MODERN WOODMEN

To Hold Annual Picnic at State Fair--Prize Drill Contest.

Modern Woodmen of America are planning a monster State Field Day, to be held on the Ohio State Fair grounds Tuesday, September 1, next, and the committee in charge is confident that at this celebration will be assembled the largest representation of Woodcraft in the history of the Order. The managers of the Ohio State Fair have generously offered two hundred dollars for a competitive prize drill to be participated in by the numerous Camps of the State, and Secretary Poland, Drill Marshall, reports that at least fifteen crack teams will enter the contest. In addition to the prize drill the day will be devoted to a varied program of athletic contests, with appropriate prizes for each event, while to arouse interest generally a prize of thirty dollars will be awarded to the Camp registering the largest attendance, and one of twenty dollars to the Camp registering the second largest attendance. Prominent national and state officers will deliver short addresses, and will inspect all Camps attending in grand review. An urgent invitation has been extended to all Camps, and from the interest displayed an attendance of at least twenty thousand members is predicted. Woodmen headquarters will be established on the fair grounds in charge of prominent members of the Order, and here the glad hand of welcome will be extended to all visiting brethren. Aside from this gathering affording the joys to be garnered by brotherly association, it also gives opportunity to inspect the Exposition's colossal displays of art and industry and to enjoy the amusements provided, consisting of band concerts, spirited harness racing and free feature acts of daring, skill and dexterity, by recognized stars of the amusement world. Full particulars regarding the Field Day celebration can be had by addressing Secretary Poland, State and High streets, Columbus.

able time to talking of the many changes made in the school law by our last general assembly and gave what he thought the good points in them. Misses Mary and Anne Hanlon gave a delightful duet on piano and violin and were the recipients of hearty applause. Dr. Hully then talked a little while in a most interesting way about our laws, showing how, why and by whom they are made. He made constitutional and statutory laws so plain that all could understand the rights of each, made plain our double allegiance and clinched every truth by strong, homely illustrations.

TUESDAY NIGHT.

Although raining the auditorium was well filled and after two solos well sung by Miss Hazel Nye, Dr. Hully began his most able exposition of the colored race problem as it appears to him. Told of the first slaves, of the failure of slavery in the north, of the characteristics and life of the race in the south. His reciting of Dunbar's poems, of "Christmas Night on the Plantation," his lullaby, his earnest, sensible arguments about the problem all served to show his grasp of the subject and the well trained versatility of his mind.
