

W. J. BRYAN,

The Next President of the United States.

FRANK HOWE, Chairman of the Republican County Committee at Dayton, says that when Warden Gould and other state dignitaries came there to arrange for the state convention that he had often suggested that they meet at a hotel parlor to discuss matters but each time, Chairman Gould of the republican state committee said, "Let's just meet over here," and took the crowd to a saloon. "Gould did not feel at home in politics except in a saloon," said the committeeman.

JUDGE JOHN G. REEVES, Tuesday of this week, was nominated for a second term Common Pleas Judge in the Seventh district. The convention was held at Pomeroy, and was a spirited endorsement of the good work he has done on the bench in his term he is now serving. He is a formidable man on the bench, "a just judge" and a good man. From all the counties of the district come good words of cheer that gives much hope of his success, though the district is republican.

THERE ARE about eight classes of town killers, and every town is afflicted with one or more of them. First, those who go out of town to do their trading; second, those who are opposed to improvements; third, those who prefer a quiet town to one of push and business; fourth, those who imagine they own the town; fifth, those who deride public-spirited men; sixth, those who oppose movements not originating with themselves; seventh, those who oppose every movement that does not appear to benefit them; eighth, those who seek to injure the credit or reputation of their neighbors.

A most startling cartoon was that on the title page of the Columbus Dispatch (republican) Monday. The drawing represented Senators Foraker and Dick nailing the Republican eagle to the dollar sign. They representing "Corporate greed." Beneath the picture are the words, "A spectacle that the Republicans will never stand for." How this representation and these words do smack of the utterances of William Jennings Bryan in 1896. "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns; you shall not crucify mankind upon this cross of gold." This same Columbus Dispatch berated Mr. Bryan. Called him anarchist, and unmercifully slurred his "crown of thorns, cross of gold" speech. Now that paper puts up a cross of gold, "the dollar sign," and represents "corporate greed" crucifying the republican party upon it, and says, "You shall not crucify the republican party upon this cross of gold." It was the American spirit then, and it is Americanism today. Bryan was ten years ahead of the people. They now follow his sentiment and proclaim his thought with blaring trumpets.

WHEN THE Republican factions in Ohio meet in State convention they will not only have to settle their differences, but have a still harder nut to crack. The puzzling question for these patriots to settle is how can the President and the two United States Senators be endorsed at the same time? Foraker and Dick, the two Senators seemed to take a delight in opposing the President's most cherished legislation. Foraker voted against the railroad rate bill and the bill for joint statehood and in fact aided the Democrats in amending the latter measure so as to give Arizona the right to decide on joint statehood, or not, while President Roosevelt wanted the partisan measure of forcing the two territories in as one state, so as to be a sure Republican state. Then Foraker pigeon-holed the Santo Domingo treaty and we know from Secretary Taft how savage the President feels about that, though he publicly blamed the Democrats. Then Senator Dick, who belongs to the old Hanna gang, helped to defeat the bill reducing the tariff on Philippine importations and voted for a sea-level canal in the face of the President's recommendation for a lock canal and favored a broad review of the acts of the Interstate Commerce Commission. But perhaps such little inconsistencies will not bother an Ohio Republican convention, for they may endorse the bunch in general terms. The Republican game of fooling the people is not so difficult in a Republican convention, but occasionally the "dear people" discover the trick and kick over the traces.

JUDGE REEVES RE-NOMINATED

Judicial Convention Accepts His Candidacy by Acclamation.

At Pomeroy, Tuesday of this week, there gathered the Democratic hosts from this common pleas judicial district composed of Fairfield, Hocking, Vinton, Gallia and Meigs counties, and unanimously re-nominated Judge John G. Reeves as a candidate for Common Pleas Judge of the second subdivision of the Seventh Judicial District of Ohio, to succeed himself. There was a goodly crowd in attendance and enthusiastic in their hope of success this fall.

The convention was called to order by W. T. McClenaghan, chairman of the district committee, and he named Hon. C. E. Peoples, of Meigs, as temporary chairman, and J. B. Dollison as secretary. Mr. Peoples addressed the convention in a pleasing speech, and asked for the routine of business. The temporary organization was made permanent and the convention got down to work. All committees were dispensed with except the district committee. On call of counties the following district committee was named: Fairfield, W. T. McClenaghan, Lancaster; Gallia, J. T. Robinson, Bidwell; Hocking, J. B. Dollison, Logan; Meigs, M. H. Jenkins, Pomeroy; Vinton, A. F. Huhn, McArthur. This committee organized by electing J. B. Dollison as chairman and A. F. Huhn as secretary, and was authorized to fill vacancies.

On call of counties for nominations all counties gave way to Fairfield, when the giant of Fairfield, giant in intellect and giant in oratory, M. A. Daugherty arose and in eloquent sentences outlined the policies of democracy, and closed in a fitting eulogy, naming Judge John G. Reeves, as a candidate to succeed himself. The nomination was pleasingly seconded by Judge O. W. H. Wright, who moved a suspension of the rules and a nomination made by acclamation.

Judge Reeves was nominated and ushered into the hall amid great applause. He made an eloquent speech in his acceptance of the honor bestowed on him and the confidence reposed in him.

He was followed by masterful talks by Judge Wright and Senator Lowry of Hocking, Mayor Merriman, of Gallipolis, and Mr. Cox, of Vinton.

The convention was a rousing one and much encouragement was tendered Judge Reeves for his success this fall.
