

LOGAN WON GOOD GAME

From Gore-Maxville Combination by Score of

FOUR TO NOTHING.

Riley Struck Out Sixteen Would-be Sluggers.

One of the cleanest and best played games of the season here was that against the Gore-Maxville team, Sunday. The fielding was nearly all fine, and Logan's victory may be justly attributed to Riley's superior work in the box. His support was of the best, but his sixteen strike-outs did not leave a great deal of work for the others. Camp's base-running was a feature of the game.

FIRST INNING

Burgess fouled to Carty; Terrell and H. Starr struck out.

Webb fanned; McDermott doubled, and was caught at second in a double play on Beck's short line fly to Terrell.

SECOND INNING

Sherman, Vanatta, and T. Starr struck out. Martin popped straight up to Emrick; Dill and Carty struck out.

THIRD INNING

Emrick flied to Lytle, and Wolf to center, a fine catch by Dill, who picked the ball right out of Camp's hands, thirty feet back of second; O'Riley struck out.

Camp's hot grounder to short was fouled; Lytle popped to Emrick; Riley lined out a long fly to left, that was caught by Wolf within five feet of the fence; Webb singled, scoring Camp; and McDermott flied to center.

FOURTH INNING

Burgess fouled to Carty; Terrell was passed to first on balls, and died at second by a play from Riley on H. Starr's short grounder following; Sherman struck out. Beck grounded, Terrell to H. Starr; Martin singled, and stole second and third, scoring on a wild throw to third; Dill fanned, and Carty flied to Sherman.

FIFTH INNING

Vanatta made Gore's first hit, an easy one past short-stop; T. Starr and Emrick struck out, and Vanatta was caught at second in an attempt to steal. Camp walked and stole second; Lytle sacrificed; Riley grounded, short to first, Camp scoring. Webb flied to Vanatta.

SIXTH INNING

Wolf and O'Riley struck out; Burgess singled, and Terrell grounded to Beck.

McDermott smashed the first ball pitched well over the left field, and tripped to third where he was seized and borne triumphantly to the plate; Beck grounded smart; Starr; Martin fanned, Dill singled, and Carty fouled to O'Riley, a great catch on a long run by O'Riley.

SEVENTH INNING

H. Starr, Sherman, and Vanatta fanned the breezes, Sherman being put out at first after the third strike.

Camp grounded, O'Riley to H. Starr, and Lytle ditto, Terrell to H. Starr; Riley hit a beautiful double to right center, and was run out between second and third, Sherman, T. Starr and O'Riley assisting.

EIGHTH INNING

T. Starr flied to Webb; Emrick struck out; Wolf's grounder to first made a bad bounce over the bag, and was fumbled, giving him the base; O'Riley singled to right, and a beautiful throw home by Lytle caught Wolf, who was attempting to score.

Webb struck out; McDermott made two bases on a wild throw from short to first; Beck grounded, Terrell to Starr, and Martin, Emrick to Starr.

NINTH INNING

Burgess flied to Lytle; Terrell grounded, short to first; H. Starr made first on a fumble of his grounder, and stole; and Sherman fanned, ending the game.

Monument to J. H. Kline.

Mr. Mack Mount, of the Eisele Marble and Granite Works, at Logan, was in Enterprise the latter part of the week putting up a large monument for the late J. H. Kline. This monument is of Barre Granite and was made from an eastern design which was modified by Mr. Eisele and J. A. Kline adding much to its appearance. It stands as a very befitting memorial.

Easy to Run a Paper.

People think it is easy to "run" a newspaper. One week's experience would change the opinion of most people on the subject, as an exchange puts it. Did you ever count the words in a column of ordinary newspaper print? Well there are about a thousand words in a column. Suppose you sit down and write a thousand words upon some subject and then another thousand and another until you have written eight or ten thousand. Try it and see if it is right easy. Keep that gait up for a month, a year, and see if it is easy. Then chase a single local item all over town and after you have gotten the facts all right, condense them into a few lines—an hour's work that can be read in a few seconds. Do this for a dozen items that seem insignificant after they are printed, but which you know are important; then have the items criticised and inaccuracies pointed to you when it is too late to correct them. Oh, yes, it is easy to "run" a newspaper.

GAMBLING PASSING.

State Authorities Breaking Up the Joints.

French Lick, Ind., July 5.—For a time yesterday afternoon it looked as if Governor Hanly and Attorney General Miller might require militia in dismantling the two magnificent gambling casinos here and at West Baden. News that the state had finally taken a hand against the gamblers spread like wild fire over the hills and through the valley and hundreds were en route to the scene by sunrise.

The crowd increased as the day advanced. Dissatisfaction over the removal of the gambling paraphernalia seemed to grow, although many declared the government was doing right.

Costly roulette wheels were dumped ruthlessly into a farm wagon and taken to the railroad. Glittering, ornamented tables over which guests at the famous resorts poured their coin were tossed out of doors. Faro and keno outfits, klondike tables and equipments of the rooms where thousands had risked their money on the "ponies" were dragged out of palatial settings and made ready for a journey to Paoli, where it was said the authorities would destroy them with an ax or by fire.

