The 14th in Xenia. The people of Xenia will long remember the 14th day of April, 1865. The city was fully aroused at five o'clock in the morning by the firing of cannon and the ringing of bells.

The 15th in Xenia. Unlike the 14th, the 15th was a dark cloudy day. The Sun was not visible, clouds of opal shadowed the sky. The air seemed fraught with sadness. The world was melancholy.

Resolutions on the Death of President Lincoln. The Committee, to whom was referred the drafting of a series of resolutions for the adoption of our citizens, in reference to the great national calamity which has spread mourning over every heart-land, and heart throughout our land, recommend the following:

1. That in the death of ABRAHAM LINCOLN, the President of the United States, the cause of human freedom has lost a representative man; the Government over which he presided with singular wisdom and efficiency, has lost a Chief Magistrate whom the people had learned to love as seldom any chief magistrate of any nation in the annals of time was ever loved; and one of the brightest political lights of the world has been extinguished.

2. That in the circumstances of his death,—occurring, as it did by the hands of an assassin in the interest of a vindictive slaveocracy at war against the fundamental principles of our national wisdom,—we have an exemplification of the spirit of that godless disposition which is the ruling inspiration of the devotees of slaveholding institutions which respects no right of our common humanity, regard no principle of honor or justice and is essentially eternally hostile to all government predicated upon the will of the people governed.

3. That, more than ever, we realize our obligation to maintain our Government in all its efforts, by the exercise of the war power or otherwise, not only to subdue all outward acts of rebellion against its unity and laws, but also, as far as possible, to abolish every cause which may instigate or foster the spirit of rebellion.

4. That we will give the same cordial support to the Administration as now constituted under Andrew Johnson, the successor of the lamented Lincoln, as we have given to the administration hitherto, in the maintenance of the integrity of the Union and its laws, till our federal authority shall be established over every acre and foot of our States and Territories.

Mourning for the President at Jamestown. A kind friend at Jamestown writes us privately as follows, under date of April 17th: "Old Fellows' Hall, and the Free Masses' Hall, and all the public and most of the private buildings in Jamestown are draped in mourning for the loss of our beloved President."

The Copperheads in this locality are very quiet. Union men are grieved and indignant.

As will be seen by Advertisement, Prof. Pearson has postponed his Concert, from Thursday evening April 29th, to Thursday evening April 27th.

The following good motto was posted in the window of Nichols & Black's Store, on last Friday. It was in answer to the tender of Reauegard to President Lincoln by the South in the beginning of the war: "We tender now to Jeff and all his clan, Our Grant, our Sherman, and our Sheridan."

A beautiful representation of a tombstone bearing a simple inscription to the memory of President Lincoln, in the window of Fleming & Herriot's Bookstore, on Wednesday, attracted a great deal of attention, and elicited much praise. It was the work of Mr. Fleming Jamieson.

Vocal and Instrumental Concert. Mr. G. W. PEARSON, with the assistance of the ladies and gentlemen of the "Xenia Musical Association," will give a Vocal and Instrumental Concert in McMillan's Hall, on Thursday evening, April 27th. The following is the programme of the evening:

We learn that Geo. Watt's son, the lad injured by the shell explosion in this city, is likely to recover.

Explosion of One of the Miami Powder Mills.

The Miami Powder Mills, of King & Co., are located a short distance beyond Oldtown, in this County. As we are informed, there are several different Mills, or buildings, used in manufacturing powder. One of these, called the Wheel Mill, we believe, exploded in the forenoon of last Wednesday. The building was terribly rent. The roof was forced off, the shingles flying in every direction over a great distance. There were about seventy-five pounds of powder in the Mill. On the track, outside the building, were five kegs of powder. These, also, exploded.

There were two men in the Mill at the time of the explosion—a Mr. Smith, foreman, and a Mr. Dickey, one of the proprietors. The former was terribly burned, and after much suffering, died on Wednesday afternoon. The latter was also seriously burned; but being thrown into the race by the force of the explosion, the fire in his clothing was quenched, and he is expected to recover.

