The scene of "The Little Homestead" the emotional rural drama from the pen of W. B. Patton, which will be the bill at the Opera House on Tuesday, February 19, is laid in a small country village. The attention which has been paid to details in mounting the play, has added much to its charm and has been a material factor in its success.

The idea of the letter is to get the expression of the locals on the project and for that purpose a convention of delegates to meet in Athens has been called for March 12.

The letter is as follows: Athens, Ohio, Feb. 11, 1907. To the Miners of Sub-District No. 1 of District No. 6.

Greetings: For sometime, as you no doubt are aware, the question of establishing a miners' hospital in Athens for the use and benefit of the miners of Sub-District No. 1 of District No. 6, has been under discussion. With that end in view, meetings have been held and an organization effected for the purpose of securing as much valuable data and general information as would be a source of benefit to those who have taken the initial step in establishing on a permanent basis, a miners' hospital in Athens.

This organization has worked conscientiously on the plan and numerous letters have been written to many hospitals throughout the country whereby some feasible plan could be worked out and something of a definite nature could be presented to the miners of this sub-district.

The hospital building, according to the idea of those working on the plan, is to be of absolutely fire-proof material, equipped with all modern and scientific appliances for the care of patients. It has been estimated that the building proper will cost approximately $20,000, while the sum of $5,000 should be provided for the equipment of the hospital. At first glance it might seem that such a fund would be unnecessarily large for the building and equipping a hospital, but when it is realized that there are nine thousand miners in this sub-district to be provided for in case of sickness and accident, it will be readily seen that adequate facilities cannot be secured with less than a $25,000 hospital. This hospital, it must be understood, will be for the benefit of the nine thousand miners and families.

The problem of raising the necessary funds to build, equip and maintain the hospital should not be a serious matter, and its satisfactory solution would rest entirely with the miners of this sub-district themselves. With nine thousand men in the district it will be seen that an assessment of three dollars would raise all the funds necessary to build, equip and place it on a business-like basis. If all the men in the district were employed it can also be seen that the assessment would fall somewhat under the three dollar amount. With a sufficient fund raised to build and equip the hospital, its maintenance on an effective and economical basis could be assured with an assessment of not over twenty cents a month per man in the district providing, of course, the mines were operated with the usual regularity. It has been figured, from the information obtained from similarly operated hospitals, that a monthly assessment of twenty cents would provide the necessary house doctor, nurses, medicines, ambulance and other requirements for the well-equipped, properly conducted hospital. It is the plan of those who are taking the initial step in the hospital movement to have free dispensaries located at central points in the district where the miners and their families may receive medical attention.

The hospital is to be managed and controlled by a board of directors elected by the miners.

The above is in brief then the plan devised for establishing a miners' hospital in Athens. At the sub-district convention which is to be held in Athens, beginning March 12, the question of locating a hospital in Athens will be taken up and it is hoped will be brought to satisfactory conclusion. At least one day of the convention will be devoted to the discussion of the hospital plans and details which cannot be given in a letter of this kind, may we worked out there to the satisfaction of all concerned. It is therefore urgently necessary that a delegate be sent from every local in this sub-district to the convention to take part in promoting this philanthropic movement. The delegates are advised to take up the hospital question with their respective locals and secure an expression on the proposed work. If for any reason there may be a clear understanding of the question the locals are advised to defer definite judgement until the delegates shall have returned from the district convention when they may be given further information.

In the question of raising the funds for the hospital, it should be borne in mind that the full assessment shall not be checked off at one pay, but that the sum of fifty cents may be checked off each pay, beginning with the first or second day in April, as the convention may decide.

Sincerely hoping you will give this serious consideration, and that your delegate will be ready to give a satisfactory report at the convention to be held in Athens, we are

Fraternally yours,
SMITH GANDEE, Chairman,
JOHN KNOX, Secretary.
