Cincinnati Enquirer on Foraker.

Windy Wilson, the dogged free trader who has never been entirely at himself since Ben Foraker met and flattened him out so completely on his native heath, insists with insane egotism that he knows all about the tariff.—Hillsboro News-Herald.

Don't let your county pride run away with you. One breath of Wilson's wind would carry "Little Breeches" into the next county. We think Mr. Wilson has lost his bearings a little in the tariff sea, but all the same he is a most able and courageous gentleman; and to hear him talk is, as we used to say in the simple eloquence of childhood, "just like reading a book."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

It isn't county pride, if you please, Ben Foraker is the pride of the Nation, and were he not, like Blaine, Webster and Clay, too great a man, might some day be President. Wilson's wind is majestic in the eyes of Democrats whose success depends upon that element. But, when he undertook to puff Foraker across the Ohio, he found to his dismay that he had "waked up" the most magnificent fighter in America. He thought the hills and mountains of West Virginia were falling upon him, and wished in his heart of hearts that he had never been born. Since that day, rebels and free traders have hated Foraker as the devil hates holy water, and every loyal heart south of Mason and Dixon has called him blessed. If you should compile a list of able and distinguished Americans, Ben Foraker would be mighty close to the head. But, in reading on down, you wouldn't reach Windy Wilson in the same day. As an expounder of truth, also, an expounder of Windy Wilson, Foraker challenges the world's admiration. And in one respect, at least, his discourse isn't just like reading the Arabian Nights or the stories of Munchausen.

The great Mitchell-Corbett prize fight was to take place at Jacksonville tomorrow, Thursday. Whether or not it will be allowed to come off is a matter of general interest. The Governor of Florida will employ every possible means to prevent it while the sporting fraternity are equally positive that the fight shall take place. There is an immense amount of money placed upon the result of the fight, should it occur.

Hon. W. H. Edwards, consul at Berlin, is a Ripley boy, well known to some of our citizens. He has been in diplomatic service continuously since the election of Grant to the Presidency, and has a splendid record all the way through. President Cleveland has a very high regard for him, and to a recent applicant for this, the only unchanged consulship, he said that the Berlin office was occupied by one of the brightest and most efficient young Republicans that ever held kindred position; that if he had no backing he would be permitted to hold the place on his merits, but that beside his brilliant official record he was indorsed for retention by Democrats and Republicans whose wishes he proposed to recognize.

Great Music Offer.

Send us the names and addresses of three or more performers on the piano or organ together with six cents in postage and we will mail you one copy of the Popular Music Monthly, containing ten pieces full sheet music, consisting of popular songs, waltzes, marches, etc., arranged for the piano or organ. Address: Popular Music Monthly, Indianapolis, Ind.

Grover, old boy, is a dandy. It now transpires that he offered Proctor Knott, of Kentucky, the Ministership to Hawaii, providing he would enthrone the Queen. But Proctor would Knott Willis, however, was willin. Hence his distinction in infamy. He has discovered that it is one thing to be notorious and another to be popular.

Concealed Weapons.

The Cincinnati Sunday papers among news items stated that Richard Collins had been struck with a slung shot over the right eye by a man named Smith, and that Collins fell unconscious and that a compound fracture of the skull had been produced and that the case was so serious Collins would die. From these statements his parents here were alarmed. Dick's brother, Frank, went immediately to Cincinnati, accompanied by D. Q. Morrow, Esq., and telegraphed his father that there was nothing serious, and that Dick was released from the hospital on Monday afternoon. Of course, a great strain and tension of suspense was lifted from the hearts of the parents, and those of the community here who know young Collins were glad to know that he had escaped with his life from the cowardly blow of a man carrying concealed weapons. Any man is liable to death by persons carrying arms concealed, and it ought to be a penitentiary offence, unless good cause is shown therefor. Dick's father intended to have Smith hunted up and prosecuted to the extent of law, if found, had the case been of the desperate nature it first appeared, and for this reason had his friend, D. Q. Morrow, go to Cincinnati with Frank Collins and learn particulars in case Dick had been fatally hurt. As it is, it being an ordinary assault case, the usual channels of prosecution may, perhaps, apply, and no doubt it will be made hot enough for the man who uses a slung shot on an unarmed man, as there is a tendency everywhere to break up the practice of using deadly weapons on slight provocation. There will be little harm done and fewer lives lost, if one or the other, in quarrels did not use weapons. Ohio cannot too speedily follow the example of other states, and make carrying a concealed weapon a felony instead of a mere misdemeanor. Of course, making the exemption of any person who shows that at the time he was engaged in any lawful business, calling or employment, and that the circumstances in which he was placed were such as to justify a prudent man in carrying the weapon for the defense of his person, property or family.

The Fountain.

