THE SHOCK OF 1863.

When Canada, New York and Pennsylvania Were Shaken Up.

Canada, New York and Pennsylvania experienced a terrible shock on Jan. 26, 27 and 28, 1863. A quaint description of the occurrence, published at the time, says: "The heavens being serene, there was suddenly heard a roar like the noise of a great fire. Immediately the buildings were shaken with great violence. Doors opened and shut of themselves with a fearful clattering. The bells rang without their ropes being touched. Cracks appeared in the walls of buildings and floors separated and in some cases came down. Chasms appeared in the fields, and the hills seemed to be in motion. The fright of the inhabitants was shared by the beasts and birds, who sent forth fearful cries, howlings and bellowsings.

"The duration of this earthquake was very uncommon. The first shock continued half an hour before it was over, but it began to abate a quarter of an hour after it started. Three other shocks occurred the same day. The second day there was a more violent shock, which lasted a long time, and that night some counted no less than thirty-two shocks, of which many were violent. The tremblings of the earth did not cease till July. Many trees were torn up and the profiles of the mountains seemed to be much changed. Springs and small streams were dried up. Waters once sweet became sulphurous and the channels in which rivers formerly ran were so altered as to be unrecognizable.

"Halfway between Tadousac and Quebec two hills were thrown down and formed a point of land which extended an eighth of a mile into the St. Lawrence river. The island of Aux Coudres became larger than it was before and the channel of the river was greatly changed."

Men With Women's Voices.

Generally speaking, voices living at high altitudes have weaker and more highly pitched voices than those living in regions where the supply of oxygen is more plentiful. Thus among the Indians living on the plateaus between the ranges of the Andes, at an elevation of from ten to fourteen thousand feet, the men have voices like women and the women like children, and their singing is a shrill monotone. The Australian native has a weak voice, but a knack of sending it a long distance, and the lowest tribes of African bushmen also possess weak voices. Of all human beings it would seem that the dwarf race discovered by Stanley in central Africa, in point of volume and compass, the weakest of human voices, and this is only what one would expect from the feebleness of their physique generally.

Hard Lines.

"Where are you living now?"
"We aren't living at all now; we're boarding."

Knowing the Birds.

How grand is the hawk or the eagle sailing far away in the blue sky! And how beautiful are song birds, each in its favorite position to sing, the sparrow sparrow with head thrown back, the bobolink sailing down to the grass with raised wings! Those who have spent much time in watching birds in the field know how differently the various birds perch, fly, run, climb or feed. The warblers catch flies, but they do not do it in such an interesting way as do the true fly catchers. We walk to know a bird by the flight or walk just as we know other friends by their gait or even by the sound of their tread. In flight the wings of many different birds make peculiar sounds whereby we may know the birds even if they themselves are out of sight. It is not at all necessary to get close enough to a bird to see its exact color or the shape of its bill and feet, for its movements and outlines can be seen at a greater distance. And so we may know the birds even though it should fly away, as birds often do as soon as we try to stalk them for a nearer view.—St. Nicholas.

Humor and Philosophy

THE MODEST FAN.

High in the stand
The baseball fan,
A crazy and
A happy man,
The balling stars
Greets with a cheer
And greets a cheer
The atmosphere.
He always brings
His voice along
And says some things
Out clear and strong;
He clears his throat
When things look blue
And strikes a note
On his bassoon.
The home team makes
A three base hit;
At once awakes
His modest wit,
And in a tone
That will suffice
The air is strewn
With his advice.
The umpire draws
Some notice, too,
And has his flaws
Held up to view.
And any man
Who muffs a ball
Hears from the fan
Before them all.
Oh, fan, you try
To make things worse,
But that is why
You always come,
It can't be said
Up where you sit,
Inaudible
And said of it.

UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM SOUTH CAROLINA PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

Ex-Senator M. C. Butler.

Dyspepsia Is Often Caused by Catarrh of the Stomach—Peruna Relieves Catarrh of the Stomach and Is Therefore a Remedy for Dyspepsia.

Hon. M. C. Butler, Ex-U. S. Senator from South Carolina for two terms, in a letter from Washington, D. C., writes to the Peruna Medicine Co., as follows:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine, besides a good tonic."

CATARRH of the stomach is the correct name for most cases of dyspepsia. In order to cure catarrh of the stomach the catarrh must be eradicated. Only an internal cathartic remedy, such as Peruna, is available. Peruna exactly meets the indications.

OHIO BRIEFS.

What's Doing in the Buckeye State.
Admits His Guilt.
Portsmouth, O., Aug. 28.—Jarrett H. Bee, 36, made a full confession of the murder of his wife, Flora Adams Hedges, 23, and John Harr, in whose company he found her Sunday night. Hedges took the officers to the home of a brother with whom he left the revolver during his flight. It was found hidden in a stable. Hughes claimed he sought reconciliation with his wife, but finding her with the man who wrecked their home drove him to the deed. The police have evidence that the double tragedy was carefully planned. It is believed Hughes will plead guilty. He is a shoe worker. Harr leaves a wife and three children.

Cheap Oil.
Independence, Kan., Aug. 29.—The Pacific Gas and Oil company announced a reduction of 3 cents a barrel in the price of all western oils. High grade now brings 39 cents and fuel oil 28 cents. Unless drilling is stopped it is feared the price will go much lower.
