Mrs. Oldfield Dead.

It came as a shock to her many friends, Wednesday to learn of the death of Mrs. Allen Oldfield. She had been ailing for some months, but acute Bright's disease set in and she passed away. Mrs. Oldfield was one of Logan's most respected and highly esteemed women and numbered all whom knew her among her friends. Her death is a sad blow to her devoted husband, who is afflicted. The funeral will occur tomorrow morning.

Enraging Effect.

Dick's election as committeeman and subsequent elevation to the Chairmanship of the state organization has had an enraging effect upon not only the rank and file of the party, but upon the Republican press. In the Eleventh District, known more familiarly by the name of the man who has represented it for 20 years, Congressman Charles Grosvenor, the open prediction is being made that Albert Douglas, of Chillicothe, who defeated the Athenian, will be defeated in turn at the polls. This looks like a pretty hard proposition but as General Grosvenor himself pointed out recently, Governor Pattison succeeded in turning the trick. Douglas will fight hard, for he is a natural born fighter. Injustice was done him at the Dayton convention through the publication of a story that he had weakened in his opposition to Senator Dick as Chairman. As a matter of fact he fought Dick hard in the Eleventh caucus, losing by one vote that afternoon, and was equally strenuous in the Committee on Resolutions that night. It was not necessary for Congressman Burton or Harry M. Daugherty to bring him into line for he was in advance of it. But that does not alter the fact that he has a battle before him. The Democrats have nominated a popular mixer in the person of Judge Oliver W. H. Wright, of Hocking, who is a born campaigner. He will have some trouble with the temperance folks, but in that district they say the question cuts both ways, especially in the mining sections.

It will be therefore seen that the Republicans will have to fight to hold what they now have instead of keeping what of right belongs to their adversaries.

Garber's Prediction.

State Chairman Harvey C. Garber says there is no question about the Democrats reclaiming four of the old Democratic districts, which are now represented in congress by Republicans, to-wit: the Fifth, Thirteenth, Fifteenth and Seventeenth, and is confident also that the Democrats will carry the Republican Ninth and Eleventh. The Fourth district, which is now represented by Mr. Garber, is one of the reliable Democratic districts of the state.

If Mr. Garber's prognostications prove to be correct the next delegation in congress from Ohio will consist of 14 Republicans and seven Democrats, while the present delegation consists of 20 Republicans and one Democrat, Mr. Garber himself being the lone Democratic member of the lower branch of the great national law-making body at Washington.

Democratic congressional nominations are to yet be made in the First, Second, Third, Seventh, Ninth, Nineteenth and Twenty-first districts. It is not likely that anyone will be nominated in the Twenty-first district against Theodore E. Burton. Mayor Tom L. Johnson is credited with having said that Burton comes so nearly representing his views and those of the Democratic voters of that district on the tariff and other economic questions that a contest is not worth the while.

But in all the other districts, nominations will be made. Mr. Garber bases his faith on carrying the Ninth and Eleventh districts, Republican by large majorities, on the split in the Republican party in these two districts as the result of factional differences.

Marrying Parson of City Hall a Busy Man.

(Columbus Sun.)
Marriages in the city hall are becoming so frequent that it has been suggested that council should recognize the unique position Columbus occupies among cities and appropriate funds to furnish proper surroundings for the blushing brides and proud grooms who take each other, for the usual "better or worse," under the direction of the experienced matrimonial knot tier, Rev. S. K. King, private secretary to Mayor Badger.

That the ceremony might be conducted with the necessary solemnity, officials say a raised platform might be erected in the mayor's private office and the square desks and big office chairs be replaced with the furnishings of a parlor and the chandeliers be decorated with little cupids. Canvas walks might be placed, from awnings erected in front of the municipal building, on the stairs and in the halls, and a piano could be installed that the proud couples might come in and depart to the inspiring music of a wedding march.

Yesterday Dr. King married his 2004th couple. The ceremony was performed in Mayor Badger's office at 11 o'clock in the morning.

Not in Robust Health.

Governor Herrick told the delegates at Dayton that the tariff needed revision and suggested his idea by the figure, "Let us apply the knife while the patient is in robust health." But who ever heard of doctors disputing over the treatment of a man in "robust health." If the tariff is all right, it surely needs no lopping off. The fact that the Republican doctors disagree as to the method of treatment is pretty good evidence that the tariff patient is not in "robust health."—Pomeroy Democrat.

For Thin, Poor Blood

You can trust a medicine tested 60 years! Sixty years of experience, think of that! Experience with Ayer's Sarsaparilla; the original Sarsaparilla; the strongest Sarsaparilla; the Sarsaparilla the doctors endorse for thin blood, weak nerves, general debility.