The City Council have asked the County Commissioners to appropriate enough to put a handsome foundation under the proposed fountain in the Public Square. The amount offered by the Commissioners was not considered satisfactory by the Council, and it is now proposed to put the fountain in the center of the intersection of Main and High streets. As before stated in these columns, the fountain is a handsome affair, consisting of a basin thirteen feet in diameter, and octagonal in shape. At every angle are ornamental posts, from each of which flow two streams, thus making sixteen drinking places. The basin is nearly two feet deep, and will be set on a foundation probably two and a half or three feet high, surrounded by an outer railing. The figure in the center rises some six feet above the bottom of the basin. On the pedestal, a huge boulder, stands a boy full of mischief, holding aloft his boot, from the broken sides of which flow two streams of water. It is a happy design, and the completed fountain, coming as an incident of the great water works improvement, will be something of which all may well feel proud.

Right for Once.

The Gazette showed signs of mental aberration for a while on the water works question, but has now gotten down to a square, common-sense jog-trot. From the columns of our esteemed cotemporary, we clip the following: If the water works mains are ever to be extended so as to give fire protection to a portion of the city not covered by the original specifications, it should be done now. The taxpayers demand protection, and they are certainly entitled to it, and there should be no question but that it should be done. If done now the expense will be much less than after some time has elapsed.

A Noteworthy Occasion.

There is something of the cheerful and something of the pathetic in all the gatherings of old soldiers at this late day. This was true of the memorial services held in the W. R. C. Hall, Sunday afternoon. The room was well filled. But, conspicuous by its position in the center of the room was one vacant chair. Its suggestive presence was made sadly and unmistakably significant as the services proceeded.

The programme opened with the National hymn, America, sung "with the spirit and the understanding also."

The opening ceremonies were impressive. Following them came an anthem and then the responsive services.

Miss Lula Maddox sang with touching tenderness and magnificent melody the Vacant Chair. Every heart was moved and many a trickling tear found its way down the faces of those who listened.

A hollow square was formed, and Chaplain Rev. H. H. Sandoe, besought God's blessing with a burning eloquence that carried every soul to the throne of God.

Mrs. Boulware recited with deepest feeling that touching poem of Carleton, "Cover them over with Beautiful Flowers."

Miss Maddox sang with infinite pathos, "Sleep, Soldier, Sleep!"

Little Master Nevin Sandoe recited with wonderful truth to life and dialect, J. Whitcomb Riley's poem, "The Old Man and Jim."

The Chaplain then delivered an earnest and appropriate address, which we wish we had room to reproduce.

Mrs. Pearne then in a brief address, neatly and happily reached the hearts of her hearers.

The solemn closing ceremonies impressed indelibly the lessons of the hour.

SENSATIONS.

How they are Sometimes Constructed by Alert and Ingenious Reporters.

An apt illustration is shown in one of the Cincinnati papers of how reporters are expected to magnify mole hills to mountains and top their cratered summits with the lurid illuminations of internal fire. The article in question refers to a Chicago bank-clerk named Layne, who was in this city last week. The reporter shows himself well qualified for the task assigned him, and as an author of wonders he should command a fabulous salary. We have no fault to find with him or his work. But, after wading through the column of wigs, false beards, eye-glasses, plug hats and other accessories of the great mystery, we feel inclined to puncture the well built structure and shatter its bewildering beauty with a stroke of truth.

John L. Layne comes of an excellent family and has always borne an irreproachable reputation, enjoying the implicit confidence of the banks he has served. Last October he was given a position in the First National, at Chicago. Close application to business began to tell on his not over-robust health. About ten days ago, he asked for an indefinite sick-leave, expecting to return to his desk in a few days. He is a young man possessed of some means, all accumulated by his own efforts. He frequently makes investments on his own account, in which he has been very successful. He and a prominent West Virginia banker had a deal under way in Charleston, West Virginia, the success of which required the utmost caution and secrecy until it should be accomplished. Layne did not want it known by certain other parties on the same scent that he was in that section of the country. Hence, when he availed himself of this opportunity to visit Charleston, he said nothing to his Chicago friends, and even passed back and forth by rail through his parents' home, Ironton, without announcing himself. In the mean time, one of the bank officials called around to inquire for his health, and found he was mysteriously missing. There was no suspicion of anything wrong in his accounts, but he might be in some hospital, or have been the victim of foul play. Inquiry at Ironton showed he was not there. So, both his people and the bank authorities began to think strange of the matter, and telegraphic inquiries were sent hither and thither. Lynx-eyed reporters caught on, and the genius of the press found opportunity to display its wonderful faculties. In the mean time, Layne, all unconscious of the commotion he had innocently caused, was enjoying a few days of much-needed rest among friends in Hillsboro, after which he returned to Chicago. Stripped of sensational embellishments, these are the facts.

Mark Twain must take some of his characters from real life. For instance, "Puddin' Head Wilson."

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

RAINSBORO.

January 22d, 1894.

Miss Ellen McHugh, of New Vienna, is the guest of William Browning and family.

J. C. Harrington visited the capital of Pike county last week, on official business.

Mrs. Theodore Kerns, of Bainbridge, is visiting Mrs. Rebecca Roads, on East Main street.

Miss Lizzie Clark and brother Oscar, of Greenfield, came over to attend the Farmers' Institute, and remained to visit friends.

Rev. C. L. Wingett, of Blanchester, has been circulating among his friends and former parishioners here for several days.

The K. of P. will install their recently elected officers at their hall, Thursday night, and give a banquet to their friends.