The foreman was in the act of driving a wooden pin, near an iron wheel, with an iron hammer. It is usual to use a wooden mallet for such work. It is supposed the hammer struck the wheel, and by friction created a spark, which was communicated to the powder, causing instant explosion.

Unlike the 14th, the 15th was a dark cloudy day. The Sun was not visible, clouds of opal shadowed the sky. The air seemed fraught with sadness. The world was melancholy.

About seven o'clock in the morning, a dispatch was received in Xenia, making the shocking announcement that the President of the United States had been assassinated. Many believed the report to be a canard. But soon despatches confirmatory were received. All hope vanished then.

Never before, on any occasion, have we seen so many sad faces. The deepest, blackest gloom, settled down upon, and shrouded all. Not a single face was lighted with gladness. Every one looked as though he had lost his nearest personal friend. Such a report flashed suddenly over the Country, after such a day of jubilee, shocked the people to a kind of dumb stupor.

There were no demonstrations on the streets. Every one was silent. The sorrow was unexpressed. There was no loud talking. All walked softly upon the sidewalks, as though in the immediate presence of the revered dead.

In accordance with a Proclamation of the Mayor, a meeting of citizens was held at the Court House in the forenoon. A committee was appointed to write appropriate resolutions. We printed the report in another place.

The day wore slowly away, but the common grief only grew deeper. We heard of many instances where grown men and women, on receipt of the afflicting news, sat down and cried like little children weeping at the bier of a dead parent. Was ever a Chief Magistrate so beloved as ABRAHAM LINCOLN?

The churches were draped in mourning on last Sabbath, and the services were appropriate to the occasion. At the Trinity Church, Rev. Crum delivered a very feeling and powerful sermon. We learn that the services at all the other Churches in the City were solemn and impressive. There was a Union Prayer Meeting at Rev. Ewing's Church in the afternoon; one at Rev. Fidelity's in the evening; and one at Rev. Grover's in the evening, also. If the prayers of the people avail any thing this Nation will be saved.

Business was suspended in this City on Wednesday. There were appropriate services in the different Churches. Many public and private buildings were grandly mantled in crape. The Old Flag sadly fluttered in its borders of black.

A kind friend at Jamestown writes us privately as follows, under date of April 17th: "Old Fellows' Hall, and the Free Masses' Hall, and all the public and most of the private buildings in Jamestown are draped in mourning for the loss of our beloved President."

A CARD. Mr. Editor:—In justice to myself, I wish to make a few remarks in regard to some false reports circulated by an individual, who it is unnecessary to name, to gratify his private malice against myself. He attacked me on Tuesday last, upon a matter, strictly of a personal nature, and then endeavored to turn it on to matters political, and incite a mob against me; but, fortunately, owing to the good sense of the gentlemen who were standing around, he failed to accomplish his cowardly purpose. I have since learned that some have been trying for the past ten days, to stir up a bitter feeling against me, by representing that I had spoken disrespectfully of our deceased President, which is false; for although I did not give him my vote, and might not have considered his policy the best at all times, still, I respected him, and believed him to be a good and honest man. I also believe that had he not been sent to an unimprisonable gaol by the hand of the country, he would soon have restored our distracted country to peace and prosperity. In conclusion, permit me to say, that my sincere wish is, that we may soon have peace on earth and good will to men; and that he who has who labored four years to restore the nation, may look down from his home in Heaven and smile benignly on those who are left to finish the work he commenced. Xenia, Apr. 19, '65. C. M. KRAMER.

Burning of Wilberforce University. This institution, near Xenia, was burned to the ground on last Friday. The faculty and students were in this City, participating in the grand celebration. It is supposed the building was set on fire by an incendiary. We can not surmise what motive any miscreant could have had for perpetrating such an act. We do not know what the property was valued at, but understand it was insured at $8,000.
