Does the Family Own the Democracy of the First Ward?

This is the question that has agitated the public mind for some days past. A transaction occurred on Friday evening which looks as though the family considered the voters of the First Ward, as their property, subject to their sale and transfer.

Our former fellow townsman, Capt. AUG. DONNALLY, is about completing one of the finest freight and passenger packets to be found upon the Western waters.

At the singing at Winchester last Sunday, we highly admired the beautiful and sweet voice of Miss Mary Miles, of Gallipolis. She sang a solo, "O, the far off shore," a beautiful piece from The Success. Singers, and especially lovers of music can not help admiring the beautiful songs in The Success. Great credit is due Prof. Charles A. Lackey, of this county, for his improved and successful method of instruction in vocal music.

Prof. LACKETT is now teaching here at present. He has a vocal class of children and adults at the M. E. Church.

Rev. R. BREARE and family think of starting for Massachusetts on Saturday.

For the Gallipolis Journal. FROM INDIA. MADRAS, INDIA, July 5th, 1876.

TO OUR FRIENDS OF THE GALLIPOLIS M. E. SUNDAY SCHOOL:

When your Superintendent asked me last November to write you a letter, he was also offering me a privilege which I am only too glad to accept. The only reason I have not written before this, is that I have been too busy. But I am glad to do it now if you will only let me do it in my own hurried way.

I have thought of you often of late, and of that nice new church that you were building when I left home last November. I think of you now as gathered there some Sunday morning, with our Berean Lesson leaves in your hand, and I know you must be happy.

But you wish to know where I am, and how I am surrounded. I wish I could tell you, but it is too long a story for one short letter. The name of the city is Madras. It is thirteen degrees of latitude north of the Equator, on the east coast of Hindustan.

You think it is warm here? I do too. The mercury in the thermometer has often marked 104 degrees in the shade, and it is so warm that I dare not go out in it much in the middle of the day.

But you may ask if we have flowers here? Yes, we have a great many. Some large and some small, some in pots and some in the ground. If you were looking out from our veranda now, you would see a great many pots sitting on the steps and in the yard.

I would be glad if you could see them to-day; for if I could show you these things, I could also show you what we are trying to do for Christ. I would rather show you that than all else in India; for I know if you could but see the hundreds and thousands here who need Christ, that we would never fail to have your daily prayers.

But I wish to speak of our Sunday Schools. Some of my friends have written to me asking: "If we have any Sunday Schools?" Let me give you the answer. We have some Sunday Schools and many bright and intelligent scholars. Most of these speak English, and our Sunday Schools are all carried on in English but one—that is part English and part native language.

amations and reviews here also. We have just had a nice time in the closing exercises of the 2d quarter, (June 25). We had in our S. Schools some nice scholars, and they work on their lessons like little Trojans.

Let me tell you what I saw on Saturday evening, just before the close of the quarter. My Bro. Minister, Mr. Hard and I went to one of our places of worship, called a Pandall, to sing with the children and to hold an evening service.

So down he sat on the seat with them and commenced singing, they began clearly and nicely, "Dear Savior ever at my side. How loving Thou must be, to leave Thy home in heaven to guard a little child like me."

As no one in America must think of me as any other than a happy man, I would not trade places to-day with any minister in America. I would not leave this work here and come home for all the money in Gallipolis.

This letter, however, is not telling you much about India. No! I could not tell you all you would like to know if I would write a solid month, and I could not spare so much time as that. There is too much work for me to do.

Robert Ingersoll was merely a brilliant stump speaker, destitute of the genuine qualities of the great orator, they should read the following powerful passage from his address to the soldiers at Indianapolis:

The past rises before me like a dream. Again we are in the great struggle for national life. We hear the sounds of preparation—the music of the hoisterous drums—the silvery voices of heroic bugles. We see thousands of assemblages, and hear the appeals of orators; we see the pale cheeks of women and the flushed faces of men; and in those assemblages we see all the dead whose dust we have covered with flowers.

We see them all as they march proudly away under the fluttering flag, keeping time to the music of the music of war—marching down the streets of the great cities—through the towns and across the prairie—down to the fields of glory, to do and die for the eternal right.

men become iron, with nerves of steel. We are with them in the prisons of hatred and famine; but human speech can never tell what they endured.

We are at home when the news comes that they are dead. We see the maiden in the shadow of her first sorrow. We see the silver head of the old man bowed in the last grief.

The past rises before us. We hear the roar and shriek of the hursting shell. The broken fetters fall. These heroes died. We look. Instead of slaves we see men and women and children. The wand of progress touches the auction block, the slave pen, the whipping post, and we see homes and frescoes, and school-houses and books, and where all was want, crime, and cruelty, and fetters, we see the faces of the free.

The Ewing-Newman Secret—Confirmation of the Story. The election, in part, is over, but it is not too late to fortify the truth of some of the statements the campaign produced.

Further. The Blade says: It now appears that Mr. Rucker was not the only man who heard the conversation between Mr. Newman and Mr. Ewing on the evening of September 19th, 1876.

Twenty thousand people listened to Mr. BLAINE at Xenia, and one of the things he told them was this: In the speeches I have made during the campaign I have restrained myself with any reference to the gigantic scandal in regard to Mr. Tilden's unpaid income tax.

We go with them one and all. We are by their sides on all the gory fields—in all the hospitals of pain—on all the weary marches. We stand guard with them in the wild storm and under the quiet stars. We are with them in ravines running with blood—in the furrows of old fields. We are with them between contending hosts, unable to move, with whistling the life ebbing slowly away among the withered leaves.

Talk with a Clothing Man.

It is a pleasing talk in these days of frascals, unbecomingly to be able to signal an oasis in the desert of frascals, and while many are complaining of business stagnation, dull trade, etc., to see a clothing man, who is not only successful, but also a successful business man.

Reporters—see by the posters at your door that this is your "opening day." What is that? Mr. W.—Why, sir, an opening day in our line is a day upon which our stock is displayed for inspection.

Mr. W.—Lack of room. You can not do a business of this kind in a small room. Our first opening in Cincinnati was in 1870, and we have since that time been steadily increasing our business.

Neighborhood News. Judge William Salters died at Portsmouth last week, aged ninety-one. At the singing at Winchester last Sunday, we highly admired the beautiful and sweet voice of Miss Mary Miles, of Gallipolis.

THE MEDICINE THAT CURES VEGETINE

Taking into consideration the character of its vouchers, the history of its cures and the immense increasing demand, VEGETINE may be fairly entitled to the name of the medicine of the age.

PAID NEARLY $400.00!

DEAR SIR: When about six months old I was vaccinated. The parties who were vaccinated from the same virus died from the humor.

What is Vegetine?

It is a compound extracted from bark, roots and herbs. It is nature's remedy. It is perfectly harmless from any bad effect upon the system.

Report from a Practical Chemist and Apothecary.

DEAR SIR: This is to certify that I have sold at retail 1547 doses (5¢ bottles) of your VEGETINE since April 12, 1876, and can truly say that it has given the best satisfaction of any remedy for the complaints for which it is recommended that I ever sold.

Vegetine Sold by All Druggists.

Very respectfully yours, A. GILMAN, 488 Broadway, Boston, Jan. 1, 1874.