But even this grand old medicine cannot do its best work if the liver is inactive and the bowels constipated. For the best possible results, you should take laxative doses of Ayer's Pills while taking the Sarsaparilla. The liver will quickly respond, and so will the bowels.

Made by J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Also manufacturers of HAIR VIGOR, AQUE CURE, CHERRY PECTORAL.

High Sounding Phrases.

(Pomeroy Democrat.)
"The Republican policy of protection must be sacredly maintained. It is the foundation of our gratifying and unparalleled prosperity and commercial eminence. Eventual correction of schedules along protective lines must be made by the Republican party, whose devotion to the policy of American markets for American industry is the guaranty of the confidence of the manufacturing world."

Of such high sounding phrases is the protection plank in the Ohio Republican platform. It is a fair sample of most of the others in the same structure.
Take the sentence, for instance, "It (protective tariff) is the foundation of our gratifying and unparalleled prosperity and commercial eminence."

Such bombastic nonsense borders on sacrilege. No credit given to the Giver of all blessings; no credit for a country, blessed with a richness of soil and a wealth of natural resources, such as no other nation possesses; no credit to the push and enterprise natural to a people blessed with a diversity of climate that permits us to be the most progressive in the arts, sciences and industries of any nation on earth; no credit for the billions of wealth poured into the world's store house, every year by the real "foundation of our gratifying and unparalleled prosperity," the unsurpassed bounties of a virgin soil, tilled by millions of intelligent husbandmen.

Everything subsidiary to the "Republican policy of protection." That alone is the "foundation of our gratifying and unparalleled prosperity."
Where, outside of a Republican platform, can there be found an example of such "unparalleled" effrontery as that portrayed in the sentence quoted?

How to Make Soap.

A correspondent has asked me how to make good laundry soap that will not eat off the skin of the hands, and I have been receiving instructions from a Swedish woman who has been accustomed to make the family soap for years. She has lived in families where money was not lacking, but where every penny counted in the general comfort. Soap of the home-made variety costs nothing in comparison with the prices charged by grocers.

My Swedish woman saves grease of all kinds till she has three pounds, which she clears, and to which she adds one pound of potash, found at the grocer's in cans supplied with directions for use, water and one-half pound of powdered borax. This mixture is boiled four or five hours, poured into pans lined with paper, and taken out and cut into blocks when cold. All soap improves with age, and the drying process can hardly be prolonged too far.

I used to know a thrifty woman who made all her own toilet soap, and I know several who make a part of their supply by using up bits that are left from good soap cakes they have purchased. The former used mutton tallow and sal soda in equal quantities, say two pounds of each, one pound of salt, one ounce each of gum camphor, oil of bergamot or whatever scent she happened to prefer at the time of soap-making, and borax. These are boiled slowly for an hour, with frequent stirring, and allowed to cool in cups or molds dipped in cold water.

Soap bits are merely melted in water and thickened with fine oatmeal, as much as it will hold. A few drops of weak carbolic acid—the toilet variety—does something toward whitening the skin. Slabs of white castile soap can be converted into delightful cakes of toilet soap by melting and adding oatmeal or almond meal, borax, carbolic acid, witch hazel, or any of those useful toilet articles. The pure castile agrees with about every kind of skin, but is objectionable to some on account of its insipid odor.

I came across a recipe recently, given me by the dentist who cared for my teeth when I was a school-girl. I presume that there are mouth washes quite as good, on the market, but it is worth something to know what one is using. This liquid was to be used at night with a toothbrush, and warranted to preserve and beautify

F. BLASIUS & SON

Soliloquizing.

RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED TO THE W. C. T. U.

A man went forth one still clear night,
And whispered, "Now I shall be out of sight,
So through this alley, and down that flight
Of steps, I'll take my way.
I will not go on like that blustering train
Of Temperance folks, who again and again,
Have asked me to sign the pledge, but in vain,
But I'll be as busy as they."

So he went to the alley, and downward he crept
To the basement, where all kinds of drinks were kept,
Nor heeded he how his wife had wept
Or her quivering lips had plead,
"I'll just take one more glass of beer,
Of the downward course, I have nothing to fear,
And when I go home the streets will be clear
Of all persons I fear or dread.

He started home while his neighbors slept,
He staggered and stumbled while onward he crept,
Wherever he looked, wherever he stepped,
There were hollows and hills to be seen.
He saw terrible sights, the houses and trees
Inverted appeared, and besides all these,
Great serpents sprang up as high as his knees,
All pictured in horrible mein.

But he did one thing that was hardly fair
He laid himself down at the foot of the stair,
And thought to sleep off his potatoes right there,
While his wife would be wondering and thinking.
"I'll be very cautious and quiet," said he,
"Though my head feels as large and as heavy as three,
And my stomach feels strangely unsettled, ah me,
If I (hic) she'll know I've been drinking."