Dozens of slot machines, some of them brimful of coin, were tossed into wagons and hurried to the cars. It was the first time the banks at the two places had been broken.

Shuts Out the Boys.

Boys under 14 years of age, who have been figuring on making a little money by working in vacation this year will have to change their minds, if State Shop Inspector J. H. Morgan has his way about it. Inspector Morgan mailed out to his deputy inspectors in all parts of the state a few days since copies of an order to see that no school youth under 14 are permitted to be employed in any capacity this summer. There has been no change in the law but it is going to be enforced strictly now, Mr. Morgan says. Heretofore the inspectors have winked at the provisions of the law during vacation and permitted boys and girls who wished to do so, to take employment. Mr. Morgan believes that this is a serious violation of the law and will not permit it now. "I know it will be hard to enforce the law," said Inspector Morgan, "for we will have both the children who want to work, and their parents who want them to be earning something, to work against us. I find school superintendents also in favor of letting the children work during vacation. 'They might as well work as run the streets and play,' they say. To this kind of argument my answer is that by the same kind of argument they might as well abolish the school vacation altogether." The order will apply to employment of all kinds—not merely to employment in shops, but in stores, offices, as messengers and even on farms. The state inspector believes that the children are entitled to the summer for play and must use it in that way. If they are to work they might as well go right on with their school work. He also believes that adults who are employed are entitled to be exempt from competition with child labor. Many employers are in the habit of discharging adult employees in the vacation period because they can get children at that time to do the same work for less money.

From the Goat.

A man was heard to remark on the streets one day last week that he would as soon believe a man evolved from a camel as to believe he sprang from a monkey. We hadn't. The camel will work seven days without drinking, and a man occasionally drinks seven days without working. If one is to be judged by habits, he might be led to believe that a man sprang from goats. They are the only animals that pester tobacco, both wear whiskers and are inclined to butt in.

Crop Report.

Wheat has maintained the promising condition reported one month ago, the present estimated prospect being the same as shown in the June report—95 per cent of an average. In some sections of the state wheat has advanced many points during the past month, while in other sections a slight decline is noted, but as a whole the outlook for a good wheat crop is very encouraging. The correspondents generally report it as well headed, but short in straw. There is some little complaint of damage by weevil.

In anticipating the total yield of wheat for the state, consideration must be given to the short acreage originally seeded, and although the total number of acres reported as plowed up this spring is so small as to leave approximately the original acreage to be harvested, the area is so far below an average that even with the high average production per acre now promised the total yield for the state can hardly reach an average crop.

Oats is making a very poor showing, although its present estimated condition shows a slight improvement over the condition reported last month, being now estimated at 76 per cent, a gain of three points.

The area planted to corn is 2 per cent less than that reported by the township assessors last year, a shortage of about sixty-three thousand acres. The stand of corn over the state is very uneven, due to the irregularity in time of planting, owing to unfavorable weather conditions. Complaint of damage by cut worms is very general. Its present estimated condition is reported at 85 per cent of an average.

The estimated area planted to potatoes is reported at 124,517 acres. The dry weather has affected the prospect, the present condition being 89 per cent of an average.

Owing to the long continued drought timothy and meadows show a low average condition, being reported respectively at 72 per cent, and 83 per cent.

The condition of horses and cattle is excellent, while the number of colts and calves is about an average.

He Swung the Lantern All Right.

A southern railroad had stationed, at one point along its line, an old negro watchman, whose duties consisted in warning travelers down a highway crossing the tracks when a train approached. One night a wagon belonging to a farmer was struck, resulting in a bad accident. The company was, of course, sued for damages, and at the trial the old darkey replied to the questions put to him in a clear, direct fashion. Among these questions was one as to whether he was sure that he had swung his lantern across the road when he perceived the train approach. The negro replied: "I shoredly did, sah!"

The trial resulted in a verdict for the company, and the counsel took early occasion to compliment the aged negro on his excellent testimony. To which the latter replied: "Thankee, Marse John, but I was shoredly skeered when dat lawyer man begin to ask me about de lantern. I was afeared for a minute dat he was goin' to ask me if it was lit or not. De oil done give out some time befo' de accident!"—School Journal.

God Made Man.

The Bryan banner cheers seem not confined to any one party. Did you notice what Senator Dolliver, Iowa's republican leader, said in an address a few days ago? A dramatic part of Senator Dolliver's address was the point when he said: "William J. Bryan is the same kind of man as McKinley." At the mention of the Nebraskan's name the applause was spontaneous and lasted several minutes. Waving his hands in the air Senator Dolliver declared: "You should never sneer at that name. He is a God made man. I have known him for years and worked with him in the house of representatives."

Appointed School Examiner.

