Drink Grain-O.

After you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about 1/2 as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25 cents.

Does Coffee Agree With You?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25 cents.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. K. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at Fullerton & Co.'s drug store.

Now let us grab the heathens' wool.

MARCH AND THE LION.

Something Better Than the Old Saw. The saying about the lion and the lamb in March often proves false, but there is another and a better one which is literally true. When March comes in and finds you taking Hood's Sarsaparilla to purify, enrich and vitalize your blood, you may expect when it goes out, that it will leave you free from that tired feeling and with none of the boils, pimples and eruptions which manifest themselves because of impure blood in the spring. If you have not already begun taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for your spring medicine, we advise you to begin today. We assure you it will make you feel better all through the coming summer.

and then through the camp of a North Carolina regiment to my own company. Quietly and without disturbing anyone I got my prisoner into my dog tent and told him to lie down and wait. I then took his dinner hat and blouse, slipped up to another tent where the occupants were asleep and quietly exchanged them for an old gray blanket and a gray jacket. With them I got back without discovery and fitted out my prisoner. I knew it would be impossible to dodge the sentries with any body clad in blue, although there were many of our own soldiers at that time who were by necessity compelled to wear any color they could get. Our dirty gray was so near the color of the dead leaves and the ground that it would be almost impossible to see anyone who wore them creeping but a few yards away. When I returned I told my Yankee friend to get up and come along as quietly as possible. Stepping through the camp of the North Carolinians, we got into the shadow of the slope of the hill, and crept down into the dry bed of a narrow creek which was overhung with bushes. Cautioning my companion to be careful, we crept on our hands and knees fully 200 yards along the creek, passing within ten or fifteen steps of three sentries. The little rivulet ended in a larger branch not 80 feet away from where I had stood when I captured him. It was at this point where the utmost caution had to be used. After a few minutes we succeeded in getting around the vidette.

What's an empty title, pa?

"An empty title is your mother's way of calling me the head of the house."

Is it about himself?

"No."

Then I never heard it.

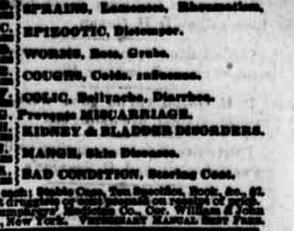

"Who is the owner of the rancho?" I inquired. "Maj. Henry Vance, sir, and he will be glad to entertain you, gentlemen," was the reply. "The name somehow struck me as familiar, but I had known so many Vances that I thought but little of it. 'An hour or so later, while seated at dinner with the major and his family, his good wife happened to remark: 'You are a Virginian, sir, are you?' 'Yes, madam, we live in sight of the Blue mountains, in what I consider the prettiest part of the old state.' 'The major often talks of that part of Virginia,' she replied. 'He served in the union army under McClellan and Grant. You look like a soldier yourself, sir. Were you one, may I ask?' 'I was, madam; a soldier for the lost cause, and I served during the war under Lee and Jackson,' I replied. 'Indeed! Did you hear the gentleman, major?' she interrogated. 'Were you there?' I inquired, now deeply interested, although not in the least anticipating what was coming. 'Yes, I was, and one night, the one after the second day's battle, while wandering about in search of something to eat, I got outside our lines and was taken prisoner by a young confederate vidette.' 'What!' I exclaimed, rising to my feet, struck with astonishment. 'You are not the young Ohio soldier I took that night, and afterward slipped out of our camp back within his own lines?' 'My host had risen and stood staring at me with astonishment, blended with anxiety, on his frank countenance. 'Can it be possible,' said he, his voice fairly quivering, 'that the man I have most wanted and least expected ever to see, stands before me? Thank God! my friend, that I once more can look into your face and thank you.' 'Mary!' addressing his wife, 'Kitty! Hattie! This gentleman, Capt. Raines, is the man of whom I have so often talked. He was the confederate soldier boy who gave me, a half-starved enemy, all his rations, and afterward ran the risk of his life at the hands of his friends by conducting me through his camp back into my own lines. He is the man I would rather see than any other man on earth.' 'By this time everybody was excited. Mrs. Vance and both the girls were shaking my hand and embracing me as affectionately as they could have done a long lost relative. Dinner was lost sight of. No one thought of anything to eat, and for an hour there was nothing talked of except the story of that night at the front.'—Cincinnati Enquirer.
