McLean, the Cincinnati Enquirer has been selected as Ohio's man on the National Democratic Executive committee.

Mr. McLean is one of the most potent political factors in this country. His great paper is a power in politics and directed as it will be by the judgment of McLean in this campaign there is hope that Ohio may go as she did for Cleveland and a thousand votes more and be democratic.

PRESIDENT ELLIS.

President Ellis of the Athens University, has been re-elected and his Salary here-to-fore $3000 a year has been increased to $5000.

President Ellis is one of the best educators in Ohio or in this country. He has made the Institution one of the best and his increased salary is but just to the service he renders. We heartily commend the action of the Board of Trustees.

The Pest House ought to be located with the Coroner, in the obscurity of Ward township.

A PEST HOUSE.

The Township Trustees and Logan Board of Health have held a joint meeting last Saturday and discussed the question of building a Pest House. Schrader, from the Board of Health, and Voris, from the Trustees, were appointed a committee to look up a site.

We are told that it is proposed to take the four acres of ground on Kanode Hill, north of the cemetery. Some time ago the council, by resolution, turned over the public grounds of the city to the Improvement Society.

These four acres were bought, when we established our water works, with a view to making on this high hill, a reservoir. This scheme was abandoned, but the four acres are city property and under control of the Improvement Society. It is the purpose of this society to make this tract a Logan grove, a place free to all the people of Logan for picnics, parties, reunions and social meetings.

We object to making our people's park a pest house. There are plenty of waste places around Logan where a patch for a pest house can be secured at little cost.

We don't want our four acres of the people's park made a place for pests.

HON. JERRY CARPENTER.

Appointed Steward of The Athens Asylum.

At the last meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Athens Asylum the resignation of Will Sanders was accepted and Jerry Carpenter of Meigs was appointed.

The appointment is one we most heartily approve. Mr. Carpenter is a business man of judgment and discretion. He is honest, public spirited and a genial gentleman.

We congratulate the Board of Trustees on the excellent selection they have made, and congratulate our friend Jerry on the honor, unsolicited the appointment confers.

DELINQUENT ACCOUNTS.

We have sent a number of delinquent accounts to a Chicago collection agency. Of course some of the old timers, those owing us five and ten years will get awful mad. We can stand their wrath if they only pay us what they honestly owe.

Our expenses are about $30. a week. We can't carry a thousand and more delinquents and more delinquents for more than ten years.

The Republicans have not nominated any one for coroner. It is about the right thing to do without a coroner.

He is never there when wanted. If we have a coroner now, only perhaps the county treasurer who pays out tax money knows of his existence.

The justice of peace can, and will do the service the public requires.

Attention, Soldiers.

The Old Ex-Soldiers' Association of Marion township will hold their annual encampment and reunion at the old Dunkard church six miles north of Logan, Thursday, August 25th. An excellent program is in preparation. Col. Weldy and Judge Bright will deliver addresses. Recitations, stories and old army songs will be in order. The Bremen band has been engaged to enliven the occasion, and life and drum will assist in warming up the old vets. Everybody is welcome. Come with well-filled baskets.

THE POSSIBILITIES OF THE BELGIAN HARE.

