Beyond The Crossroads.

The following extract is taken from an article in the May Atlantic Monthly entitled "Beyond The Crossroads."

"The crisis is essential to the good health of religion. Religion needs the exercise which is taken by walking regularly and briskly in the direction of the crossroads. In every generation the heretics, the nonconformists, the dissenters, the unbelievers, save the church. They save it by calling attention to the fact that religion is not properly responding to the present situation; it is not answering the new questions, or keeping pace with the new movements, or employing the new methods or taking account of the new ideas. Religion would settle down satisfied in the grasslands. Then comes criticism and forces it out; as the race has been forced by drought, or invasion, or by the pressure of increasing problems, from the grasslands to the great rivers, from the rivers to the inland sea, and from the sea to the wide oceans, Atlantic and Pacific."

This idea will probably be quickly and strongly denied by the orthodox and the author condemned as a heretic and atheist. The author is George Hodges, Dean of the Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge, Massachusetts, a recognized authority on religious and theological works.

The above quotation is simply giving the principle that anything or any person to grow, thrive and meet the needs of the times must encounter opposition, as that is the only way that the best in it or him can be brought out; that nothing is worth while which can not withstand and grow in the face of opposition and criticism.

The doubters and dissenters call our attention to things we had never thought of before. He causes us to study and examine questions and we find beauties and promises that we had not even dreamed existed. A religion which can not grow in the face of criticism, which can not bear investigation, is not fit to live. Also a true religion must have as its main business social betterment, the improvement of the world.

In regard to the duty of the church today Mr. Hodges says: "Thus we stand at the eschatological crossroads. Science, society, humanity, all the forces of modern progress, are turning in one direction, along the way whose signboard declares that this present world is likely to last a long time, and that man's mission is to improve it. If the church takes the other turn, it will lose many of its strongest workers till it comes back and joins them at their work."

Needed Improvements.

The toilet facilities at the Webster school building are a disgrace to the town. The furnaces in the building are worn out and a new heating plant must be installed before next winter.

The question of what was to be done in connection with these matters was up before the board of education at a recent meeting. We understand that the members of the board were of the opinion that the advisable thing to do was to erect a wing at the south east corner of the building. In the basement of this would be an up-to-date steam heating plant; on the first floor would be sanitary toilet rooms and on the second floor would be rooms for regular school work. The cost of this improvement was roughly estimated at $10,000.

To do this work it would be necessary to issue bonds. We are informed by members of the board that it is their intention if the proposed improvement meets with public approval to call an election in which the people can pass upon the matter.

The need of toilet facilities at the Webster building, no one who knows anything about conditions can doubt. The facilities are the same as they were thirty or forty years ago. The toilets are a considerable distance from the main building. The walks leading to them are poor. They are not heated and it is impossible to keep them clean. The condition is unsanitary and unhealthy. We are informed that there is not another town in the state, the size of Hillsboro, which has such bad toilets. We doubt if there is a rural school in the county, where they are as bad.

We do not know how many times it has been necessary to put new furnaces in the Webster building since they were first installed. It has been several times and the building has never been satisfactorily heated. If the weather was very cold or the wind blowing strong it has never been possible to heat the rooms so they were comfortable and frequently it was necessary to dismiss the pupils in certain rooms.

When a new heating plant is installed there is only one sensible thing to do and that is to put in one that will heat the building and that will not have to be replaced every few years. In the long run it will be economy.

For the older people to argue that these improvements are not necessary, because they got along very well without them is foolish. Their fathers also received their education in log school houses, lived in log huts; had no pikes; read by candle light; heated their homes with fire places; traveled in road wagons, etc., etc.

We do not know what would be a reasonable cost for a heating plant and sanitary toilets at the Webster building, but whatever it is the people of the town should gladly meet it as the present toilets are a disgrace to the community and good business policy always dictates putting in a plant that meets your needs, instead of one that is inadequate.

These matters should be given careful examination and thought by the people of Hillsboro.

Having had a month's experience, we are thinking of running a column of "Advice to Gardeners."

We are attracted by our opposites. That is why a gabby woman lands a dumb mutt who is a good listener.—Luke McLuke. From which we conclude that all men are dumb mutts and our bookkeeper, who is a woman, says our conclusion is correct.

If the Reds do not quit their strange and unusual conduct, we are certain to have a pressing business engagement in Cincinnati soon.

Our fondest hope is that some day we will get out an issue of the paper and never think or hear of a single thing that we failed to have in it.

Is it not strange how we will quote mean things people have said about others and never think that the people we tell them to may apply them to us?

Minutes Mean Dollars IN TREATING ANIMALS

Doubtless you know the danger of delayed treatment of colic and other diseases. You also realize that wrongly applied remedies are often worse than no treatment at all. In other words, not to diagnose a disease accurately may prove fatal. Every owner should be able to recognize an ailment and give correct treatment at the first symptoms. Prompt action is the great secret of treating horses.

Minutes mean dollars. Of course proper treatment is always necessary. That is just how Humphreys' 500 page Veterinary Manual will prove so valuable to you. It is by F. Humphreys, M.D., V.S., and teaches how to diagnose at 1 give proper treatment.

This book will save you hundreds of dollars and costs you nothing. It will be sent absolutely free on request to any farmer in order to introduce Humphreys' Veterinary Remedies. Remember, it is absolutely free. You do not have to order any remedies to secure the book. Address, Humphreys' Homeopathic Medicine Company, 156 William Street, New York City. This is a splendid opportunity to obtain a veterinary treatise that you should have in your library. As a reference work you will find it invaluable. To have it in the time of need will be worth many dollars, whereas it will cost you but a post-card by writing for it now.