Rev. H. W. Bailey has been given a vacation of one month to recuperate from his recent prostration. He is slowly improving.

Our physicians, Drs. McBride and Mercer, still have frequent calls, notwithstanding the partial abatement of the grip scourge.

The Farmers' Institute at this place last Friday and Saturday, was a success in every particular, and its beneficial effects will be felt and seen for years to come. The attendance was so large that our splendid new hall would not accommodate all who came. Our foreign speakers more than intimated that, taking into consideration our excellent music, the promptness and enthusiasm of our people and their general intelligence, that our institute was second to none they had attended in this or any other state. The services began promptly at 10 a. m. Rev. C. L. Wingett invoked the divine blessing. The music was furnished by an orchestra and choir composed of John Montgomery, J. B. Gossett, William Daniels, Jas. E. Upp, T. S. Kerns, William Browning, Earnest McMullen, Edward Daniels, William Montgomery, Mrs. J. C. Harrington, Mrs. Ella Bell, Mrs. William Hodge, and Misses Susan Upp, Ada Redkey and Lizzie Montgomery, and the music was all appropriate and well rendered, and contributed in a very large degree to the pleasure and enjoyment of the meeting. The managers of the institute feel that a debt of gratitude is due to those who so cheerfully furnished it. J. A. W. Spargur made the address of welcome. Waldo F. Brown lectured on Stock Raising, Little Things, the Successful Farmer, Convenient Stock Barn, and Poultry for Profit. W. H. Gilbert lectured on Butter Making and Bread Tests at the World's Fair, Ensilage and Butter Making on the Farm. John Hulitt read a paper entitled the Farmer as a Business Man. Rev. H. W. Bailey being sick, J. W. De Witt was substituted and read a paper entitled Only a Farmer. Miss Ella Watts furnished an essay on Influence. Miss Nellie Coleman was to have given a recitation, but was sick. Waldo Brown was substituted and recited a very touching poem entitled a Rainy Day in Camp. The address of welcome and each of the lectures and papers were timely and good, and reflected credit upon their several authors. Each contributed to the benefit and enjoyment of the institute, and, like the music, have been favorably spoken of in the hearing of your correspondent. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year. President, J. I. Taggart; Vice President, R. B. McMullen; Treasurer, John Hulitt; Secretary, N. R. Barrett; Executive Committee, J. B. Davis, J. G. Redkey, J. B. Gossett.

Mrs. Dr. Bahan, of Ross county, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Foraker.

Walker & Santee offer, in ladies reliable stylish Goodyear Welt shoes, a most excellent line of desirable goods at only a fraction of their real worth. Never in the history of the shoe trade in Hillsboro, have such goods been offered, at such prices. Every lady in the city should have a pair.

BELL.

January 22nd, 1893.

Professor Jones, of the Hillsboro College, attended the social given by the Ladies' Aid Society on Saturday night and stayed over Sunday, the guest of Willis Montgomery.

Sam Kelly and sister, of the Hill City, were calling on old friends, Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. Winkler closed his first series of meetings at Flatrun last Friday night. Twenty-three accessions and twenty conversions.

Mollie Young, of Youngsville, Adams county, after spending a week visiting friends and relatives in this vicinity returned home today. Her brother came to accompany her home.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of this place took in a little over $23 last Saturday night.

Lusinda Hurst, of this place, after a couple of year illness, caused by paralysis, died last Tuesday morning, of a second attack. The funeral took place on the 17th. Services conducted by Rev. Montgomery. She was interred in the Belfast cemetery.

SUGARTREE RIDGE.

January 22nd, 1894.

Protracted meeting is still in progress at the M. E. Church.

Jacob Larrick, an old and respected citizen, died at his home east of here last week.

James and John Woods are visiting friends at Cincinnati.

Rev. Hamilton occupied the pulpit here Sunday.

Now would be a good time to talk pike.

Rev. Morris is holding a series of revivals at Miller's Chapel.

Frank Bingham and lady and Miller Brewer and lady, of Clinton county, are visiting relatives near here.

Dave Dunn intends to start a harness shop here.

Will Justice has gone to Cincinnati to have his eyes doctored.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a meeting of the J. M. Barrere W. R. C., action was taken upon the death of Mrs. Fannie E. Davis, and the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, God in his infinite love has taken from among us, one of our loved and worthy members, Mrs. Fannie E. Davis, who by her conscientious discharge of duty, by the love and wisdom she exercised in the aid of the organization, of which she was a member, had won our tenderest love and friendship.

Resolved,—That we recognize in her life a type of true Christian womanhood, doing whatsoever her hands found to do. Life to her was no mere dream. It was a reality, firm and decided. Adhering to the right, she inspired all to nobler aims. As a sister and co-worker we have lost one who will long be held in loving remembrance.

Resolved,—That the removal from among us of such a life, leaves a shadow and vacancy that will be deeply felt by the sister members of the Corps, and the charter bearing her signature shall be draped in mourning for thirty days.

Resolved,—That our tenderest sympathies be extended to the bereaved family and friends in this their great loss, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent them, and be published in the Hillsboro papers. Also, that they be placed upon the minutes of the Relief Corps.
