AN INFAMOUS DEED.—One of those deeds which have their inspiration from the lower regions, was committed at Nevada last Thursday night in front of Balliett's store, while the moon was shining brightly, and the people were at their usual places of business and social chat. A valuable horse, belonging to Mr. A. Balliett, was hitched in front of the store above mentioned, and some unknown human demon plunged a knife into the poor animal, in front of the hip near the backbone, ripped a large gash downwardly, and made his escape. The horse died in a few minutes. No reason can be assigned for the foul act, nor clue for the perpetrator of the same.