As I have been requested to tell what I know of the Belgian hare, by the publisher of this paper, I shall try to comply with that request as well as I can in the limited time I can spare from my work as a market gardener. For some time past I have been interested in testing the possibilities of Belgian hares as meat producers to supply a demand for the very best meat that can be produced, also, as an animal to furnish the pleasure that many have to excel in producing stock of highest type, by which to carry off the prizes at the great shows, where competition is a pleasure. That the Belgian hare is preeminently suitable to fill the requirements in these two particular ways I am fully satisfied. I am also satisfied that there is a wrong way as well as a right way to handle them for best results, also, that the wrong way is the one most commonly practiced, especially if the object is to produce them in large numbers profitably. The most common way, so far as I know, is to keep the does in individual hutches, where they rear their young, even to a size large enough to supply the table. I know of no other meat producing animal that can stand such treatment. Think of the cramped space allowed for the does and her offspring, confined, often to less than two square feet of space, until this space is literally full and overflowing with two or three batches of young. This is certainly making the most of such space, but in doing so, it involves an immense amount of needless care. I consider that there is as much lack of good sense in trying to raise Belgian in large numbers in such cramped quarters, where each breeding doe and her numerous offspring must be cared for individually, as there would be in trying to make sheep raising profitable under similar conditions. If sheep were raised by such a method I would expect wool should sell for four dollars per pound, and mutton at two or three dollars per pound. But in sheep raising it is well known that in large flocks, running together, when properly looked after, is the most profitable. The Belgian hare is subject to the same rule. Some breeders have been able to stand the extra time and expense in raising a few Belgians by the individual hutch system, by virtue of their being able to sell, now and then a high class specimen at a fancy price, which such specimen is apt to command should he be a prize hutch at some of the great shows. I have seen a Lord Brittain who sold for $8,000, and proved to be a good investment at that price, as his earnings the first year after was something like four thousand dollars. However, the trouble is, very few of us are raising Lord Brittain and selling at his figures. I have, right now, in my herd of Belgians descendants of Lord Brittain only a few generations removed, that I would be pleased to sell at half this valuation, and I am confident that their meat is just as toothsome and their furs just as valuable to the furrier as Lord Brittain's might have been. You see it's all in the "fancy" when it comes to fancy prices. The future for the Belgian must rest on his ability to furnish high class meat and furs, at a price that will not kill the demand, and as meat and fur can be produced from high class foundation stock my recommendation would be to start with the best stock your pocket book will enable you to procure, for after the first start the cost of raising from good stock is no greater than from inferior, but the pleasure of caring for good specimens, and the sale of a fine specimen now and then to some one who is looking for the best, will pay better than sales altogether from inferior stock. As the meat and fur producers of the Belgian are the principle inducement for production in large numbers, what might be termed, a ranch system, fence off an enclosure of a size commensurate with the magnitude in which the business is to be conducted, whether a few hundred are to be raised on a fenced acre, or a few millions on ten thousand acres. The breeding does should be allowed free range over the allotted territory enclosed by wire net fencing. A knowledge of their habits is very necessary to success when the breeder has got so far along as to engage in raising hares on large enough scale to pay in fancy meat supplies. The former very near being what is termed omnivorous, that is, eating everything that can be eaten, but of course they have a choice when choice is to be had. They do well on the clovers, grasses and grains. These may be supplied by growing right on the ground where they range, pasturing it off the same as other stock, and supplementing any shortage of pasture by feeding. As to their prolificacy, all who have had experience know that no useful animal can come any ways near their equal in this respect. I have no doubt but that under favorable circumstances a doe might bring forth young every month for a year, and as the young does are sufficiently matured at six months old to bring forth young, numbering in my herd from five to thirteen as a birth, it is easily seen that a single pair and descendants are capable of overrunning the earth. To illustrate the recognized possibility of increase I will mention that in the April and May issue of the Record, (which is the official organ of the Eastern Importing and Breeding Association, which company is incorporated and capitalized for $100,000 for importing and breeding Belgian hares) there was published an article on Belgian hares, in which I sought to test the ideas of a number of breeders, based on their own experience, as to the prolificness of the Belgian. In that article I offered a selected pair of Belgians as a present to the one who should guess the nearest to the number of Belgians I will raise from eleven does from that date till March 1st, 1905, which would be about one year's time. Up to the time of this writing the average of the guesses sent in is 1410, or about 128 to each of the eleven does. These guesses, of course, only show what can be "done on paper." The actual result must depend on the breeder himself. I have read that in Australia the wild hare of the Jack-rabbit type increase in such large numbers in spite of all attempts to keep them down, that it is necessary to have periodical "round-ups" in which hundreds of people take part in driving them to a common center, from all points of the compass, hundreds of thousands being slaughtered at these round-ups and their dressed meat being carried in refrigerator ships to the large European markets, where it commands fancy prices. Thus these round-ups afford the most exciting pleasure to the participants, and profit in the way of meat sales. Compare nature's way in Australia hare production to raising a few hares in hutches. Of course, in Australia on account of their not being restricted on special ground allotted to them, they become a scourge to the country, but in raising hares on special ground, as in the case of the ranch system, that objection would not follow. They would be restricted from doing damage on territory not theirs, the same as the cattle and sheep ranches take care of their occupants, which are kept where they belong. I see no reason why the Belgians here, assisted by intelligent management, could not outstrip their foreign cousin in Australia, not only in the excitement of the periodical round-up in the large ranches on account of their prolificness, but in the superior quality of meat in a critical market. As to quality of the meat of the Belgian, it prides for high quality have been preached by all who have dined on hare, as served up in so many appetizing ways. The meat is said to sell higher than any other in markets affording a supply and to have a higher percentage of nutrition than any other, and to be of easy digestion, thus being eminently fitted for sanitariums and such like institutions. I know of no reason why all such institutions, whether private or state, such as sanitariums, asylums, and even the high class hotels, should not have their own supplies, at least till the business is sufficiently developed to furnish meat supplies by private or corporate enterprise, via ranch system. In the near future I expect to see the ranch system of raising Belgians engaged in. It will be begun by some wealthy person or perhaps by an association of persons who like to pioneer new enterprises. It is no uncommon thing to hear of large tracts lying in one body, the owners waiting for time to make it valuable. Why not the owners fence it in with suitable wire netting and turn it into a sort of an Australian rabbit producer. Such correspondence as has passed between myself and other who think favorably of starting Belgian hare production in a new common sense way leads me to believe that the time is not far off when it will be done successfully, and which can be done on from one acre, one thousand, ten thousand or more, according to the disposition of the venture.

While I have no time to spare to answer the questions of mere curiosity seekers I am ready at all times to communicate with persons who want any such information in detail that I might give, or who have some ideas of their own which they are willing to put with.

Respectfully, STEVE STIERS.

SUMMER SPASMS. A party of Lancaster sports were camping and fishing on Rush creek, near Laurel chapel, recently, and if all reports are true were wonderfully successful, catching a great many more fish than they could consume, which they gave or traded away to the farmer's wives for old, cast, buttermilk, in fact any old thing except chicken, and those they got by running their trot line in the middle of the night. They were expert fishermen and had all kinds of bait beside an abundance of "preventative." As a side line they carried several cases of Born's celebrated sucker bait, in original packages, which no doubt counts for their wonderful success in the sucker line in the heat of the day. On breaking camp there were several packages of this celebrated bait left behind. Now it is a well known fact that the older this bait gets the more body it takes on, and is headier and stronger, in fact gets as often in the meadow, woods or cornfield as in the water. A farmer living near by happened to be down in the bottom working, when they broke camp, and appropriated several packages of the bait overlooked in packing. There were several more packages than he could handle carry at one load, and not wishing to make two buses of a cherry concluded to dispose of enough to lighten his load by pulling the stoppers and looking up, over the side of the package, as sun. It trickled down his throat. In the evening the farmer's horses stood waiting for their supper, pawing and neighing to beat the band. They finally attracted the attention of the people at the house, who went down to investigate. They couldn't find the farmer nor make him hear, so concluded he had met with an accident and started out on the trail led by the horses dragging the plow and followed it down to the bottom near the camp, where they found hollow log. No the world, with a quart package of the bait in each hand lying in a furrow, and from the force of the recently contracted habit, looking up to the sun. For the full particulars call up Chris Kunkler.