(Vinton County Republican.) Judge Kirkendall on Monday appointed Miss Jennie F. Dowd school examiner for the term of three years beginning September 1, 1906. The appointment of Miss Dowd is an excellent one and gives universal satisfaction. She was educated in our public schools and has taught several terms here. She now holds an eight years' certificate and has been very successful as an instructor. She was principal of the schools at Glouster O., last year and has been employed for the coming school year at an increase in salary. She is a bright, intelligent and popular young lady, and will be the first lady examiner the county ever had and a valuable member of the board. We congratulate her and Judge Kirkendall on the appointment.

Ye Editor's Needs.

It is reported, says an exchange, that one of our newly married ladies kneads bread with her gloves on. The incident may be peculiar, but there are others. The editor of this paper needs bread with his shoes on; he needs bread with his shirt on; he needs bread with his pants on; and unless some of the delinquent subscribers of this paper pays up before long he will need bread without so much as anything on—and this is no Garden of Eden, either, in the winter time.—The Enid (Oklahoma) Daily Wave.

The Spirit of International Arbitration Growing

By CARDINAL GIBBONS.

"Thrice is he armed who hath his quarrel just."

1. He is armed with the consciousness of the sacred right of property.

2. He is armed with the shield of an enlightened public opinion.

3. He is armed with the conviction that his cause will be adjudicated by the equitable decision of a board of arbitration.

This amicable system, while protecting the rights of the weak, will not wound or humiliate the national pride of the strong, since it does not attempt to trench on the sovereignty or autonomy of the stronger power.

I can recall at least four instances within the last 20 years in which international conflicts have been amicably settled by arbitration. The dispute between Germany and Spain regarding the Caroline islands was adjusted by Pope Leo XIII. in 1886. The Samoan difficulty between Germany and the United States was settled by a conference held in Berlin in 1889. A treaty of peace between the United States and Mexico was signed in Washington at the close of Cleveland's administration. And a few weeks ago, a war between France and Germany, perhaps a general European conflict, was averted by the Algeiras conference in Morocco.

Let us cherish the hope that the day is not far off when the reign of the Prince of Peace will be firmly established on the earth, and the spirit of the Gospel will so far sway the minds and hearts of rulers and cabinets, that international disputes will be decided, not by standing armies, but by permanent courts of arbitration—when they will be settled, not on the battlefield but in the halls of conciliation, and will be adjusted, not by the sword, but by the pen, which "is mightier than the sword."

The Unscrupulous Corporation Lawyer

By LEVY MAYER, Noted Chicago Lawyer.

The greatest menace to this country today is the criminal encroachment of corporations upon the people's rights and upon the popular means of sustenance. That lawyers should be the sponsors, connivers and counselors of corporate misdeeds is deplorable.

I regret to have to admit it, but I believe and know it to be true that, if the bottom facts could be revealed, it would be found that there is not a criminal prosecution of a business corporation under way to-day at the instance of the government on charges of violation of the interstate and anti-trust laws that is not primarily due to the deit work of some corporation lawyer who expended his legal ingenuity in the task of finding ways to violate and defy the spirit and purpose of the federal laws.

Those are strong words. But I mean what I say—mean every word of it. There can be no doubt that the pathway to immunity—real or fancied—has in every case been hewn and cleared through the investing jungle of the criminal laws.

It has always been to me a remarkable and wholly inexplicable paradox that lawyers who never would be guilty of dishonorable or dishonest conduct in private life, or in their relations with an ordinary business firm should so easily and so completely cast morality to the winds when acting for large business corporations.

I know many such lawyers. One, whom I have in mind, was the very soul of honor before he became the leading counsel for a large corporation. Then he suddenly not only permitted and connived at violations of the law by his corporation, but he expended the money of the shareholders in securing the enactment of venal and corrupt legislation.

It is time to call a halt. An aroused public sentiment is calling for reform, and there is no reason to despair of a remedy being found for evil. It rests in a special sense with the young generation of lawyers to aid materially in destroying the source and fountain of the inspiration for corporate lawlessness—which is the corporate law department.

Dangerous Burglar Is the Novice

By INSPECTOR WM. McLAUGHLIN, In Charge New York Detective Bureau.

The burglar most to be feared these days is not the old-time professional fellow who worked in gangs and was an institution. We have that fellow and most of his kind so surrounded this way and that that there is very little chance for him. That is shown by an incident that occurred recently when a police magistrate discharged a man who was in the Rogues' Gallery, and had been brought in by a headquarters man on general principles, inasmuch as he had been warned to keep away from town. The man told a straight story to the judge and said as soon as his brother got well or died he would leave town again. The judge told the man he could go. He had not gone three blocks from the courtroom when he was picked by another man from headquarters and taken back to the court.

After he had been taken back three times he finally got away to where he was going.

The man who is most to be feared is the man who, by some kink of circumstance, does a job of out-and-out burglary and finds that it is easy to do. He may be a fellow who has been living a respectable life and never had a fair chance to fall from grace.

The undiscovered burglaries are the ones that are committed by this class of men. Any man who will follow up burglarizing can depend upon it that we will get him eventually; but in many instances one of the type of men I have described will do one or two jobs and get a conscience fear that he is suspected and move away from the community where he has been guilty.
