Cutting Hams.

If you want good, sweet meat try this way. After cutting up your hams let them lie until next day. Use a clean cask to put them in. Pour water enough on to cover well, then draw off the water and add good molasses until it is pleasant to drink. Dissolve in a little hot water one ounce saltpeter for every twenty pounds of meat and add to it.

Then carefully add fine salt and stir until dissolved. Then a potato as large as an egg will float in it, pour it on the meat. Keep it in a cool place from eight to twelve weeks, then remove from the pickle and lay the rind side down for four days to dry. Hang in an open smokehouse and make a smole of hickory or maple once or twice a day for a week, and after that once a day for ten days. We have found March to be the best month to cure hams with smoke. Hams cured in this way will keep for a year or longer.—American Farmer.

After the H. V. Railroad.

Another complaint against the Hocking Valley Railroad company, alleging discrimination in the distribution of cars, has been filed with the railroad commission of Ohio. The complainant in this case is the New York Coal company, which operates coal mines in the Hocking valley, and especially in the Nelsonville field.

The complainant says that it is entitled to 6 per cent. of all the cars available for distribution between the several mines in that district, the same being the allotted proportion by the defendant. Plaintiff further says that it has not now any of the lake trade, by reason of which it cannot avail itself of cars especially carded for the lake trade. Other mines, it is claimed, in the district, and those in which the defendant is said to have interests, have large and profitable lake trades. It is charged that these other mines are given an advantage over the plaintiff.

Mrs. Sarah Lehman, of Straw Berry Ridge, had as her guests Tuesday, Mrs. James Kinney and daughters, Grace and Florence, of Morrow Co., Mrs. August Shiveley of Logan, O., Mrs. Abe Mohler, of Webb Summit, and Grandma Fiekle, of Webb Summit.

Circumstantial Evidence.

Senator Foraker was defending in Wilmington an official who had been maligned.

"We are too apt at times," he said, "to condemn men unheard. A thing may look very fishy, yet on proper examination it may prove to be quite innocent. Let us remember the episode of the seaside hotel.

"Late one night from the room of a married couple in a seaside hotel groans and shrieks were heard to come. These noises at last became so violent that a number of guests, pale and frightened, gathered in the hall before the door.

"Oh, you are killing me!" cried a male voice. "Have you no pity?"

"There followed a series of awful groans. Then:

"Stop! you are murdering me? I'm dying!"

"For a little while the crowd outside heard feeble grunts and moans. Then a wild shriek rang forth.

"Murder! You've done it at last! You've killed me! Oh, I'm dying!"

"Here a man thundered on the door and shouted:

"What hellish deed is going on in there?"

"There was a smothered laugh within, the door was opened instantly, and a young and pretty woman appeared.

"Did the noise alarm you?" she said. "I've just been peeling off a porous plaster from my husband's lame back."

Quail and Rabbit to be "Ripe" Soon.

Quail and rabbit will be "ripe" on Nov. 15. The season opens on that date for both and closes Dec. 5 for both.

The game laws provide that no person shall kill rabbits out of season, except owners of property who find them injuring grain, fruit, vegetables, shrubbery, etc. No person shall kill in any one day more than 18 Virginia partridge or quail—if he gets the chance.

Woodcock or Carolina dove may be killed from Sept. 1 to Dec. 1; rail shore bird, plover, snipe, wild duck, wild goose, coot, or mudhen, from Sept. 1 to Dec. 1. Twenty-five is the limit on the number of ducks and 18 on other water fowls. There must be no hunting on Sunday or Monday.

Raccoon may be killed from Sept. 1 to March 1; skunk from Nov. 1 to Feb. 1. Pheasants are not to be killed before Nov. 10, 1908.

The quail season closed October 15th.

Little Boy Killed.

On last Friday evening, a seven-year-old son of George Tucker, who lives near Gore, fell from a wagon and was run over, killing him almost instantly. The wagon bed was about half full of corn and the wheels passed over the center of his body.

The accident happened in the road and if there had been any chance to escape death on account of the ground being soft as it is in the field, there was none on the hard road surface. The little fellow was a bright boy and a favorite with those who knew him. The remains were brought to Logan, Sunday, for burial and a large number of acquaintances and relatives attended the funeral.

W. J. SCHOLL,
R. R. No. 2, Logan, O.
Oct. 31, 1907

Mr. and Mrs. Walker, of Cedar Grove, were in Logan, Monday and Tuesday attending court as witnesses. Mr. Walker is teaching school in his home district this winter.

Onward We Go.

With the 1907 elections out of the way the campaign of 1908 actively begins, and in this struggle Ohio will be far from the least important battle ground. Taft, to play anything like a winning figure in the national convention, must have a solid delegation from Ohio at his back. Without it his candidacy cannot be expected to appeal effectively to the delegates of other states, who more than all else want a man who they think stands the best show of landing in the White House. It is plums they are seeking and they want them distributed among the faithful. A divided delegation from his own state will show elements of weakness which will be difficult to overcome. The all important question is therefore, can Taft secure a solid delegation from Ohio? At this time frankness compels the admission that the prospects are far from flattering. Foraker stands in the way and his opposition is more formidable now than at any time since the game of "senatorial elimination" was started. He has gained wonderful strength with the party leaders and workers by his course in the municipal contests, advising his friends and followers to give loyal support to the party tickets no matter whether or not they were comprised of friends or enemies. This attitude of regularity commends itself to organization men and will undoubtedly bring 1's compensations, if not in the state generally then at least at Columbus and Cincinnati, where help was badly needed and where the organizations have been recognized as friendly to Taft. Both Boss Cox, of Cincinnati, has reasons to feel any way but grateful to Taft, who by following Foraker's example could have saved him many sleepless nights and countless numbers of big iron dollars.

The Republicans who bolted the Cox ticket at Cincinnati and supported the City party and gave comfort to Democrats, were to a man Taft followers, and it is contrary to human traditions and practices to expect these bosses and the powerful machines they represent to punish Foraker for his assistance and reward Taft for his silence and the opposition of his followers. It is for this reason the wise political prophets have stricken the six delegates from the Cincinnati and Columbus districts from the Taft list. The wise prophets even go further and say that the influence of these three districts will be strongly felt in the rest of the state and that no one need be surprised to see Foraker capture fully half the Ohio delegation. The effect of such an occurrence can well be imagined. With one-half, or even one-third, of the Ohio delegates against him Taft would cut a sorry figure in the national convention and his nomination would be almost out of the question. No one recognizes this fact more thoroughly than the distinguished secretary, and it is quite likely he had this in mind when in his recent speech at Manila he declared that he expected to visit the Philippines again within two years, but it would be as a private citizen. With Taft eliminated, a probability by no means remote, Republican politics in Ohio will assume an entirely different phase, the senators again in the saddle and, with the bosses, in undisputed control of the g. o. p. The sudden silence into which some of the early Taft boosters have fallen is therefore easily understood; they realize that the bandwagon is turning into an ice wagon.

Cured of Bright's Disease.

Mr. Robert O. Burke, Elnora, N. Y., writes: "Before I started to use Foley's Kidney Cure I had to get up from twelve to twenty times a night, and I was all bloated up with dropsy and my eyesight was so impaired I could scarcely see one of my family across the room. I had given up hope of living, when a friend recommended Foley's Kidney Cure. One 50 cent bottle worked wonders and before I had taken the third bottle the dropsy had gone, as well as all other symptoms of Bright's disease." Bort & Co.
